Open Communications Key To Passing Down Farm

BETHEL TOWNSHIP (Lebanon Co.) — Jim and Billy Hill wanted to see their children, Rich, Terry, and Terry's husband Kevin Shuey, stay in farming. So they made the transition from one generation to the next as smooth as possible.

Some farmers take 20 to 30 years to do what the Hills did in just five years. In fact, some farms are sold before the parents and children can agree.

In 1995, when Jim and Billy purchased a country store in town, Kevin, Terry, and Rich co-purchased the cows. At that point, Jim and Billy left the younger generation in charge of milking the cows and managing the farm. Then, this January, the children purchased the land and buildings from their parents.

"Since the kids took full responsibility of the farm during the transition years and were doing such a good job, we decided to turn over the farm sooner than we planned to give them chance to really have something," said Jim.

Both Jim and Billy, who are in their mid fifties, wanted to give their children every oppor-

Barbara Wiand, new PPPC president from Mifflinburg, succeeds former PPPC president David Reinecker, York Springs. Wiand operates Wiand Enterprises, a 300-sow farrow-to-finish herd in Union County. Wiand, with help from husband Glenn and sons Justin, 7, and Michael, 5, in addition to two full-time employees, produce about 7,000 feeder pigs per year.

Hilbert Receives Recognition From Beef Producers

JANET WILLIAMS
Adams Co. Correspondent

BONNEAUVILLE (Adams Co.)-A Littlestown farmer who has been involved with the beef producers association for almost 15 years received special recognition last week from the Adams County Beef Producers Association at their annual meeting in Bonneauville.

Harry Hilbert of Littlestown in Mount Joy Township has a long history of raising beef cattle. He currently has five Angus on the farm, and has a hog operation. Hilbert said he was surprised to be recognized by his fellow farmers. "It makes it all worthwhile," he said. "given all the hours you put into it."

He said he was most active with the association when his two children were in 4-H and MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — Pork producers could see some exciting programs in the months ahead, as prices improve and new marketing strategies are explored, according to the new Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council (PPPC) president.

And even if producers decide to eliminate the national pork checkoff, programs such as the Keystone Pork Expo, conducted each winter in Lebanon, will

Eastern Region Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, APRIL 21, 2000. FEDERAL-STATE

Prices ranged from unchanged to slightly higher on whites, balance of trucklot items were usually unchanged when compared to last week's values. Demand remained light and unaggressive as some traders anticipate some competitive pricing in the near future. Offerings were at least sufficient for current needs. The undertone was mixed and unsettled. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending April 15, 2000 were 3 % more than last week, and 8 % less than a year ago. Shell egg suppliers were sufficient for needs.

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA
APRIL 27, 2000

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

In Chicago, prices were lower. In the Eastern region, prices continued unchanged to lower. Elsewhere, prices were unchanged.

The market tone was barely steady to weak. Retail demand was generally light to no better than moderate, mostly fair. Supplies of the larger sizes were fully adequate to ample, and the medium and lighter weights were generally adequate. Breaking stock offerings were adequate to fully adequate for the fair to occasionally good demand. Light type fowl were ample for current processing requirements.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally noted as disappointingly light and below expectations. Offerings were fully adequate to ample and in the heavier balance on the 2.5 pound sizes. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights varied and were mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, breast items were readily available and generally slow to clear. Other items were fully sufficient for the light and spotty buying interest.

Northeast Broiler/ Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
APRIL 27, 2000

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying activity was light and generally disappointing. Offerings of breast items were ample and competitively priced to stimulate interest. Other items were at least adequate for current inquiry. Movement into retail and distributive channels was slow with few features noted. #1 in Rumen Availability
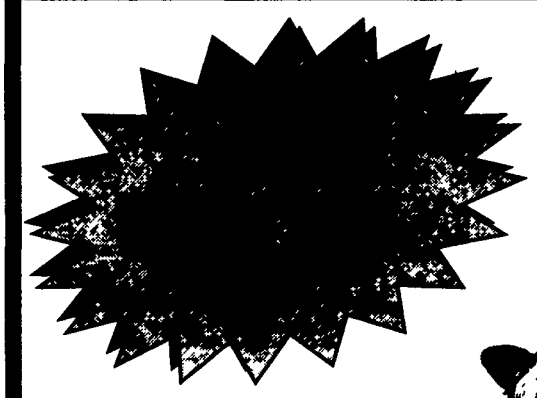
Pennfield's New SuperFlake Corn



WHY IS SUPERFLAKE CORN BETTER?

Flat rolled steam flaking disrupts the cellular structure of the corn kernels (gelatinization) and increases sites for microbial attachment resulting in improved starch (carbohydrate) digestion in the rumen. In simple terms, the cow uses more of the nutrients because the rumen bugs can get to them and much less corn nutrient goes out in the manure.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Apr 26, 2000

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean bids were slightly lower as rain remains in forecasts across the Midwest, export sales are slow, and early corn planting pro- gressing. Wheat 1 to 5 cents lower. Corn 1 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 4 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans steady to 4 cents lower.

Export sales continue slow this week for all commodities despite a few orders the past couple of days. Large world supplies and good crop condi- tions, weighed on wheat bids.

Corn bids lost most of yesterday's gains as forecasts call for some moisture in Corn Belt areas over the next week. Crop planting, however, continues to move forward with indications that up to 50 percent of the crop could be planted by Sunday night in some key states.

Argentina's soybean crop is reported to be around 15 percent harvested and Brazil is getting close to 80 percent complete. These are both press- uring bean bids lower. Very slow export sales so far this week for beans also added weakness along with lower wheat and corn bids.

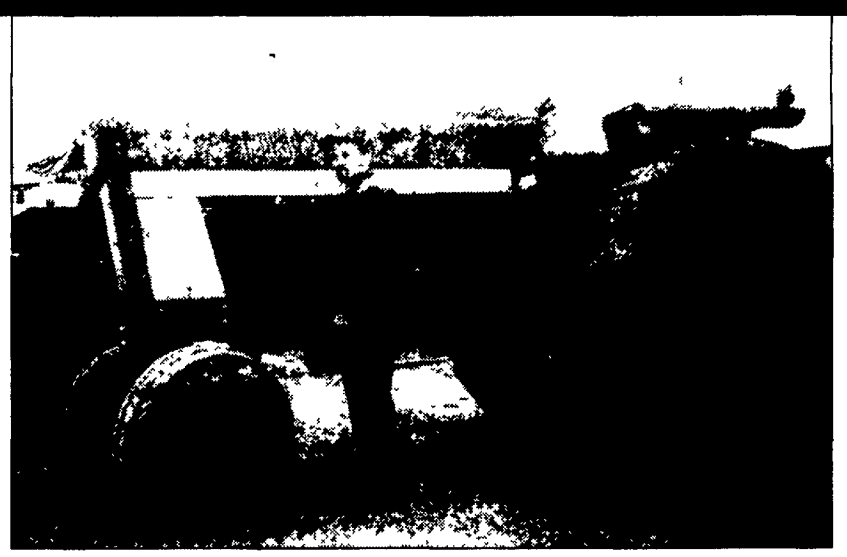
WE MAKE HYDROSTATIC TRANSMISSIONS "NEW"



If you have problems with the hydrostatic transmission on your combine or tractor, who do you call? If you're like many farmers and dealers, you call Hoober, Inc., the hydrostatic transmission specialists.

Hoober's team of experienced combine and tractor specialists know hydrostatic transmissions inside and out. Like Lew Martin, who has been repairing and rebuilding tractor hydrostatic transmissions at Hoober since 1977. It's Hoober's hydrostatic transmission specialists' ability to quickly analyze a faulty transmission and know which parts can still function properly and which ones need to be replaced that makes them so valuable to Hoober customers. Because at Hoober, we repair the problem and don't replace the whole transmission.

Knowledge and experience are what enable Hoober hydrostatic transmission specialists deliver quality service and repair in about half the time and at less than half the price.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

TRI-MILCHI!

The cows have gone out to the newly rich, green pastures, where the sun is on their backs. According to Anglo-Saxons, this was the month of Tri-Milchi, or three milkings. With spring bursting forth and the new grasses so nutritious and tasty after the long months of winter, cows were said to have been producing enough so they could be milked three times a day at this season. Young maidens, too, went out to the early morning grass on May Day. The May 1 dew was considered a magical skin rejuvenator with powers to counteract aging and bring good luck. In Roman times, Floralia was celebrated now with great revelry, gathering of blossoms, and feasting.

After a certain number of years, our faces become our biographies.

–Cynthia Ozick

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Vexed by age spots? If the morning dew doesn't work, try aloe vera juice straight from the plant.

MORNING MILK SHAKE

1 banana
1/2 cup plain or vanilla yogurt
1/4 cup silken tofu
1/4 cup soy or regular skim milk
1/4 cup frozen berries (blueberries, strawberries, etc.)
1 tablespoon brewer's yeast
1 teaspoon psyllium seed husks (optional, for fiber)

Mix all ingredients in the blender, pulse briefly, and pour into a tall glass. This is a great energizer to get you going in the morning, or drink it following your daily exercise routine. Fruit juice can be substituted for the milk. Try other fruits—apricots, peaches, whatever's in season—instead of the banana.

Makes 1 shake.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Hoarfrost on the first of May indicates a good harvest.

May makes or mars the wheat.

May showers bring milk and meal.

The later the blackthorn in bloom after May 1, the better the rye and hay harvest.

When Prissels decided to expand their dairy operation, they also wanted to milk available tax advantages.

Randy, Brian, Scott and Dennis Prissel, Prissel Valley Farms, Durand, Wisconsin

Prissels chose a "True Tax" lease. In fact, they leased a milking parlor, free stall barns, silos and other farm equipment. Along with fixed and 100% tax deductible lease payments, the leases protected their equity ratios by providing off balance sheet financing.

They chose Telmark for its knowledge of the dairy industry, service and reputation for financing. They also enjoyed working with their Telmark representative who personally knows the ups and downs of farming.

By financing with a lease, terms were kept to a minimum, allowing for the continued growth of the operation. Telmark's quick response allowed the Prissels to move quickly into their dairy expansion.

OPINION

Pennies On The Dollar

Have you ever thought about how small the part of what the consumer pays for food really goes to the farmer? In a recent issue of Western Livestock Reporter, the real food dollar was revealed under the title "Farm Share Pennies of Food Dollar."

Based on Washington-area food prices and the U.S. Department of Agriculture figures, the farmer's share of a box of cereal that costs $3.71 in the grocery store is 4.6 cents. In a loaf of bread, the farmer gets 5 cents out of $1.39; 68 cents out of the $4.39 for a pound of sirloin steak; $1.05 from $5.91 for a pound of cheddar cheese; 3.3 cents out of $1.99 for a package of potato chips; 9 cents of $1.29 for a head of lettuce; and 40 cents of the $3.29 the consumer pays for a pound of bacon.

The dramatic difference between prices paid to farmers and retail food prices was the focus of a "Farmer's Share Luncheon" held recently in conjunction with National Agriculture Day. More than 1,500 farmers and ranchers from around the country attended. The price of the meal was 39 cents—the amount the farmers received for a beef sandwich, baked beans, potato salad, cole slaw, milk, and a cookie.

Between depressed commodity prices and anti-competitive agricultural markets, farmers and being squeezed to the financial breaking point. Participants at the meal called on Congress and the administration to change farm policy to ensure farmers and ranchers receive a fair price for their commodities. It is just as important to let consumers know what a really good buy they get each week when they figure the family food budget. Therefore, we recommend all farmers reading this editorial make copies and send them to every city person they know. We're sure most of the people who eat have no idea what their food dollar pays for.

To Monitor Alfalfa Weevil

We are receiving reports concerning injury from alfalfa weevil in the southern parts of Pennsylvania. According to Dr. Dennis Calvin, Penn State Entomologist, it appears that the damage that is being observed is from larvae that hatched from over wintering eggs or there is a very high number of early instar larvae from eggs laid by over wintering adults.

This year has a high potential for significant injury by alfalfa weevil. Last year was very dry, which prevented a fungal pathogen of the weevil from causing high mortality. Also, the relatively mild winter means there may have been good survival of both eggs and adults. Given the current observations of injury, it is important to monitor the weevil's development closely to make sure the alfalfa is not injured beyond ability to recover.

To Determine Alfalfa Weevil Threshold

Typically, damage symptoms from alfalfa weevil begin to show around 300 degree days when larvae reach the third instar, reports Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. It is during this period that 80 percent of their feeding occurs.

Local weather statistics show that the Lancaster area has only accumulated 75 to 80 degree days as of April 23. Therefore, we are about one week away from reaching 300 degree days. Typically, alfalfa outgrows early damage from the larvae that result from over wintering eggs. However, it can look bad because alfalfa is growing slowly at this time.

Dr. Dennis Calvin, Penn State Entomologist, states unless at least 75 percent of the foliage is being removed, it typically does not pay to apply an insecticide. However, if there is the possibility that the larvae will feed on the new shoots, then a treatment is warranted.

Insecticide applied at this time will miss larvae from eggs laid by over wintering adults. If an insecticide is chosen, it would be best to apply Warrior, Baythroid or Furdan because of their long residual. Another option would be to spray with a short residual, cheaper material and retreat later if necessary.

To Lift Properly

Lifting is an everyday occurrence and essential activity for a farmer, yet many are limited in what lifting they may do because of a sore or injured back. Back injuries may be prevented if the lift is completed in a safe and controlled manner.

To prevent the occurrence of back injuries a few simple principles should be followed. 1. Avoid bending at your waist by bending at your knees. 2. Keep your head and shoulders up to help prevent bending your back. 3. Tighten your stomach muscles to brace your back. 4. Keep the object you are lifting close to your body and avoid reaching when retrieving or placing the object. 5. Avoid twisting your back by stepping with your feet. and 6. Make larger jobs simpler by breaking a big task into smaller ones. By following these steps, you will help prevent back injuries from occurring.

NO WAY TO SAY IT
April 30, 2000

Background Scripture: 1 Corinthians 12:31 through 13:13.

Devotional Reading: Romans 1 John 4:17-21.

In 1 Corinthians 12, Paul has been speaking of the gracious spiritual gifts which God bestows upon his children "for the common good." Among these gifts are the utterance of wisdom, the utterance of knowledge, faith, gifts of healing, the working of miracles, prophecy, the ability to distinguish between the gifts, various kinds of tongues, the interpretation of tongues, helping, administration and apostleship (12:8-10, 28). All of these gifts are given to us to share in the body of Christ and all are important and needed. Paul ends his list with this admonition: "But earnestly desire the higher gifts. And I will show you a still more excellent way" (12:31). Paul goes on, then, in chapter 13 to show us this "higher" gift, this "more excellent way." The answer, of course, is love. (Please remember that, when he wrote this letter to Corinth, he did not write it in chapters and verses, so that what he says in 1 Cor. 12 simply flows on into 1 Cor. 13-just as your letters are probably written. The chapters and verses were put in hundreds of years later to help people in reading and remembering what Paul wrote.) Actually, although this passage flows like poetry, Paul addresses himself to three tasks: the superiority of love (vs.1-3), its nature (vs. 4-7) and its permanence (vs. 8-13).

Christians often are confused by the meaning of the word which is translated into English as "love." Paul, of course, is not writing in English, but Greek, and while there is but one English word for 'love,' there are three in Greek. Paul could have used the word eros, which means 'affection for an adorable object." But Paul did not use eros because this would so greatly reduce the scope of love. One of the reasons we have difficulty in bestowing Christian love is that we find so many who need it 'unadorable objects'! He might also have used the word philia, often translated as "brotherly love" or "friendship." Yet, obviously this word would not do either, because Christ called us beyond the sentimentality of kin and kindred to love those who are NOT our "friends." Nor is this love common charity. The King James version translators were influenced by the Latin word caritas, which they translated in the KJV as 'charity." But this, too, is inadequate for Paul is not talking about the human quality of benevolence, but of the divine graciousness revealed in Jesus Christ.

Against Our Feelings So, Paul used agape, the undeserved, unreturnable love which we have received from God, a love to which we can only respond by bestowing that same kind of love on our undeserving fellow men, women and children. This greatest and most enduring love is to be bestowed with no qualifications whatsoever and with no expectations of reward, even from the recipients. We do not have "feel" loving in order to bestow this love, in fact, we are often called to be loving even though it goes against our "feelings."

This is not to say that eros and philia are not love, but that they fall short of Christlike love. They are fine, so far as they go, but they are not everlasting as agape is. They are transactional love-I will do this if you do that. I will be this if you will be that. But agape is non-transactional, it is not a deal, it is not quid pro qou, but grace, the love that is not merited, nor meritable. It is at this point that we humans are called by God in Christ to transcend our human nature of limitation and fulfill the divine potential that God has placed within each of us. 'If I give away all I have, and if I deliver my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing," says Paul (13:3). Does Paul mean that unloving people who do charitable deeds do not really help anyone? No, people in need may benefit from unloving charity, but we the givers do not, because our charity expects something in return: social approval, reputation, the ease of guilt, respect. and so forth. You may get all of those, but unless your love is grace-love undeserved and unpayable-you will rob yourself of the one gift that endures forever. In human language there is no word that can adequately express it, but you can experience and you can give it.

Pork Producers Partying Like It's 1997

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Pork market prices are approaching $50 per 100 pounds, and for the first time in three years, producers are making decent profits, said Brian Roe, Ohio State University Extension livestock economics specialist.

November 1997 was the last time price levels were this high, and current profit levels are the best since the summer of 1997, Roe said.

"March was one of only about six months since the summer of 1997 where producers made more than just a few cents of profit per 100 pounds of pork," he said.

Pork prices this March averaged $43 to $44 per hundred pounds (cwt.), and prices in early April were in the middle to upper $40s. Prices are projected to peak at about $50 per cwt. from June through August and then return to the $40- to $45-per-cwt. range this fall and winter, Roe said.

With production costs near $35 per cwt., most producers earned about $9 above breakeven in March, compared to losses of $4 per cwt. in 1999 and $7 in 1998.

Hog prices had been in the mid $30 to low $40 range from November 1977 to September 1998, and that's when the bad times began, Roe said.

Prices dipped below $30 per cwt. in September 1998, and producers began experiencing major losses. That month, the average producer lost $25 for each hog sold. The bottom fell out in December 1998 when prices dropped to about $10 per cwt., and producers lost nearly $60 per pig.

Overexpansion — encouraged by strong profits in 1996 and 1997 and fears of future environmental restrictions — combined with processing shortages and a natural dip in the price cycle to cause the dramatic plunge in prices, Roe said.

The first few months of 1999 were better, with prices back in the mid $30-per-cwt. range by May. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Hogs and Pigs Report released in June showed the poor market had not caused production to drop as much as expected, and prices again dropped below $30 per cwt.

"The last two years have been really tough for pork producers," Roe said. "Once inflation is taken out, hog prices in 1998 were 30 percent lower than they were during the Depression."

The recent improvement primarily has occurred because the U.S. hog breeding herd has finally shrunk enough in response to the poor prices, lowering pork supplies, Roe said. Prior to the big collapse in September 1998, there were 6.9 million breeding hogs in the United States. Since then, the breeding herd has declined 10 percent, to 6.2 million hogs.

"The eastern Corn Belt has contributed a lot to the reduction in breeding hog numbers," he said. "There are 20 percent fewer breeding hogs in the eastern Corn Belt now than there were in 1998."

Ohio's breeding herd is estimated to be 18 percent lower than a year ago. Only Indiana with a 17 percent decline and Wisconsin with a 24 percent decline experienced similar drops, Roe said.

The number of hogs being taken to market also has shrunk, although not as much as the breeding herd.

"During the same time period (September 1998 to March 2000) the number of animals taken to market went from 56 million to 52 million, only about a 7 percent drop," he said. "Market hog numbers didn't decline as much as breeding hog numbers because the larger, more efficient operations that produce more pigs per sow have remained, while many of the smaller, less efficient operations have dropped out."

Operations with more than 5,000 breeding hogs produce 8.96 pigs per sow, while operations with less than 100 sows produce only 7.73 pigs per sow — a 14 percent difference.

Other factors contributing to the turnaround in pork prices are that processing shortages are no longer an issue and demand for pork — and meat in general — has increased because of a strong economy, changes in dietary habits and better quality meat products.

In response to the stronger prices, producers are starting to stabilize the decline of the breeding herd.

"Already in January and February of this year the number of sows taken to market is down compared to last year," Roe said. "But the market doesn't seem to be concerned about it yet, because it hasn't made a difference on the futures market."

More pork and other livestock economic information for Ohio and the United States is available on Roe's Ohio State University website (http://www-agecon.ag.ohio-state.edu/Faculty/broe).

Source: USDA, Cold Storage Report.

By Ken Bailey
Penn State University
April 21, 2000

-March milk production up 3.8
-Number of cows on farms continues to grow
-American cheese stocks up 13 4 percent

USDA issued two important reports this week The first was the milk production report released on Monday It showed milk production in March for 20 major dairy states grew 3 8 percent over a year ago. It also showed the number of cows on farms continued to grow from the prior month The second report was the cold storage report released on Thursday It showed stocks of American cheese and total cheese as of March 31, 2000 were up 13 percent from a year ago.

Both reports had a bearish impact on market outlook. In other words, milk production continues to grow, cheese continues to stockpile, and the outlook for milk prices remains pessimistic

March milk production in 20 major dairy states totaled 12.7 billion pounds, up 3 8 percent from a year ago. February revised production was 11 7 billion pounds, up 8.2 percent from a year ago. February milk production revised for leap year was up an adjusted 4.5 percent on a per day basis

Production per cow in March averaged 1,634 pounds, 49 pounds above a year ago. And the number of cows on farms in 20 major dairy states was 7.77

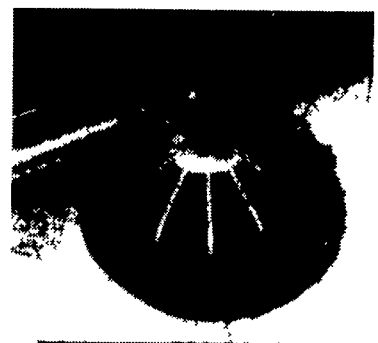
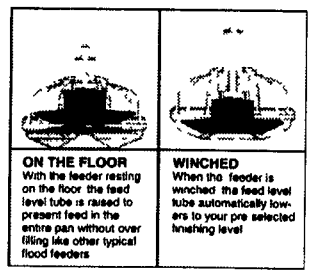
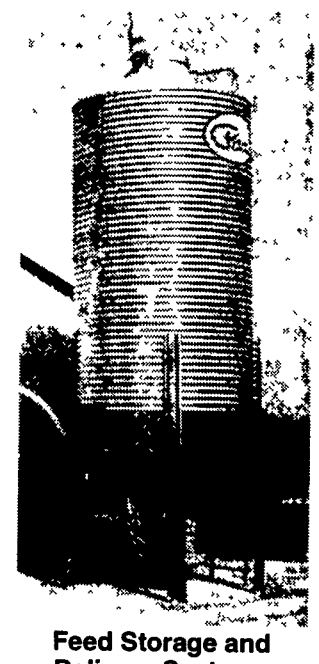
Pax
Boosts Your Efficiency and Products with these Innovative Products...


QUICK-START
The Pax QUICK-START™ pan feeding system grows chicks into FINISHED broilers efficiently.
Start chicks with the feeder resting on the floor and the feed pan entirely filled The Pax QUICK-START™ pan provides easy access to plenty of fresh feed – with no accumulation of stale feed in the drop tube – attracting even the smallest chicks to begin feeding right away.


ON THE FLOOR With the feeder resting on the floor the feed level tube is raised to present feed in the entire pan without over filling like other typical flood feeders
WINCHED When the feeder is winched the feed level tube automatically lowers to your pre selected finishing level


Feed Storage and Delivery Systems
Flexible Auger for Low Volume, Standard Volume, High Volume, as well as High Moisture (up to 25°) and pellet applications

New Web Site Answers Questions About Genetically Modified Organisms

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Information about a complicated science just got easier to access.

A committee of Ohio State University scientists recently formed to address questions regarding genetically modified organisms (GMOs). The committee, initiated by the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences, includes biologists, plant breeders, agronomists, agricultural economists, animal scientists and others.

"Questions about GMOs can't be answered from the perspective of only one discipline — not if you want a complete answer," said Steve Baertsche, Ohio State University Extension assistant director, agriculture and natural resources. "One goal of the committee is to merge a fairly comprehensive group of people from different academic departments and disciplines, and have them discuss the major opportunities and challenges of GMO applications."

Information from the group is posted on the new web site: http://ohioline.ag.ohio-state.edu/gmo. An "ask a question" area allows site visitors to pose questions to the committee. The site also includes a FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions) sheet, links to other GMO web sites and articles about the technology.

"I see this not as an advocacy group, but as a group of scientists who can give unbiased scientific information about genetic engineering," said Ian Sheldon, agricultural economist and chair of the committee. "The web site gives quick access to this group of scientists who can give answers on this technology."

The GMO web site is linked to Ohioline, the college's web site that includes thousands of fact sheets on everything from lawn care to parenting to farming.

Producers Can Go Pro To Keep Livestock Healthy

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Producers who want to keep their livestock free from disease, reduce antibiotic use, and lessen the likelihood of foodborne illness may want to try probiotics, said Teresa Morishita, an Ohio State University Extension veterinarian and associate professor in the Department of Veterinary Preventive Medicine.

Probiotics is a general term that refers to the natural bacteria normally found in the stocmach or intestine of healthy animals. When an animal becomes sick, disease-causing bacteria called pathogens replace the normal bacteria, Morishita said.

"By treating animals with probiotics, the goal is to have normal bacteria colonizing all the intestinal sites within the animal, so bad bacteria can't attach and cause disease," she said. "This concept is called competitive exclusion."

Probiotics are most often used in animals just born or hatched. Young animals have no intestinal bacteria, so treating with probiotics — the earlier the better — helps establish a good set of bacteria before pathogens arrive, Morishita said.

This treatment also is recommended during times of stress for the animal, such as during vaccination or after the outbreak of a disease.

"Probiotics are not a wonder drug. They are a preventive medicine step," Morishita said. "Disease can still occur despite their use, and if it does, an antibiotic would likely be needed to kill the pathogens. Then normal bacteria could be reestablished to reduce the possibility of future illnesses."

But the use of probiotics early on should lessen the potential for invasion of harmful bacteria.

"It's always better to prevent disease before it occurs rather than wait to treat it once it arrives because with increased sickness comes morality, and if an animal dies, whatever was spent to raise it to that point is lost," she said. "Sickness also can cause reduced feed efficiency and growth rate, resulting in a loss of economic value."

Taking steps to prevent disease using natural bacteria reduces the need for antibiotics. Fewer antibiotics decreases the potential for harmful bacteria to develop antibiotic resistance, Morishita said.

Probiotics also are being studied as a way to reduce the potential for foodborne illness in humans.

"The public concern over food safety has pushed more research into this area. The concept is that introducing more good bacteria will reduce the pathogens that cause foodborne illness, so when animals are slaughtered, the risk of carcass contamination is lowered," she said. "We're looking at the effect of probiotics on salmonella, E. coli and campylobacter right now."

Lactobaccilus acidophilus is one type of bacterial normally found in the gut of animals. It gives off a substance that makes the stomach and intestines more acidic and less environmentally friendly to pathogens.

The use of natural, nonharmful bacteria to prevent pathogens is not a new idea. The concept has been around for more than 30 years, but it has become more effective in recent years, Morishita said.

"The key is using specific bacteria isolated for use with specific species of animals," she said. "In the past, probiotic use had variable results because the host specificity had not been totally worked out yet. Now that it's been determined which bacteria work best for each type of animal, they are more effective, and probiotic use is picking up."

More stable forms of packing also have made probiotics more effective. They usually come in a freeze-dried form and are given to animals by either mixing them with water or incorporating them into feed, Morishita said.

The cost of probiotics is about the same as antibiotics and is not expensive. They cost less than a penny a bird for poultry producers, she said. Forms of the product are available for poultry, pigs, cattle, sheep and horses.

"Use of probiotics is not new or harmful," Morishita said. "It's nature's way of reducing pathogens, and we're just trying to help shift the scale."

For more information on probiotics, those interested can contact Morishita at (614) 292-9453.

IMPROVE YOUR PASTURES
AND HAVE TONS OF SUMMER FEED AS WELL

STEP 1 Plow or Roundup about mid to late May. This way you can still utilize your spring growth

STEP 2 Fertilize and drill in one (or a blend of several) of the fine forages described at right or plant "Master's Choice" Silage Corn. Corn does very well where pasture is plowed down. This may also help break up disease or insect cycles in old pastures.

STEP 3 Graze or cut sorghum sudan at 24 in. (Approx. 40 days after seeding and every 30 days thereafter). Warning: never feed sorghum sudan when it's less than 18" tall.

STEP 4 About mid Sept. plow or disk in manure and plant a high quality Barenbrug Grass Legume Mix. Always take a soil test before new seeding.

Graze lightly in Nov.

WHEN FERTILIZED AND GRAZED PROPERLY, BARENBRUG FORAGES HAVE MORE THAN DOUBLED MILK YIELD PER ACRE COMPARED TO TRADITIONAL PASTURE.

Sorry Mega Millet Not Available In 2000

CENTURY BROWN MID RIB (BMR) Hybrid Sorghum Sudan from Walter Moss Seed Co. . This premium forage has outstanding regrowth and tillering characteristics. The BMR trait increases the digestibility of the stems and reduces lignin by 40 to 60%. Because of this farmers will see increased milk production, or weight gains. The softer leaves and stems make for a more palatable feed.

MEGA GREEN Delayed Maturing Hybrid Sorghum x Sudangrass from Walter Moss Seed Co., is a very high yielding multi-leaf variety designed for hay or grazing. It has the potential to out yield silage corn. When left to grow it can reach heights of 12 ft. or more with out making a seedhead. Here in Lancaster Co. I have not seen it go to head at all Extra leafy leaves can reach 3 in. wide and 4 ft. long.

Both Mega Green and Century can be no tilled into old alfalfa stands after first cutting to double your haylage yields. Because of the high sugar content cows really go for it and milk well too.

MILLENNIUM BMR Hybrid Forage Sorghum, from Walter Moss Seed Co., is used as a low cost high quality alternative to corn silage. In a 1999 on farm comparison in Ephrata, PA it out yielded corn almost 2 to 1 in dry weedy conditions at 25 tons per acre with 70% moisture. It was planted in rows with a corn planter and chopped with a regular cornhead when the grain was in soft dough stage. This hybrid has exceptional levels of sugars and NSC which provides extra energy and nutrition. Large grain panicles add to the nutritional content and energy of silage.

BARKANT FORAGE TURNIP from Barenbrug is a very leafy turnip that has won yield trials including one in Berks Co. PA where it was seeded May 18, 1999 and harvested June 30th and rivaled the yield of Sorghum Sudangrass. It had a RFV of 216. It can also be mixed with Sorghum Sudan

Simmental Family Has Great Show — Five Years Running

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — The family recently honored by the Pennsylvania Simmental Association certainly had a great year.

Well, not just a great year — a great five years, devoting time, attention, and love to a beef breed that many claim is easy to work with, has good motherlines, and, in the words of a champion exhibitor, "is just really interesting," said Cassie Schaeffer, Myerstown.

With brother Tim, 16, and mom and dad Tracy and Paul Schaeffer, Cassie has been hitting the show circuit in a big way.

This year alone Cassie exhibited the grand champion Simmental heifer in both the open and junior show as well as champion bred and owned at the Farm Show.

Tim exhibited the reserve champion heifer in the junior show.

These heifers, along with War O' Fancy Pants, have competed and won at many other shows throughout the country this past year, with Fancy Pants being named grand champion Simmental heifer at the Kansas City royal in October.

Recently the Schaeffers exhibited a home-raised bull at the Tennessee Beef Agribition, where he was named reserve champion, and then son.

They also won at the recent Pennsylvania Beef Expo.

Their living room wall is spaciously decorated with many other championship trophies: banners for the 1999 Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE) yearling heifer, grand champion at the 1999 American Royal in Kansas City, Kan. (where they won the treasured solid silver, ruby-studded 100th year anniversary belt buckle), intermediate champion heifer at the 1999 Ohio State Fair and reserve grand champion Simmental female, and the calf champion at the 1999 Houston, Texas Livestock Show and Rodeo. They also won at the Simmental Sweepstakes Show in July 1999 in Louisville, Ky., picking up reserve intermediate champion female.

Why Simmentals?

About five years ago Tim fell in love with a black and white Simmental calf named Rachel, who they purchased, along with three other heifers, from breeder Clarence Burkholder. This was the beginning of the S&S Simmental herd.

Tim, 16, is a sophomore at Elco. Tim, who plans a career in livestock management, spends a great deal of time speaking with those involved in the Simmental breed, surfing the Internet and reading up on the latest Simmental genetics.

Tim, Elco FFA reporter and Lebanon County 4-H member, said his favorite show is the North American International Livestock Expo. The event, conducted in Louisville, Ky. every November, brings together breeders from all over the country.

Simmentals have been one of the largest exhibited breeds at this show, Tim noted.

"It's a nice place," he said. "The facilities are beautiful and everybody enjoys the show."

Though it sometimes can be a long 10 days of events, leaving exhibitors exhausted, Tim speaks highly of the show.

People "are beginning to notice us," said Tim. The family-run operation, S&S Simmentals, is picking up recognition all over the country.

Paul points out that Tim's almost unbridled enthusiasm for the breed is the reason they started. Paul spent time showing Quarter Horses all around the country, including three years in Oklahoma City and other nationwide events.

Tim began to pick up knowledge of the breed, said Tim's mother, Tracy. She said that Tim spends time on the Internet keeping in touch with breeders and companies about the latest breed information.

"We see breeders all over the country, including Louisville, Kentucky, and at the Eastern Nationals in Timonium, the Farm Show, Denver, Houston, and Kansas City," said Paul.

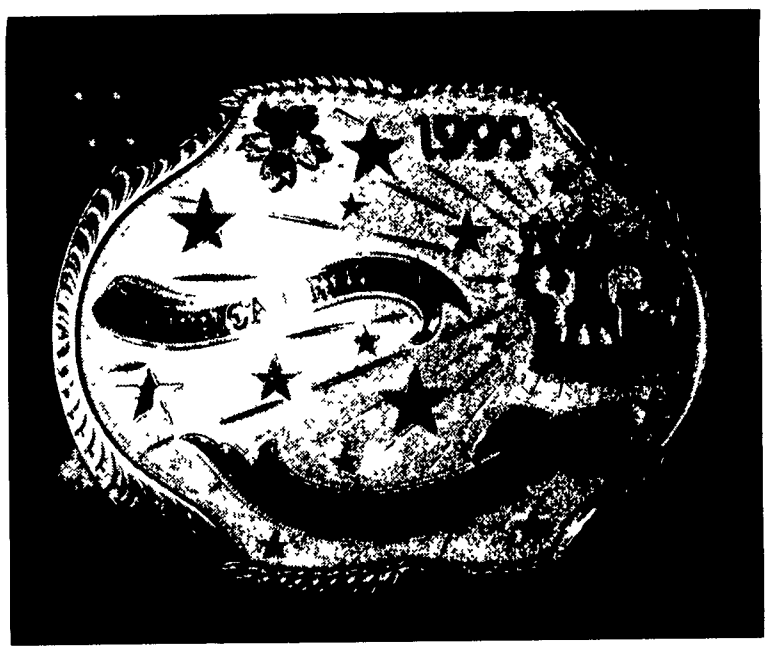
When the family is at shows, Tim tries to meet as many other breeders as he can. Tim, said Tracy, "likes to go up and down the aisles and study the competition."

At the Eastern Regional Junior Simmental Show in Timonium, Md., the Schaeffers had all three of their heifers in the top 10, with one being the reserve grand champion. The Schaeffers competed with exhibitors from Pennsylvania and 14 other states.

This year, the regionals are scheduled in Lebanon, Ohio, June 13-17.

The Junior National Simmental Show is being conducted this year in Stillwater, Okla., from July 17-21. The show includes Simmentals and Simbrahs (Simmental and Brahman crossbreds).

(Turn to Page A34)



The American Royal was a great honor for the Schaeffer family. They were presented with this solid silver belt buckle with rubies as champions at the 100th anniversary show. "It's an extreme honor that we'll always remember and cherish," said Paul.

National Dairy Shrine Announces New Scholarship Opportunities

COLUMBUS, Ohio — National Dairy Shrine is pleased to announce two new scholarship categories. The recently announced opportunities include a Kildee Scholarship and a co-sponsorship of three candidates to attend the next young Dairy Leaders Institute.

The Kildee Scholarship was established by the National Dairy Shrine in honor of H.H. Kildee, an outstanding judge of dairy cattle and a strong supporter of student judging programs and activities. The top 25 individuals in either the National FFA or National 4-H Judging Contest (1999 and subsequent contests) are eligible to apply. Applicants must be at least a junior in college and working toward a bachelor of science degree in dairy or animal science, or have a major emphasis on dairy through another major.

The scholarship is awarded on the basis of leadership, participation, teamwork and accomplishment within the dairy industry. The winner will receive a $2,000 scholarship to be used to meet financial obligations at the school of his or her choice. The chosen scholarship recipient will be recognized at the National Dairy Choice Awards Banquet in October during the World Dairy Expo.

In addition to the new scholarship, the National Dairy Shrine is pleased to announce its joint efforts with the Holstein Foundation to co-sponsor three participants at the next Young Dairy Leaders Institute.

Applications will be mailed to the top five individuals from the past 10 National Dairy Shrine Student Recognition Contests. The Holstein Foundation will choose the three candidates from all the applicants.

"These opportunities reiterate National Dairy Shrine's commitment to recognize and reward outstanding individuals (young and old) in the dairy industry," said Maurice Core, executive director of the National Dairy Shrine.

For more information on these opportunities or to receive a Kildee Scholarship application, contact Maurice Core at National Dairy Shrine (614) 878-5333.

Besides honoring Hilbert, the association also made a special presentation to Adams County Commissioner Harry Stokes. Stokes gratefully received the final installment a $10,000 pledge made by the association toward the cost of Adams County's new ag building which is expected to be ready for occupancy the end of May. Jim Delaplaine, the vice-president of the association said the association had made the single largest donation to the ag center.

Other highlights of the evening included the traditional parade of bulls, naming the Adams County Beef Queen and Princess and giving out awards.

In the awards category: Travis Sherman received the Environmental Stewardship award for conservation practices on the farm he operates with his wife Christine in Wellsville. Ray and Mary Grimes were given the 1999 member recognition award for their years of dedication to the beef industry.

Allyson Cole, Miranda Leese, Jessi Leister and B.J. Wagner were named recipients of the Academic Achievement Awards for 2000. Each one will receive a check for $600 at the beginning of the school year.

Candice Flickinger of Biglerville was chosen the beef queen and Stacy Menchey of Littlestown was chosen as beef princess.

Silent Auction Set For Pasto Museum

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) - To help preserve agricultures rich heritage for future generations, the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State University will hold a silent auction of donated items at the 2000 Ag Progress Days. The proceeds from this first-time auction will benefit the Penn State Ag Alumni Endowment for the Pasto Agricultural Museum.

We are inviting you to donate an item that will pique the interest of the events visitors and guests, said Darwin Braund, Pasto Agricultural Museum curator. Income from this Endowment helps pay for the repair and restoration of donated items and part-time office assistance to help with inventory records, correspondence, and scheduling tours and guides.

Penn States College of Agricultural Sciences has provided significant financial and personnel support for the establishment and growth of the Pasto Agricultural Museum. Also, the Colleges Alumni Society has established an endowment for the museum. The museum has been and continues to be operated by a volunteer curator and a dedicated group of volunteer guides.

Now the museums volunteers have been challenged to expand the endowment fund so that its income will cover most of the costs for the museum. Thus the idea for a silent auction at Ag Progress Days was born.

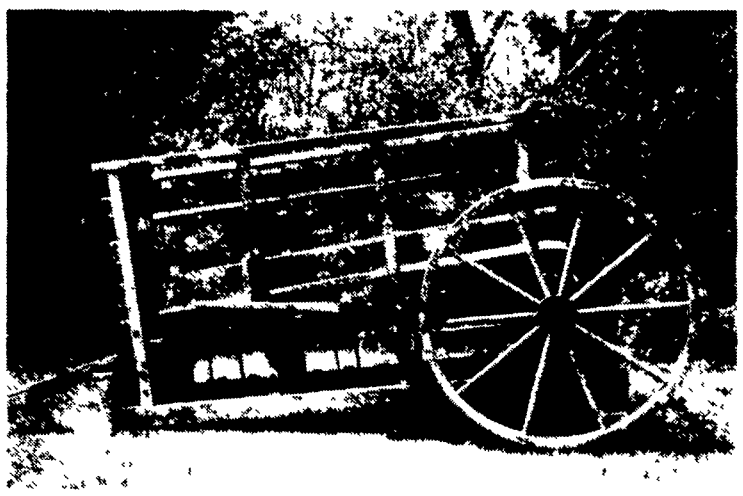
Heres how it works. Select an item you would like to donate. Donation suggestions include such items as antiques, dairy ivestock feeds, discount coupons on lawn/garden/farm tractors and equipment, travel tour packages, theatre, sports tickets, catered meals, gift/food packages, vacation time share, weekend bed and breakfast accommodations, animal health products, crop protection products and services, or wood carvings/h and-crafted items. Then complete the accompanying application and send it to the museum office. You will be notified later when and where to send the item. A listing of auction items with descriptions, estimated values, and donors names will be compiled in a catalogue.

Auction items will be on display Tuesday and Wednesday, August 15 & 16, 2000, at Ag Progress Days. Bidding will close promptly at 6 p.m. on Wednesday. Successful bidders will pick up their items after payment is processed Wednesday evening or will make arrangements for shipping.

The deadline for your donated item(s) to be included in the auction catalogue is June 1, 2000. The earlier they receive your item donation form, the better they can promote the auction. Items from individuals should have a minimum value of $50 and from companies, a $100 value. If you have questions, call the museum office at 814-863-1383.

Before restoration, this grain thresher was found at a Juniata County auction. The early 1870's model consists of the forward threshing cylinder section and the new "winnower" back section, joined together by clamps. It demonstrates technological advancement by combining both the threshing and winnowing (grain separation) operations in one machine. Schaeffer, Merkle & Co., in Fleetwood, Berks County, made the machine. Darwin Braund, curator, bought this piece and donated it to the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State University.

After restoration, the one-horse tread power 'The Buckwalter Champion' thresher by Schaeffer, Merkle & Co., as exhibited in the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State University.



Before restoration this one-horse tread power made in the 1870's was found at a Juniata County auction. Schaeffer, Merkle & Co. at Fleetwood manufactured 'The Buckwalter Champion,' The wood drive wheel is 53 inches in diameter. The tread power was bought and donated to the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State University by Darwin Braund, curator.

After restoration, here is "The King" thresher, manufactured by Schaeffer, Merkle & Co., as exhibited in the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State University.

First Silent Auction

continue in some way, noted Barbara Wiand, new PPPC president from Mifflinburg.

Wiand operates Wiand Enterprises, a 300-sow farrow-to-finish herd in Union County.

Wiand, with help from husband Glenn, sons Justin, 7, and Michael, 5, and two full-time employees, produces about 7,000 feeder pigs per year. While a small percentage of these pigs get marketed as show pigs and breeding stock, the majority of the pigs are finished and marketed to Hatfield and Leidy's.

Wiand strives to use the best combination of genetic lines to produce hogs that not only grow fast, but also cut well for the packers. Yorkshires, Durocs, and Hampshires are utilized in the breeding program. Wiand uses AI, strict biosecurity, and phase feeding to produce high quality hogs.

Her husband manages Wiand Farms, a 1,300-acre cropland and feed enterprise.

Wiand began in the hog business in 1989 after working for several years as a critical care nurse. She decided that, to raise a family, staying home on the farm would be the right thing to do.

Her two sons, Justin and Michael, don't have any major responsibilities on the farm yet, though they enjoy feeding the sows and helping load market hogs, Wiand noted.

During the great hog depression of 1998-1999, Wiand knows many producers, with old facilities and difficulty securing a market for their hogs, went out of business.

The big challenge facing producers is the pork checkoff referendum directed by Ag Secretary Dan Glickman (see the story on page A34 of the March 11 Lancaster Farming.) A referendum, noted Wiand, is scheduled sometime in the late summer or early fall this year.

Producers can decide to keep the checkoff, important to helping educate producers and consumers about pork, or get rid of it — raising questions about how educational and promotional programs for pork nationwide will continue.

But the state Keystone Pork Expo, conducted every year at the Lebanon Fairgrounds in mid-February, will continue.

"We've had that for many, many years," Wiand said. At the Expo, pork producers can learn about the latest products and management techniques.

"I think it would continue — perhaps in a different form or different place, no matter what," she said.

The large vertical integrators have done a lot to promote their own pork and funded pork research. Millions of dollars have gone privately to managing PRV and other swine diseases.

Despite the anticipated changes because of the referendum, pork producers don't have to feel glum.

"There are some major things coming down the pike," said Wiand. One direction the PPPC wants to go: increase discussions with packers.

One initiative under review, Wiand said, is a national cooperative of producers that will focus on marketing as well as production. The cooperative, named Pork America, could serve to unite packers and producers.

And soon, the state will be close to complete eradication of the pseudorabies virus (PRV).

The state is already at Level IV of the PRV eradication program, with only several monitored herds left.

"We are moving close to complete eradication," said Wiand.

"This is exciting news. Many people have worked diligently to get to this point."

As for complete eradication of PRV, "we are getting very close, very close," she said.

In addition to the PRV program, Pennsylvania pork producers have also been very active in the Pork Quality Assurance(PQA) certification program and the On-Farm Odor/Environmental Assistance Program. Pennsylvania has been recognized by NPPC for having one of the highest participation levels in the U.S., Wiand noted.

Pork futures prices, said Wiand, are approaching $56 per hundredweight for June futures.

She has seen increased expansion when prices rebounded so well in the past, which could leave room for another potential market price dip. People, said Wiand, are "gun-shy" about expansion, in light of what happened to the pork prices in 1998-1999.

Many of those producers are not coming back to the business.

A new and exciting development, Wiand noted, is the Penn State "Environmental Standards of Production for Larger Pork Producers In Pennsylvania" publication in addition to a new "Environmental Certification Course For Livestock Producers," to be offered at the local level. The course is being coordinated by Ken Kephart, Penn State swine specialist, with the help from local extension and industry.

The course will provide environmental awareness, nutrient management, odor control, and an overview of regulations for the pork producer, noted Kephart. The course has received funding from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Conservation Commission.

The course uses the environmental education and a best management practices manual for producers.

Preliminary work is under way on using the course component along with information on producers' nutrient management and conservation plans to actually place a label on all products leaving the plant with an "environmental label," said Kephart. The message of the label will convey to the consumer that the pork produced meets industry standard environmental quality guidelines.

Wiand began her career after "retiring" as a critical care nurse from the Evangelical Hospital in Lewisburg. She produced 4-H swine show projects when she was a child and exhibited projects at local fairs and the Farm Show. Her family cared for a few sows. Wiand enjoyed the experience so much she decided that, when it came time to raise a family, she would include her own children.

Wiand was selected Pork All-American and will receive the award at the World Pork Expo in Indianapolis, Ind., June 8-10.

Farm Bureau Calls For Drought Aid Legislation

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is calling for passage of legislation which will enable all of the drought assistance provided by the General Assembly to be distributed to Pennsylvania farmers.

"As it stands now, farmers who suffered losses during last year's terrible drought will only receive about one-third of the available state aid," said Guy Donaldson, president of the statewide farm organization. "Even though there is a great need, the rest will go back to the state treasury at the end of the year unless the program can be changed."

Crop losses in Pennsylvania because of last year's drought have been estimated at between $500 million and $700 million. The General Assembly last December provided $60 million for drought relief with the stipulation that payments to individual producers would be limited to no more than 75 percent of federal disaster assistance.

"Congress had approved $1.2 billion for a variety of weather disasters which occurred around the country last year including severe hurricane damage in the South," recalled Donaldson. "At the time it was believed Pennsylvania farmers' share of the federal aid would total $75 million, so the 75 percent cap on state aid seemed to be justified."

The signup for federal and state disaster aid took place over the winter months. About 7,000 Pennsylvania farmers applied for and received drought assistance. "Now with the sign-ups completed and applications processed around the country, it appears that Pennsylvania farmers' share of the available federal aid will only total about $31 million," said Donaldson. "The 75 percent limit on state drought relief will reduce state assistance to about $23 million — roughly one-third of the funds appropriated by the General Assembly. Unless something is done, the unused money will be returned to the state General Fund at the end of the year."

Legislation has been introduced to remove the 75 percent limit on individual drought assistance payments. H.B. 2467, introduced by House Agriculture Committee chairman Rep. Ray Bunt, has been reported out of that committee. Likewise, S.B. 1417, introduced by Senate Agriculture Committee chairman Sen. William Slocum, has been approved by that committee. The bills would prorate the unused funds among eligible farmers, so that all $60 million in state drought assistance is distributed.

Milk Marketing Board Conducting Hearing

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On May 3, the Milk Marketing Board will conduct a public hearing for Milk Marketing Areas 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony and exhibits concerning whether an adjustment should be made to the level of the current over-order premium ($1.20 per hundred pounds of Class I milk) that is due to expire on June 30.

The board members stressed that this hearing will not affect the $.25 per 100 pounds of Class I milk that was added to the current over-order premium to help offset the increase in fuel costs.

The hearing will be held at 10 a.m., in Room 202 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg. If you plan to attend the hearing and would like to interview the board members, please contact Tracey Jackson prior to the hearing.

SYNCHRONIZATION COSTS

There are many products on the market now that can help synchronize estrus in beef cows. Purebred cattle breeders have been using these tools for a number of years because of the need to produce calves from AI sires. However, commercial beef breeders have in made increasing use of these tools for the following reasons:

1. The calving period can be reduced because more cows are bred in a smaller window of time. This certainly increases the probability of better calving management.

2. Replacement heifers can be produced from outstanding cows using AI sires that are selected for maternal traits.

3. There can be greater productivity of the calf crop because selection of AI sires with genetic potential for growth will usually exceed the ability of individually-owned bulls.

4. An effective crossbreeding system can be maintained by using bulls of one breed through AI, and natural matings from a bull of another breed.

There are, of course, costs associated with synchronization programs. The following information will outline some of those costs for four selected synchronization programs. Contact your county extension agent or AI representative for the details of using each of these systems.

Assumed costs: Please recall these costs will be different for any given producer. They are intended as a guide to use for comparison. Be sure to determine all of the actual costs for your program.

1 Semen costs	$15 00/straw
2 prostaglandin shot	$3.50 ea
3 GNRH shot	$4 40 ea
4 breeder/technician	$5 00 per cow
5 handling costs (per trip through chute)	$1 00 per cow
6. heat check charge (6 hr/day X $10 00/hr for 30 cows)	$ 20 per cow per day
7. MGA-containing feed ($ 50/hd/day for 14 days)	$7.00 per cow
8 Value of additional weight of feeder calves	$.70 per pound

total	19 10
breakeven weight increase ($19 10/$ 70 per lb.)	27 lbs
Estimated success of AI pregnancies	50%
Cost per cow for each AI-sired calf	38 20

System 2 . Double Prostaglandin (PGF)

	Dollars per head
2 PGF	7 00
2 8 chute trips (80% of treated cows AI'd)	2 80
semen cost	12 00
10 days heat check	2 00
breeder/technician charge	4 00
total	25 80
breakeven weight increase ($24 80/$ 70 per lb)	37 lbs
Estimated success of AI pregnancies	60%
Cost per cow for each AI-sired calf	43 00

System 3 MGA/ Prostaglandin System

	Dollars per head
1 PGF	3 50

total	28 30
breakeven weight increase ($28.30/$.70 per lb.)	40 lbs.
Estimated success of AI pregnancies	60%
Cost per cow for each AI-sired calf	47.16

Again, recall these values will be different (drugs, labor, and/or success rates) based on many factors including such things as cow condition, heat detection experience, breeder/technician expertise, the weather, and other intangibles. However, it is clear a synchronization program will cost about $30 per cow, and the value of the AI-sired calf must be about $50 greater to make these programs pay for themselves. In many cases this will be a good investment, particularly when replacement heifers are being produced. It's also clear that experience, good management, the availability of qualified AI technicians, and good handling facilities are necessary for success.

Statewide Search Begins For Biggest Trees In Pa.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Where are the biggest trees in Pennsylvania?

A championship elm has been found in a park in Pittsburgh, and an enormous yellow-poplar, standing 136 feet tall, was found in Delaware County, outside of Philadelphia.

All across Pennsylvania residents are being asked by The Pennsylvania Forestry Association (PFA) to help locate the biggest and best trees in the state.

The search for the best specimens of Pennsylvania's native trees last took place in 1993, and since then many of the big trees have died, lost limbs or been surpassed by other trees. Now, at the beginning of a new century, PFA is reevaluating and compiling data on prospective grand champion trees and asking all Pennsylvanians to get involved. Photos and information on each championship tree will be published in PFA's millennium edition of the book, "Pennsylvania's Big Trees."

From Abies (fir) to Ulmus (elm), nominating information, instructions, and facts about past champions can be obtained by calling (800) 835-8065. Nominations are sought for each of the 106 native tree species in Pennsylvania. The champion trees are each determined by a three-measurement point sytem based on the circumference, height, and average crown spread. Every nominated tree will be evaluated by a professional forester who will determine the amount of points the tree receives.

Seven years ago, the largest tree of any species was recorded in Pennsylvania in Franklin County. The tree, a huge sycamore, stood 102 feet tall with a circumference of 31 feet 1 inch, totaling 506 points. Nine of the "Big Trees of Pennsylvania" are national champions as well as state champions. The tallest of these, a balsam fir located in Adams County in 1993, stood 166 feet tall.

"There's no telling where the grand champion tree in Pennsylvania will be found," said Scott Kurtzman, president of PFA.

"Over the years, the 'Big Trees of Pennsylvania' has encouraged the interest and involvement of Pennsylvania residents from all over the state to appreciate the historic aesthetic and preservation value of the big trees of Pennsylvania," Kurtzman said.

For more information on the Big Tree Contest and how to register your big tree, call (800) 835-8065. For more information about PFA, visit The Pennsylvania Forestry Association on the web at www.paforests.org or call (800) 835-8065.

Community-Based Farm Brings Farmers And Consumers Together

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Many farmers today are frustrated by the middleman. David and Peggy Fogarty-Harnish found a way to avoid the middleman and give consumers what they want for a reasonable price.

David and Peggy farm Scarecrow Hill Community Farm, a 22-acre farm owned by two neighbors in Ephrata. Scarecrow Hill will be hosting an Open Farm Tour on Saturday, May 6, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Scarecrow Hill Community Farm is one of about 1,000 community-based farms in the United States. Local community members join the farm as shareholders and then enjoy fresh, organically grown produce during the 25-week harvest season.

"Basically, the community is paying us to manage everyone's garden for them," said Peggy. "It is very different from traditional farming. We ask our members for input, and then we plant based on what they want to eat."

The Scarecrow Hill Community Farm is now in its second year of production. About five acres of the 22-acre farm are used for produce. But David and Peggy are hoping to eventually expand so that all 22 acres are in organic production.

"We're not certified organic yet," said Peggy. "It will take three years. During that time, we have to do everything as if we were certified in order to become certified organic."

David and Peggy use no chemicals on the land, and they use smaller equipment and hand labor in order to avoid compaction. "There is a lot more labor involved in organic farming," said Peggy. "But we don't have the high expenses for chemicals and equipment."

Organic food often costs more in the grocery store than traditionally grown food. But, according to Peggy, their food costs consumers about the same as traditional food because they eliminate the middleman.

Although organic farming is much more labor intensive than traditional farming, David and Peggy have lower input costs. They also have little to no debt because of the shareholders' investments.

David and Peggy Fogarty-Harnish started the Scarecrow Hill Community Farm to give people in the community what they wanted at a reasonable price. Currently the farm has 40 people signed up as shareholders.

"Our goal is to provide locally-grown organic food to the community at a reasonable price," said Peggy. "If you take away the middleman, the farmer does better and the consumer does better.

According to Peggy, people are drawn to a community-based farm because it is organic. "I don't know how well the farm would do if it wasn't organic."

About 40 families have already signed up as shareholders of Scarecrow Hill Community Farm. David and Peggy are looking for about 35 more. The shareholders pay a share price in the beginning of the season, which is personalized to their family's diet, income, and involvement in the farm.

"We don't have to put out a huge investment or have a lot of debt because we can use the shareholders' contributions as start-up money for each season," said Peggy.

Shareholders are also expected to help on the farm for at least 12 hours each year unless they plan to harvest their own produce.

"Some of them work in the gardens, but others do administration work," said Peggy. "We also have some that specialize in certain skills, such as painting or carpentry, who use those skills around the farm."

Those who are elderly or disabled are not required to work on the farm. "We have many shareholders who have health problems who want to eat organically-grown foods to help their bodies," said Peggy.

David and Peggy grow about 30 different vegetables, along with fruit, herbs, and flowers, on the Scarecrow Hill Community Farm.

"Since we grow so many different types of crops, planting and harvesting are somewhat complicated," said Peggy. "We

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

The Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders recently held its annual convention at the Bedford Arena and county fairgrounds.

It's been many years since President Jim Trotter first held the annual banquet at the arena followed by the sale at the fairgrounds.

"The arena and fairgrounds are ideal spots," said Trotter. "Besides, Bedford County has many fine Guernsey breeders."

Among those is Berneta Gable, who was recently named Dairy Woman of the World. Berneta and her husband, Bradley, are the owners of Sniders Guernsey Farms in New Enterprise.

With the Gables never failing to capture several Guernsey awards, Berneta's son won the Sewickley Trophy for being named champion of the youth show at the 2000 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Snider Homestead Farms won the John Brachman Award, and Jan Snider, Berneta's newphew, took home the George W. Snyder Award for being champion at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show.

Allen Smith, who with his wife, Irene, owns Turkey Valley Farm in Hollidaysburg, received the Pennsylvania Walk of Fame Award. Now age 78, Allen was born on the Turkey Valley Farm and farmed until four years ago when a "bum" leg forced him to retire.

The Smiths own a large herd of registered Guernseys, Belgian horses, and Black Angus cattle. They have two daughters, Shelva, who lives at home, and Sharon Sollenberger, wife of Wayne. They also have grand children, including Wayne, Mark, Melissa, and Michelle.

Production awards included high herd for 1999, which went to Rutters Brothers with 25 cows at 19,838 milk, 856 fat, and 686 protein; high cow for milk and fat, which went to Sniders Perfecto Kendra with 25,610 pounds milk, 1,107 fat, and 833 protein, and high cow for protein, which was Paradise Acres Forestar Tara with 24,322 milk, 1,063 fat, and 878 protein.

The Mercer-Northwest Guernsey breeders attending the annual Pennsylvania Guernsey Convention included Marlyn Hill, Paul Aiken, Lena Aiken, Angela Blake, John Kunz, Cindi Kunz, Kellie Kunz, Jessica Kunz, Joyce Smith, Carriek Smith, Emilie Smith, Paul Aiken, Nora Aiken, Connie White, Ron White, Ryan White, Wesley Aiken, Betty Aiken, Matthew Aiken, David Aiken, Carol Aiken, and Lena Aiken.

Farmers Have Say In Conestoga Valley Region Plans

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Various development projects throughout the state occur without much input from the communities that they affect.

Farmers in Cumberland County are frustrated by a plan to add a proposed Exit 7 to Route 81, which would condemn farmland without consent from the Ag Security Board. Other farmers are combating development and road expansions that limit their ability to farm.

However, farmers in the Conestoga Valley region of Lancaster County have the opportunity to be involved in development plans from the ground up.

The Conestoga Valley strategic comprehensive plan is a new approach to community planning for Lancaster County and the southcentral Pennsylvania region. The process takes about 18 months and involves the entire community.

"Traditionally the planning consultant would have drawn up the plan and then let the community respond," said Cheryn Fogarty, the project manager for Community Planning Consultants, Inc., a group contracted by the Lancaster County Board of Commissioners to facilitate the process. "In this approach, the community is more in the driver's seat. Public involvement is integrated throughout the entire process."

On Tuesday evening at the Upper Leacock Municipal Building, the Community Planning Consultants hosted the third of four focus groups, in which community members, including farmers, could discuss what they want to see in the future of their community.

About 30 people attended the focus group, which was phase I in the community-based planning process. The goal of the focus groups is for the planning commission to gain a better understanding of what community members want.

Those who attended the focus groups were asked three questions — what do you like most about your community, what do you like least about your community, and what would you like this plan to do.

"The focus groups really established the issues that the community members have," said Fogarty. "The discussions have been about the character of the community. The people attending the meetings value their farmland and small villages. They also have issues with Route 23 traffic that threatens those values."

While the phase I focus groups are occurring, Fogarty and her colleagues are also developing background profiles on the area's land use, transportation, environment, and community services.

"We want to determine where the area is heading and what the probable future is," said Fogarty. "Then, in September, we will host a regional forum where we can present our findings from the focus groups and find out from the community what is acceptable and not acceptable in the plans."

The regional forum will also be an interactive event for people living in the Conestoga Valley region, which includes Upper Leacock, West Earl, and East Lampeter townships.

Based on the feedback from the regional forum, Fogarty and her colleagues will then move into phase III of the process, which involves developing strategies at the regional level regarding land use, roads, water, sewer, and other development issues.

Phase IV is when they prepare the policy plan, which shows community members what will get them to where they want to be. Phase V will be when the action plan is formulated, and phase VI is when the community will adopt the plan.

"This plan will set the direction for the next 20 years in this community," said Fogarty. "We're modeling the Conestoga Valley region process after the plan we just finished in the Warwick/Lititz area."

According to Fogarty, the community approach to planning was very successful for the Warwick/Lititz area.

"We got a fantastic response from the community on the plan," said Fogarty. "17 out of the 34 strategies outlined in the plan have already been adopted by the community."

"It's a new approach for Lancaster County," she said. "But it really brings into partnership the community, the consultants, and the planning commission. Community members will play a key role in the future of their region."

harvest twice a week. We stagger our planting so we are harvesting throughout the summer."

David and Peggy hope to expand their business to offer other organically grown foods to their shareholders and customers. On their farm, they are currently offering naturally raised chicken and eggs from Philip Landis in Ephrata and organic milk and juice products from Natural By Nature of West Grove.

"We want to provide a place for other farmers to direct market their products to customers," said Peggy. "We are hosting an organic cooperative so that members can have access to most of the products they need."

In addition to the produce and crops on their farm, Peggy and David currently offer home-raised honey and are hoping to soon offer bread.

"We are looking for other organic farmers who are interested in direct marketing," said Peggy. "They could do that here."

David is the 10th generation to farm in Lancaster County. Having a background in community building, Peggy helped with community gardening projects in Costa Rica. Both Peggy and David completed internships on other organic farms.

"We had the idea to develop a community-based farm before we moved to this area," said Peggy. "We completed an internship on Spiral Path Farm in Perry County, which stimulated the idea of starting something similar to Spiral Path in the Ephrata area."

"It's very difficult to find organic foods in this area," said Peggy. "We're hoping to give our customers what they want while building a strong sense of community among the shareholders and the farmers."

Western Spring Spectacular Featured 53 Lots

SANDY BRADLEY
Mercer Co. Correspondent

GROVE CITY (Mercer Co.) - The Mercer County Holstein Club recently hosted its Western Pennsylvania Spring Spectacular at the Mercer County 4-H Park in Grove City.

The 21st annual event, a Holstein auction designed to benefit buyers as well as sellers, attracted a crowd of more than 250. Fifty-three animals were sold.

The top-selling animal, a fresh two-year-old Lindy daughter from eight generations of excellence, sold for $4,050 to Bill Casper of Carrollton, OH.

Dean Kind of Slippery Rock consigned the cow, whose pedigree can be traced to the Gray View Farms Crissy cow family of the early 1960s.

The second high-selling cow was a fresh Jolt two-year-old consigned by Ron and Eleanor Kalinowski from Cochranton. The cow's dam was a GP-84 Melwood with more than 33,000 milk, 1,158 fat, and 979 protein. The animal sold for $2450 to Jeff and Susan McFarland of New Wilmington. As the auction's volume buyers, the McFarlands spent more than $10,000 for a total of five fresh cows. Cows in the sale averaged $2,135.

The top bred heifer, an Adonis cow, was sold for $1,650 by Ken Challener of Meadville to Robert Shine of Jamestown. Bred heifers averaged $1,387.

Yearlings averaged $1,030. March 2000 calves averaged $475, December '99 calves averaged $635, September '99 calves averaged $725, and the June '99 yearlings averaged $850. Top calves included a September '99 Tesk Terry consigned by Ransom and Kathy Riedel of Corry.

While the annual sale provided a service to farmers looking to expand or reduce their herds, said sale chairman Jim Bates, it also offered a service to local kids by featuring a number of calves that were suitable for 4-H and other show projects. The auction offered a five-percent discount on animals born after June that would be used by kids for show, said Bates.

In addition to the annual sale discounts, said Bates, the Holstein club participates in a number of other youth-oriented causes. In addition to giving to the Les Firth memorial scholarship fund, which is awarded to students attending Penn State, each season the club provides plaques to all Mercer County 4-H kids who show Holsteins. The club also presents kids who show with gifts such as grooming equipment or halters. Because sales and sponsorship, said Bates, profits from this year's event will be put toward future community giving projects.

The Mercer County Holstein Club has existed for more than 40 years and has between 50 and 60 members.

Bill Casper of Hycrest Farms in Carrollton, OH with sons Clint and Codi purchased the top selling cow at the sale.

Allied Milk Producers Celebrate 50th Anniversary

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — The Allied Milk Producers' Cooperative recently held its 50th annual meeting at the Masonic Temple in Johnstown.

John Strittmatter, who served as Allied's first president for 15 years, spoke about Allied's many accomplishments. "Fifty years ago we did not want to build a costly cooperative," said Strittmatter. "And Allied maintains that standard today. Our cooperative has been a success."

Dave Myers, Allied's current president agreed with Strittmatter.

"50 years is a milestone," said Myers. "The organization is sound, and the income is up. We have a very dedicated board that oversees the money and spends considerable time each month making decisions on promotions."

Reaching more school children with dairy promotion continues to be a priority for Allied. The cooperative strongly supports the dairy princess programs in the counties of its members. It also sponsors "Ag In The Classroom" workshops for school teachers.

Dorthy Naugle, the dairy marketing specialist for Allied is often on the road. She assists local dairy promotion committees with materials and supplies, in addition to working with various dairy princess.

John Strittmatter, the first president of Allied Milk Producers' Cooperative who served for 15 years, joined current Allied President Dave Myers at the 50th anniversary of the cooperative.

Radio advertising claims the largest portion of Allied's promotion funds, with billboards getting the second largest share. The rest of the funds are disbursed into materials, local promotions, state and local dairy princess programs, education, research, and other items.

Allied also sponsors a little red traveling barn, which houses an ice cream stand. The barn continues to be in demand. Last year it was used by 18 groups, including a service organization that sponsors a 5,000-egg Easter egg hunt for kids in the Somerset area.

Naugle also reported that 58 groups or individuals used Allied's soft-serve machines last year.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Lori Connelly spoke during the meeting and expressed her belief that innovative thinking and progressive ideas are the springboard for promotion efforts.

"Sometimes we fail to get 'real' in the dairy industry." said Lori. "We have an image to change and a public to educate. Promotion is a valuable tool."

Connelly stressed that without new ideas, misconceptions about the dairy industry will never be eradicated.

The cooperative also recognized other members of the central board, including Fred Shankle, vice-president; Lowell Friedline, secretary; Janice Itle, treasurer; Richard Kaufman, Jr.; and James

EPB has changed over the years - our main lobby, for example - but we will never change our dedication to the principles that have helped us and our customers achieve sound, steady growth

Is your business big enough?

Bigger isn't always better, in farming or in any other business. But there are times when it makes sense to enlarge, remodel or update.

If you need several million dollars for your farm expansion, The Ephrata National Bank is probably not your bank. And that is fine with us. Our ag lending policies have always been geared to the small to medium sized operator. In over 100 years of serving consumers, farmers and other businesses in our communities, we have found that well-planned, sensible growth is always better than growth for the sake of growth.

Many of your neighbors have come to appreciate our approach to ag lending. Just ask them about us. They're easy to find. They tend to smile a lot. Bob Zook million head, 57,000 head more than a year ago and 4,000 head more than a month ago.

So where is all this extra milk coming from? Surprisingly, just about everywhere. In the west, milk production is up as follows: California (4.5 percent), Idaho (12.7 percent), and New Mexico (11.5 percent). In the Cornbelt, Indiana was up a whopping 13.3 percent. In the Appalachian region Kentucky was up 4.0 percent and Virginia was up 4.9 percent. In the Northeast, Pennsylvania was up 4.2 percent and Vermont was up 4.3 percent

The outlook for milk prices will continue to remain bearish (pessimistic) until the number of cows on farms, and the milk supply, begins to decline. The market will be looking for growth rates in the 2-2 5 percent rate

In the second market report, USDA reported Thursday that stocks of American cheese as of March 31, 2000 were 530 2 million pounds, up 13 4 percent from a year ago. And stocks of total cheese were 727 3 million pounds, up 12 7 percent. Cheese stocks continue to grow month-over-month and year-over-year. Butter stocks also grew in March from the month before, totaling 97.2 million pounds. But that's 10.4 percent below a year ago. Sales of butter must have been very good the first quarter of 2000.

I re-estimated my forecast of milk prices for the remainder of 2000. Those forecasts are in tables 2-4 below. I have reduced the peak Class III price from over $13 per cwt to just over $12.50 per cwt in September and October. My 2000 forecast for the average Class III price will be just $10.90 per cwt, compared to $12.43 the year before.

I would not be surprised if my forecast for the second half of the year wereparticularly regarding cheese prices and the Class III price. I would expect higher prices if 1) the economy continues to improve, 2) cow numbers begin to level off and decline, and 3) the summer heat and dry weather slows the growth in the milk supply.

New Mid-Mount Loader For TL Tractors

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) – A New Holland TL tractor (56 to 82 PTO hp) with a Model 52LA loader is an ideal combination for loader work. Short cycle times and a 76-degree dump angle and maximum lift height of more than 11 feet helps make quick work of big jobs.

The Model 52LA fits all New Holland TL tractors. A TL tractor can be equipped with optional dedicated mid-mount remotes and four-way joystick to simplify loader work and leave the rear remotes free to handle other functions such as baling, rear blading, or mowing. With the optional mid-mount remotes, the loader can be attached or removed in just minutes.

The 52LA loader features a low, narrow profile for oustanding visibility and excellent fit to the tractor. The mid-mount design allows full turning, even if the tractor is equipped with fenders. The mid-mount design also improves serviceability by eliminating the need for bulky bracing at the front of the tractor. Optional mechanical self-leveling reduces spills and optional four-bar linkage allows a bucket rollback of up to 40 degrees.

The 52LA loader is engineered with the same mounting plate used in New Holland skid-steer loaders, making many skid-steer attachments interchangeable. A full range of attachments is available specifically for these loaders, including pin-on or optional quick-attach buckets, bale spear and pallet forks.

Farm Groups Comment On USDA Meat Price Reporting

WASHINGTON—While farm groups praised it, the nation's biggest meat packers blasted the USDA's proposal for mandatory livestock price reporting saying it would be too costly.

The criticism from privately-owned Cargill Inc. and Kraft Foods, a unit of Philip Morris Co., were among the hundreds of comments in letters submitted to the USDA as it considers launching the new twice-daily reporting of prices paid to farmers and ranchers.

Small and medium-sized livestock farmers support the USDA's proposal, saying the consolidation within the livestock processing industry made it harder to gauge commodity prices.

The proposed rule came at the request of Congress after family farm groups complained they did not receive fair market prices because large companies dominate U.S. meat packing purchases. The USDA is expected to take several months to review the suggestions and criticisms before finalising a price reporting plan.

Four U.S. companies slaughter 80 percent of all fed cattle, 55 percent of all hogs and 80 percent of all lambs, according to the USDA.

The American Farm Bureau praised the proposal for taking a major step toward providing producers with useful information.

STYLES AND OPTIONS OF DAIRY FARMING, PART 1: LARGE-SCALE DAIRYING—IS IT FOR YOU?

Timothy J. Fritz
Penn State Farm Management Extension Agent
Chester And Lancaster Counties

The more I work with both successful and struggling dairies, the more I realize there are many ways to make a dairy work. It is difficult to really know if a dairy is successful by just looking at surface issues such as production statistics and the size of the dairy. Successful farms, whether they are small or large, do have some things in common.

Successful dairies:

- Meet the goals of the management.
- Have a good working environment for all involved.
- Are financially sound in respect to the goals of the owner.
- Look forward in their planning.

If you are at a crossroads or just at a Y in the road, you may want to pull off the road for a little and think about which direction you believe is right for your particular set of circumstances before heading in that direction. One family may enjoy going to the ocean for a vacation while another may prefer the mountains. The nice part about vacations, however, is that if you went down the road of an undesired vacation, the only thing lost is just your time and cost of the trip. However, a major business decision may be difficult to turn around.

Some basic financial and management ideas to keep in mind no matter what style of dairying you choose are:

- Keep capital and overhead costs low.
- Focus on the things that you are good at and make you profits.
- Stop doing the things you are weak at and are not making money on.

I recently attended a two-day workshop entitled "Dairy Works." The Dairy Works workshop is designed primarily for large farms that employ several to many employees. If you are considering expanding your herd, this workshop or a similar type is a "must" to give you a preview of what style of management it takes to run a large dairy. This workshop teaches you how to get extraordinary results from ordinary people.

If you are not a "people person," expanding into a large dairy may be a big mistake. However, if you enjoy working with people and the challenge of making a dairy work, expansion may bring you lots of enjoyment and success.

Building a large dairy gives you more responsibility and at the same time more flexibility and freedom because you now manage the people who do the tasks. If your staff is organized and working in harmony, days off and vacation can be planned for you, your family, and your employees.

There are many additional questions that should be addressed before jumping onto the expansion road. The following are a few things that you should be asking yourself, spouse, and successors:

- Is your plan profitable at low milk prices?
- Have you a complete financial analysis of various expansion proposals?
- How long will it take to pay off the capital costs of expansion?
- Do you have a organizational plan for the business?
- Do you have a labor management plan?
- Do you have an adequate land base to support the herd number?
- Will you have an adequate land base in years to come?
- If you do not have an adequate land base, can you work around the problem through marketing or processing of the manure?
- Can you work with your neighbors to build a more efficient jointly-owned dairy as opposed to you doing it alone?
- Is your current dairy location the right location or should the business be relocated?
- Will a large dairy be accepted into the local community?
- What can you do to help the community buy into your plan?
- Do you have a business transfer plan to the next generation or someone else?
- Is it time to step back from the management of the business and start transferring management decisions to the next generation?
- If you do not expand, what are your options?
- If the plan fails, what are your options?

Building a large scale dairy is not an easy task, and takes years of thorough planning. Are you up to the task of making it work?

If you feel you are up to a great challenge, then go for it, but make sure you know what you are getting into before you proceed. Also, make sure you make as many mistakes as possible on paper or computer before they are put into fresh concrete and labor.

If you are not a "people person" and think large-scale expansion is not in your best interest, then keep your eye open for part 2 of this series, "Alternatives to Large-Scale Dairying."

For more insight and guidance, contact your dairy and farm management extension agent. We can help you build a successful dairy.

Farmers Investigate On-Site Dairy Processing Operations

MARYLAND — A dozen farmers from Harford, Cecil and Baltimore counties recently toured four dairy processing operations in Pennsylvania. Accompanied by representatives from the Central Maryland Farm Credit, Harford County Agriculture Land Preservation Program, Agriculture Economic Development, the Agriculture Advisory Board and other county government officials, the group visited on-site dairy processing facilities at four farms in New Danville, Quarryville and Red Lion.

None of the approximately 42 Harford County-based dairy farms have on-site processing operations, according to County Agriculture Coordinator C. John Sullivan, III, who organized the tour.

"The farmers are interested in increasing the value of their products by adding on-site processing operations. Adding the on-site processing will also allow farmers to get closer to the consumer by eliminating the middle man," Sullivan said. "The tour this week was extremely successful. Some of the tour participants are very interested, and we learned a lot.

Farm Credit Executive Loan Officer Terry Knutsen said she was impressed by the tour.

"I thought it was excellent because it gave us a good overview of what's involved with on-site dairy processing. We saw two operations utilizing used equipment and two with new equipment," Knutsen said. "The farmers that hosted us were very willing to share with us. I came away really interested in exploring the possibility of on-site dairy processing for our farmers here."

The Schaeffers care for about 16 dams, using all AI with many embryo transplants. Some dams serve as recips for transfers.

The animals are pastured and fed hay. No TMR is used, though there are free-choice minerals available.

Special show rations are provided to the heifers. But for most cows and calves, hay and pasture is the rule.

The breed is noted for great weaning weight, good milk from the mothers, and good feed efficiency. Paul noted that one bull, born at 90 pounds, weighed 946 pounds at six months of age. "That's a tremendous rate of gain," said Schaeffer.

The family hopes to purchase a farm in the area so they can expand their beef breeding.

The farm near Myerstown totals about 42 acres, including owned and rented. Paul Schaeffer maintains a wood products business operation at the site but is limited in terms of how many animals he can stock.

Tracy said that their own breed operation is only a "small fish in a big pond" compared to the larger operations, including Leachman, headquartered in Montana, with a multihundred page catalog of available genetics. But one day the Schaeffers want to be an asset to the breed organization and provide top-quality genetics.

The Pennsylvania Simmental Association honored them with the award for their accomplishments in the show ring and with the breed. Paul credits many people who have helped them achieve so much in only five years.

Many contributed their expertise and time, besides helping fit and clip cattle, for exhibition.

Cassie said she simply enjoys working with the breed. Cassie, 17, a senior at Elco and a member of FFA and 4-H, spends much time meticulously preparing the animals for show — and her efforts paid off handsomely in several. Cassie plans to attend Penn State to study ag business.

Her brother Tim has been considering several universities, including Oklahoma State, Virginia Tech, and Purdue. He is leaning toward Virginia Tech. Tim wants to pick a college not only for its academics, but for its location to the breeders and show rings.

Paul said to be chosen family of the year by the Pennsylvania Simmental Association was a great honor.

Some don't understand what it takes, though Tim credits watching others getting "good at it, and you get to feel more comfortable" about showing, he noted, as time goes along.

Tim's ideal farm: having about 50 head of cows with at least 30 good, purebred cows. Have a few good calves and "run a lot of recips," he said.

Purchasing solid, proven genetics is the best and "quickest way," he said, to upgrade the herd. By selecting good quality female genetics and by crossing them to the right bulls, "we are starting to produce our own outstanding offspring, which will carry the S&S prefix," Paul said.

But right now, without a good farm to base the operation, "we're pushing the bubble," he said. "We can't really expand. So a bigger farm would help a lot."

No matter what, Tim believes the farm would stay strong with Simmentals and "Simmental-influenced" cattle, he said.

Simmentals, said Paul, are excellent in all areas — they have the best combination of average hair coats, average to good temperament, good mommas, and other traits.

As for the show ring, Tim noted that Cassie and he have different styles. Cassie can be "picky," he said, or very meticulous when it comes to showing a heifer. She's a perfectionist about heifer leg placement in the show ring. "She's a good showman," said Tim.

Tim, however, works closely on making sure the judge can see the heifer always and isn't as demanding of foot placement.

No matter who actually wins, if the family wins, Tim said he is satisfied. "The more shows we participate in, the better we'll get," he said.

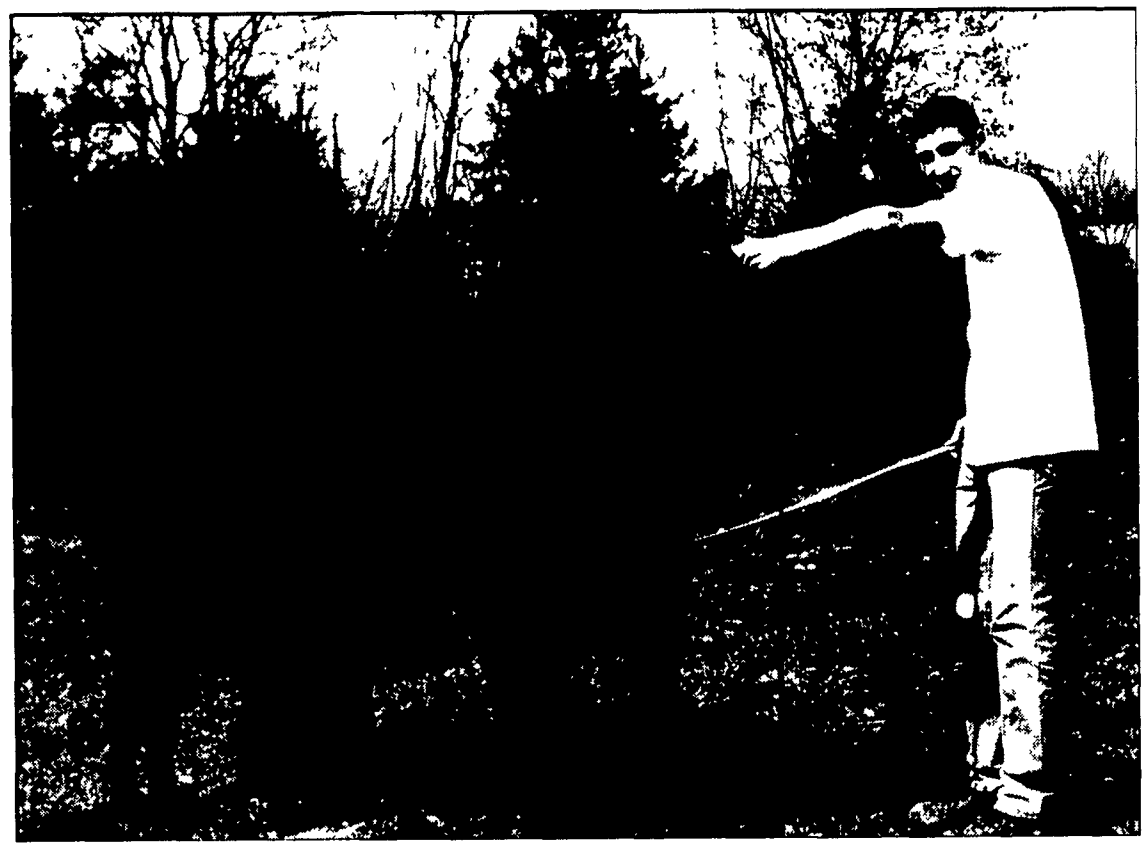
During a recent interview at the farm, Tim paraded Missy-O (War O' Fancy Pants), a 2-year-old, with her calf. Missy-O was exhibited at the Eastern Nationals, Kansas City, KILE, the Houston, Texas show, and was a class winner at the National Western show in Denver, Colo.

Missy-O, if she could produce 30 calves, would be great, according to Tim. At the first flush, there were seven freezable eggs. Buyers have already been lined up.

A judge in Kansas City called Missy-O "the best Simmental heifer walking in the pastures today," said Paul.

The American Royal was a great honor for the Schaeffer family. They were presented with the solid silver belt buckle with rubies, as champions at the 100th anniversary show.

"It's an extreme honor that we'll always remember and cherish," Paul said.



Tim with Missy-O and calf. Tim has been considering several universities, including Oklahoma State, Virginia Tech, and Purdue. He is leaning toward Virginia Tech, but wants to choose a college not only for its academics, but for its central location to the breeders and show rings. Photo by Andy Andrews

Dairylea Cooperative Launches Employment Program

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Finding and retaining quality employees has become increasingly difficult for dairy farmers during this period of low unemployment. In response to its members' concerns with the current farm labor situation, Dairylea Cooperative Inc. has launched an employment program — Agri-Placement Services (APS) — to assist farms in locating farm laborers, and custom train those workers to meet the specific needs of the farm.

"The current workforce lacks a sufficient amount of people who are willing and capable of doing farmwork, despite the industry's move toward better management practices, and increased pay and benefits," said Dairylea Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith, "With Agri-Placement Services, our intention is to bring farms and competent employees together and create a solid relationship that benefits both parties,"

APS has workers available for placement on dairy farms in May. Additionally, APS is currently handling requests for seasonal workers for the 2000 growing season.

Since many of these laborers will be new to the United States and have limited English language skills, APS will assist the farm owner and farm workers in adjusting to the new situation by providing translation services. In addition, the program will provide ongoing support, cultural and otherwise, to the farmer and worker to improve the possibility of successful long-term employment.

Those interested in more information on how APS can assist with their farm labor requirements are encouraged to contact Brandon Mallory at 1-800-654-8838, ext. 447.

Question: For a long time our bulk tank somatic cell count has stayed between 300,000 and 400,000. We have tried everything we know, but cannot make progress at lowering it. What can you suggest?

Answer: You are not alone with this type of frustration. Recently I came across data showing that there is a national upward trend in SCC. In 1996, average SCC among DHI herds across the country was 307,100 climbing to 313,500 in 1997 and 318,000 during 1998. The following is taken from a table of data and we will look at some local surrounding states.

This data suggests that what you are seeing in your herd is not out of the ordinary. This is not to say that your desire to improve is anything short of admirable, but realize that getting and staying better requires commitment and management for what may seem at times to be meager improvements.

This best advice that I can give in this situation is to use information from both the payment samples collected from your bulk tank and the DHIA test day information. The DHIA SCC information can be valuable as a guide to suggest where SCC problems are likely to start in your herd.

The last four months of test day information will be looked at in the following way. All of the cows each month with over a 400,000 SCC will be considered problem cows. Every month from December through March we will look at the cows that reach this level for the first time. This will eliminate repeat offenders month to month.

What we see here are a couple of trends that might lead to the proper direction in SCC improvement. First lactation animals and mature as well, approach near 50% infection level at the start of the lactation (6 of 14 and 9 of 20). This similarity might suggest we rule out dry-off management since there is no dry-off for the first lactation animals. The mere fact that we see a large percentage of infections at the start of lactation might also point in the direction of the time period prior to early lactation (prefresh). It would appear that a look at the environment for these cows is in order.

The other two columns reflect that the total number of tests that these cows went through during their lactation so far. They also give the number of times that the 400,000 SCC was surpassed during those tests. First lactation reaches an infection frequency of 34% (31 divided by 92). Older cows stay infected 52% of the time. It would appear that once cows are infected, they have a higer risk of being infected again. The importance of stopping the new infections is apparent.

Now that we have some idea of where infection risk is highest, we can make plans to reach our goals. We also have in place a way to measure progress in attaining that goal.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No.2y — 2.48 bu., 4.44 cwt.
Wheat, No.2 — 2.31 bu., 3.86 cwt.
Barley, No.3 — 1.75 bu., 3.75 cwt.
Oats, No.2 — 1.59 bu., 4.95 cwt.
Soybeans, No.1 — 4.94 bu., 8.24 cwt.
Ear Corn — 76.87 ton, 3.84 cwt.
Alfalfa Hay — 129.25 ton, 6.46 cwt.
Mixed Hay — 126.75 ton, 6.34 cwt.
Timothy Hay — 128.00 ton, 6.4 cwt.

The Millcreek Row Mulcher lets you apply mulch 3 times faster.

YOUR CHOICE
Millcreek Row Mulchers also let you drop spread in the center of rows.

From tree fruit to vegetable beds, from bramble crops to vineyards, organic mulch and compost can reduce chemical input for weed suppression, retain soil moisture, and improve soil fertility by adding organic matter to sandy and clay soils.

Now Millcreek eliminates the costly labor needed for organic mulch and compost application. The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher works with all types of organic material, and even lets you adjust the depth and width of the mulch rows from 12" to 120" wide, from 1/2" to 6" deep.

Starting under $6500, no other machine compares when it comes to capabilities, versatility, and cost effectiveness. Rugged construction. Six sizes, from 3.4 to 20 cubic yard capacity. Custom designs. Call today for a free color brochure, or to discuss your specific needs.

Open Communications Key To Passing Down Farm

tunity to farm that they could. "You have to think back to when you were young and consider how you felt then," said Jim.

"A lot of parents aren't willing to let go of the farm," said Billy. "But if you want your children to continue farming, you have to give them the responsibility and the chance to make it."

The Hills purchased Little Hill farm in 1987 when they sold the existing dairy farm in New Jersey where Jim farmed with his father. The name "Little Hill" comes from the combination of Jim's father's last name and his mother's maiden name, which was Little.

"We knew the year we lost three of the six farms we were renting that it was time to give into land development pressures and move elsewhere," said Jim. "Now we get a queasy feeling when we go over the Delaware river. It seems like we were displaced for the first part of our life -- we belong in Pennsylvania."

Currently Kevin, Terry, and Rich are milking 65 Holsteins and Brown Swiss on the 114-acre farm. The Holstein herd average is 28,700 pounds of milk, while the Brown Swiss average 24,500 pounds of milk.

Rich handles the fieldwork and feeding, while Kevin handles the breeding and herd health work. Terry keeps track of the books and handles the marketing for the herd. They take turns milking. Kevin takes the morning milking, while Terry milks the afternoon shift and Rich milks in the evening.

"People always say the reason we get along so well is because we each specialize in different areas," said Terry. "If we were all trying to do the same thing, it wouldn't work."

Jim still helps out on the farm when he can, but he likes not being tied down to the farm. "You can sell the farm," said Jim. "But you can't take the farm away from the farmer."

The children enjoy having their father around to help on the farm, and he has given full decision-making responsibilities to his kids. "A nice thing about Dad is that he works on the farm, but he doesn't need paid," said Rich.

Instead of turning the entire farm over to the children all at once, the Hills took it in stages. "We purchased the 35-acre farm where we live now in 1991 for manure management, but we jokingly said it would be our retirement home," said Jim. "That came quicker than we thought."

When the Hills purchased a local country store in 1995, they found that they couldn't keep up with both farming and running the store. "The store seemed like it demanded more hours than farming did," said Billy.

So they sold the Little Hill herd to their children, and Kevin and Terry moved into the farm house with Rich. "We do have one door that separates us from Rich's living area," said Terry. "But we share the kitchen."

Jim and Billy ran the country store for two years and then moved onto the 35-acre farm in Berks County where they now live. The children rent those 35 acres from their parents, along with another 35 acres from Kevin's parents in Jonestown.

Although Rich, Kevin, and Terry own the home property and the cows, they still lease the equipment from Jim and Billy.

"The regulations that the government places on passing down things from one generation to the next are a lot more rigid than you would expect," said Billy. "You really have to check into it when you're going through the process."

"One year we purchased a tractor from Jim and Billy, but then we found out that we couldn't claim it as a full deduction because it was an in-family transfer even though we paid for it," said Kevin.

While most people hold off on passing down the farm because they're reluctant to pay taxes, it was actually one reason that Jim and Billy decided to sell the farm to their children earlier than they had planned. Because they didn't have any debt and couldn't claim rent or anything from the farm, Kevin, Terry, and Rich were paying in a lot for taxes.

"Our lawyer always told us that our children were lucky that we so willingly passed down the farm, and that we were lucky because they wanted to take it over," said Jim. "But we didn't want to wait until they were too old to want to take on the debt."

"It was nice that we were able to do it in steps," said Terry. "I wouldn't have wanted to purchase everything at the same time."

"We decided early on we weren't going to keep any secrets from our children," said Billy. "We wanted them to know what was available here, and we had to trust each other and keep open communications."

Even though the Hills no longer live on the home farm, they still come to visit often. Kevin and Terry's children, Kyle and Allison, enjoy playing with Grandpa and Grandma on the farm.

Along with helping out on the farm, Jim has worked as a seed salesperson for Hoffman Seeds for the last 31 years. Billy works part-time coordinating activities at Manor Care Retirement.

While working full-time on the farm, Kevin still finds time to work fours hours a day for his father as a carpenter and electrician. Rich does custom work with his round baler for area farmers.

"We all do part-time work whenever we can get it," said Rich.

The Hills and Shueys are also active in various community groups, including the Young Farmers, Farm Women, Jonestown United Methodist Church, dairy promotion committee, and the church volleyball league.

"If you don't give your children a chance to grow into farming, they're not going to want to take it over when they're older," said Jim.

"Besides," Billy said, "the Amish have a neat way of saying it -- you never retire, you just slow down a little."

Rich Hill never left the farm and now enjoys working side by side with his sister and brother-in-law. Rich is responsible for the feeding and field work on the farm, while all three handle the milkings.

Kevin and Terry are grateful to be able to work together on the farm with their children. While Kevin handles the breeding and herd health work, Terry handles bookkeeping and marketing for their registered Holstein and Brown Swiss herd.

Gelbvieh Junior Classic Set For Missouri

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — This will be the site for the premier American Gelbvieh Junior Association (AGJA) event of the year — the AGJA Hillbilly Classic.

This national event draws AGJA members and their families from across the nation. Last year's event in Nebraska attracted nearly 150 junior members. The Hillbilly Classic will be at the Ozark Empire Fairgrounds in Springfield on July 11-15.

A new feature to this year's Judging Contest at the AGJA Hillbilly Classic is the chance for non-AGJA members to compete for cash prizes and Gelbvieh heifers. The Judging Contest is set for Wednesday, July 12, at 10 a.m. The Judging Contest is open to all teams from 4-H, FFA, collegiate, and AGJA.

Each team is comprised of four members and each member's score counts. The team will judge six classes consisting of breeding females, bulls, and market steers. Performance data may be provided to assist contestants in placing some of the classes.

Oral reasons will be given on two classes by individuals in the intermediate (12 to 15 years of age) and senior (16 to 21 years of age) divisions. All juniors (8 to 11 years of age) will give oral reasons on one class.

For the first time donated Gelbvieh heifers will be awarded to the high individual in each AGJA division and 4-H, FFA, and collegiate divisions. Teams and individuals will also be competing for cash awards.

The Hillbilly Classic will also feature an advertising contest, poster contest, photo contest, team fitting, Gelbvieh Quiz Bowl, impromptu speaking, and a showmanship contest. During the week, AGJA members will compete for the junior and senior ambassador titles, as well as campaign for the AGJA board of directors.

The cattle show is set for Saturday, July 15. It begins at 8 a.m. with the Gelbvieh Steer Show, followed by the breeding female and bred and owned female show. It concludes with the bred and owned bull show. The week is topped off by the AGJA awards banquet at the Holiday Inn North I-44 beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday.

"To participate in the Hillbilly Classic (with exception of the judging contest), youth must be between the ages of 8 and 21, as of January 1, 2000, and a member of the American Gelbvieh Junior Association. Contact the AGA office for a complete registration and rules packet at (303) 465-2333 or e-mail your request to bobw@gelbvieh.org.

The American Gelbvieh Junior Association serves 1,100 members ages 5 to 21 with a comprehensive youth education and leadership development program. For more information on the AGA or the AGJA, call (303) 465-2333 or visit the Gelbvieh website at www.gelbvieh.org.

Fair Brochure Available

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) has announced that a listing of all the agricultural fairs within the state is available in a colorful brochure. Information available includes fair name, location, contact phone number, and the dates of the 2000 event. For easier reference, the state is divided into four regions.

County fairs, the showplace of Pennsylvania agriculture, attract approximately seven million visitors during the April through October season. Nearly every county in Pennsylvania has at least one agricultural fair and many have more than one. A total of 114 events are held yearly.

Agribusiness and agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one industry. Farming and related agribusiness employ more than one million Pennsylvanians each year, and contribute more than $30 billion in economic activity to Pennsylvania. The agriculture fairs are the showplaces of this monumental industry.

If you want a free copy of this brochure entitled "Have We Got A Fair For You," visit your local chamber of commerce, tourist promotion agency, AAA, legislative district office, PennDOT "Welcome Center," other locations providing the material, or write to PSACF, P.O. Box 546, Gratz, PA 7030-0546 (provide a self-addressed stamped envelope with your request).

Gelbvieh Sire Summary Available

WESTMINSTER, Colo. — The 2000 American Gelbvieh Association Sire Summary is available to commercial and seedstock cattle producers. This year's summary contains 1,152 progeny tested sires and 743 genetic indicator sires. The University of Georgia completes the Gelbvieh National Cattle Evaluation three times per year.

The American Gelbvieh Association has required performance data on all registered animals for the last 28 years. In the past five years, the AGA's performance record database has nearly doubled. The AGA has also led the way in calculating new EPDs on important traits like calving ease and gestation length.

The number of sires with carcass EPDs has increased through the Sire Carcass Test Program, a structured progeny evaluation. This program provides free semen to commercial cowherds willing to collect and report carcass data. For more information on this program contact Bob Weaber or Surcy Peoples at the AGA office, (303) 465-2333.

Contact the AGA today to receive your free copy of the 2000 Gelbvieh Sire Summary or find it on the AGA website at www.gelbvieh.org.

Magee Negotiates Successful Agriculture Budget for N.Y. State

ONEIDA, N.Y. — Agriculture has come out a winner in these final days of budget negotiations.

The legislative budget conference subcommittee Transportation/Environmental Conservation/Housing/Agriculture recommended a $3.5 million increase in agricultural spending. Committee member and Assembly Agriculture Chairman Bill Magee (D-Nelson) was successful in securing the increase.

Magee worked hard fighting the Senate to leave the $1.3 million the governor had allocated for the Farmland Viability Program, which Magee championed in 1999. The purpose of the Farmland Viability Program is to strengthen and improve the viability of New York State's agricultural industry, both economically and environmentally.

The recommendations for funding additions to the Executive proposal are: Apiary Research and Inspection, $275,300; Cornell Onion Research, $100,000; NYS Apple Growers Association, $125,000; Cornell Ag in the Classroom, $60,000; Cornell Future Farmers, $35,000; Golden Nematode, $50,700; Cornell Rabies, $200,000; Central NY AgriTourism, $100,000; NYS Wine and Grape, $250,000; North Country Agriculture, $400,000; Marine Resources, $100,000; Cornell Cattle Health Database, $50,000; Montgomery County Agricultural Economic Development Office, $50,000; SUNY Morrisville Agricultural Incubator Program, $500,000; Migrant Child Care, $175,000; State Fair Highway Lights, $60,000; Madison County Fair Sanitary Improvements, $130,000; Geneva Experimental Station, $224,000; Agriculture Teachers Recruitment Program, $40,000; Johne's Disease Diagnostic Lab at Cornell, $300,000; Equine Testing, $75,000; Seed Testing $200,000.

"Industry programs such as Farmland Viability, Cornell Apiary Research, and the Geneva Experiment Station are crucial to agriculture in New York and are programs I am happy to initiate or increase spending on. These budget recommendations are a step in the right direction to keeping New York farms sustainable, profitable and progressive in the twenty-first century," Magee said.

Franklin County Honors DHIA Award Winners

Award winners recognized at the Franklin County Dairy Herd Improvement Annual Meeting held at Lemasters Community Center were (L-R): Sherrie and James Mellott, Mercersburg; Marcus Martin, Mercersburg; and Thomas Goshorn, Dry Run. The Mellotts received a 1999 PA DHIA Herd Management Award with their Jersey herd. Marcus and Chester Martin's cow Two-Top Dolores produced 247,255 pounds of milk in 10 lactations. A second Martin cow, Framer Kasper Negra produced 228,203 pounds of milk during her lifetime which covered nine lactations. Goshorn's herd average somatic cell count for the year, 109 thousand, was the lowest in the county for PA DHIA herds. The Goshorns have a herd of 85 Holstein cows.

Raymond Shoemaker, Chambersburg, was recognized at the Franklin County Dairy Herd Improvement 1999 Annual Meeting for over 10 years of dedicated service on the board of directors. The retiring director provided leadership several years ago when the county DHIA association merged with the state DHIA organization. Shoemaker has also provided financial management guidance to the board over the years. Raymond and his wife Josephine are now retired from active dairy farming.

Sweet Meriam's Farm welcomes interns Joel Pitney of Oregon, Nell Hanssen (back left) and Kristen help turn under a cover crop and turn up the soil to dry before rototilling. The stone house on the Markley farm was built by Kristen Markley's great-great-great-grandparents, Phillip and Rachel Markley. Kristen is the sixth generation to farm the land.

Sweet Meriam's Farm Nourishes Soil And People

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) – It's all about sustainability – the desire to sustain, to nourish.

For Kristen Markley and Nell Hanssen of Sweet Meriam's Farm in Beaver Springs, it's all about nourishing the soil, nourishing people with the freshest of vegetables, and nourishing the soul through a healthy lifestyle.

Markley and Hanssen operates Sweet Meriam's Farm, a community-supported agricultural farm (CSA) that supplies fresh organic vegetables and herbs to members from June through October. Members join by buying a share in the vegetable operation and then receive more than $18 worth of fresh produce each week for 22 weeks. The share fees coming in from many members at the beginning of the season helps CSA farmers cover production costs and assures them of a market.

For Markley, co-owner of the vegetable operation, it's a very meaningful way to keep her family's 130-acre farm in agriculture for the sixth generation.

"My grandfather grew grains for Walnut Acres (an organic health food store and farm in Penns Creek). My grandmother Meriam Markley was very committed to organic farming," explains Markley. "In fact, I've named the vegetable operation after her. Her strong spirit, loving heart, and passion for organic farming still inspires me. This farm means a lot to me. It feels good to till the soil my ancestors tilled."

Markley concentrates on building healthy soil through cover crops, composting, and crop rotation. Although she and those she works with prefer working with their hands in quiet farm surroundings, they do use a rototiller and Markley's grandfather's old Allis Chalmers tractor. They also irrigate from the nearby pond during droughts.

Markley has sold organic vegetables at local farmers markets and restaurants for the past 10 years. This year, she's expanding into the CSA enterprise. To do this, she advertised over the Internet for someone experienced with CSAs. Nell Hanssen, a Connecticut native who ran a CSA in Maryland, then joined Markley as co-owner of the vegetable operation.

"CSAs offer an alternative to the conventional food system that creates a gap between where food is grown and put on the table," explains Hanssen. "Farming this way closes that gap. It lets the consumer know how their food is produced."

Markley and Hanssen encourage members to come and see how their food is grown. They want members to visit the farm, help in the garden and on harvest days, and explore the woods and enjoy nature.

"People have gotten disconnected from where their food comes from. I want to connect the community back to the farm," said Markley, who has worked in the Rodale gardens and currently works for the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA).

"I want members to see that we offer varieties of produce not offered in the store. The produce in stores is bred for shelf life and often lacks the flavor and nutrition that's in home-grown varieties," Hanssen said.

Markley and Hanssen grow more than 40 kinds of vegetables and herbs on five acres of the farm. The rest of the pasture and fields are rented to a tenant farmer for his heifers. Markley's experience selling vegetables at farmer's markets has taught her that people are willing to try a new variety of vegetables if they're taught how to prepare it.

Hanssen says none of the varieties offered are unusual to her or Markley, but patty-pan squash and edible flowers might make some customers pause.

Customers are usually open to a new kind of eggplant, but

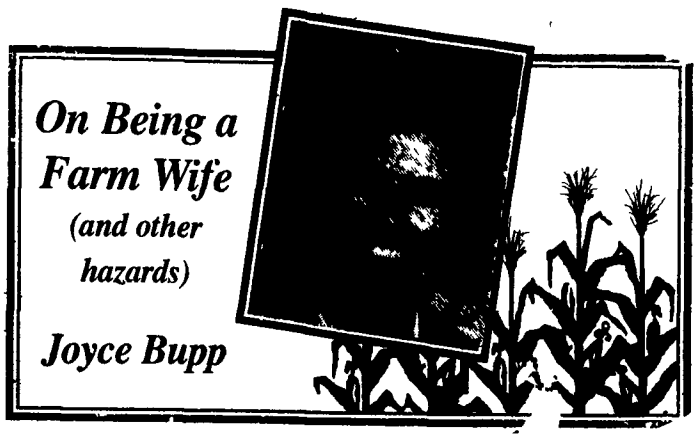
OMESTEAD OTES

Nell Hanssen of Connecticut came to Sweet Meriam's Farm in January to add her expertise with CSAs or community-supported agriculture. Seedlings are started in the farmhouse in February, then moved to the greenhouse.

Kristen Markley (left) and Nell Hanssen tend to early season seedlings in their greenhouse. They're thinning swiss chard, kale, lettuce, leeks, and cabbage.



The peepers have come back.

"Peepers" are one of the first signs of spring which we listen for. These little marshy-woodland frogs make a loud, chirpy call, which sounds much more like a bird or insect than it does the classic frog "croak."

We didn't hear peepers from the meadow ponds for a couple of years, although we were never sure why. But a few weeks ago their after-dark serenading started up, announcing the time of change to their neighborhood– and ours–as the ponds in the meadow come alive.

Actually there was more activity than usual there all through the winter, since a whole colony of muskrats has claimed squatters rights to the area. They had the ponds pretty much to themselves for many weeks, until the first group of Canada geese descended onto the melting ice one late February morning, hooting and honking about their arrival.

The Farmer wasn't too impressed with the invasion of the muskrats, since–like most rodents–their tendencies to dig and chew whatever's handy causes considerable damage. In this case, it's to the sides of the ponds, where they excavate houses with entrance, exit and travel burrows, erode banks and cause pond wall weakening. While walking with Derra Dog around the ponds after dark one evening, I nearly fell into a hole where one muskrat burrow had collapsed.

Right behind the geese's arrival came a couple pairs of ducks. Most are mallards, but one elusive stranger we finally identified as a blue-winged teal. We hoped that it might have a mate nesting somewhere nearby and they would stay on with the rest of the noisy feathered flock.

Our two goose nests where goslings hatched out last spring are again populated with hens glued to their sitting posts. Between them, a flock of about 10 others—maybe last year's youngsters—hang around, the first time we have ever had extra geese in residency while pairs are nesting. One of the nest-guarding males chases them, but only when we go for a walk at the ponds. Guess he has to prove that he's doing his job.

Recently I spotted yet another nest, this one being warmed by a mallard hen, who chose a volunteer willow tree at the goldfish pond as her brooding spot. She built the nest on the bank where the willow has grown a large limb section gracefully dipping down and out just inches from the water surface. The site seemed relatively secluded from passerbys.

Except for the family of last year's kittens, which tag along when Derra and I take our evening walks. We must look like a silly parade: one person, one dog, and several multicolored cats trailing along. Those cats promptly spied the duck nest; she hopped off, quacking and splashing. I coaxed the cats away, vowing to stay clear of the area until the eggs had hatched. But, a day later, The Farmer noted that she was off the nest and the eggs missing. Raccoon? Fox? Cat? What was the culprit?

Along with the ponds' stirring of animal and bird life comes the return of the plants which we enjoy watching grow and flower, many of which The Farmer has planted over the last several years. Green cattail and rush blades poke up through the dead, brown debris of last year's growth, one big clump piled into a muskrat lodge in the big pond. Japanese and Siberan iris spikes rise up from the edges, while the first wide, round leaves of water-lily plants spread reddish-tinted circles on the sparkling water.

Mowing for the first time around the ponds last week was a pleasurable chore, a chance to observe the meadow ponds coming back to vibrant life. Then I spied yet another pond resident, curled up basking in the sunshine on the willow's big limb hanging out over the water. Just inches from where the duck nest had been, lay a snoozing Mr. (or Ms.) Water Snake.

Do water snakes eat duck eggs? And even if they do, water snakes have a right to be there, too. It's all part of pond life. The good. The bad. The wiggly.

But given a choice, I'd take the ducks over the wigglies.

Compost Piles

The steamy, heaping mass of leaves, twigs and kitchen scraps is nature's kitchen at its best.

In case you've never seen a compost pile, it's a big pile of grass clippings, leaves, kitchen scraps, dirt — just about anything from your garden or yard that you would normally throw in the trash.

Inside the pile, bacteria and other tiny microorganisms feast on all the organic material in the compost pile. (Organic material is naturally made materials, such as leaves, vegetable peels and twigs.) Bacteria release water vapor and heat as they decompose the waste. The added heat helps "cook" or break down the material. Eventually, with the right mix of ingredients, heat and moisture, the compost pile changes into a soil-like mix. The whole process is very similar to how fallen leaves decay in a forest.

So why bother with a compost pile? The finished product is rich in nutrients that the soil needs to grow healthy plants and vegetables.

Plus, composting helps the environment. Food and yard wastes make up about a quarter of the waste going into landfills. By turning it into compost, it all gets recycled for a good use!

Sweet Meriam's Farm

don't want unusual looking tomatoes.

In June, customers can expect boxes full of lettuce, mesclun mix, spinach, chard, collards, kale, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, beets, radishes, turnips, peas, and carrots. In July expect beans, onions, cucumbers, summer squash, tomatoes, peppers, and potatoes. August brings eggplant, cantaloupe, honeydew, and watermelon. In September they can enjoy the cool-season vegetables again while October brings sweet winter squash and pumpkins for pies and carving.

Sweet Meriam's Farm also offers value-added salad and stir-fry mixes from the state-inspected kitchen in the large stone farmhouse. The mixes are an easy dinner answer for busy families.

"The beauty of fresh-grown food," Markley explains, "is that you don't need long, involved recipes. Fresh vegetables are easier, less time consuming, and have a flavor all their own – you don't need lots of spices and sauces to add flavor."

Anyone interested in buying a share or in CSAs can contact Kristen Markley or Nell Hanssen at Sweet Meriam's Farm at (570) 658-8512.

Today's Americans Have Diverse Religious Affiliations

America is one of the most diverse countries in the world in terms of religious affiliations. The trend toward increasing religious diversity continues, sparked by conversions and immigration.

The Christian population, including Catholics and Protestants of all denominations, comprise about 81 percent of the American population.

A wide variety of other religious beliefs are held and practiced today. The fastest growing religious group in this country are Muslims, with an estimated 6 million followers. Other religions practiced in the U.S. include Judaism, Buddhism, Baha'i, Hinduism, Confucianism, Jehovah's Witness, Amish, Mennonite, Mormon, Quakers, Seventh-Day Adventist, Sikhism, Unitarians, and spiritual traditions of Native Americans. These are by far, not inclusive of all religions practiced in this country.

Many Americans know little or nothing about faiths other than their own. Learning about other faiths can help to increase understanding among diverse groups of people. Knowledge and understanding can break down fear and distrust that begins with ignorance. It can help to build greater connectedness among diverse populations. The following is a glimpse at a few selected religions.

Islam. Muslims practice the religion of Islam and worship Allah as the one true God. They obey the teachings of Muhammad, the messenger of Allah. According to Islam, Allah's words are spoken to Muhammad and these were written down to form the Koran, the Muslim holy book. There are Muslims of all races and nationalities and from greatly diverse backgrounds. Basic practices followed by all Muslims include: Declaring their faith in the oneness of Allah and in the prophet Muhammad; praying to Allah five times each day; fasting from before dawn until sunset every day during the Islamic month of Ramadan; paying an annual welfare levy of 2.5 percent of one's wealth after personal and business expenses; and at least once in one's lifetime, going on a pilgrimage to Mecca, the city where the first house of Allah was built, and where the profit Muhammad was born.

The Muslim church is called a mosque. Either inside or near it, every mosque has a place for people to wash before prayer. Before entering the prayer hall, shoes are removed. Inside there is no furniture; people stand, bow, kneel, and sit on their heels to worship. The religious leader is called imam. The imam leads the five daily prayers, gives a talk at the midday Friday prayer, performs marriages and funerals, answers questions about Islamic teaching and practices, and gives advice to people about their problems.

Buddhism. Buddhism began in India more than 2,500 years ago and is a major religion in many Asian countries today. Followers of Buddha try to live in harmony with themselves, with others, and with the environment. Buddhists are encouraged to practice six perfections: generosity, morality, patience, vigor, meditation, and wisdom. Meditation is important, as it allows the mind and body to be peaceful.

Ordained followers and teachers of Buddhism are called monks and nuns. Monks and nuns live simple lives, renouncing possessions and keeping only what is necessary. They depend on the generosity of others for basic needs such as food and clothing. Many shave their heads as a renouncement of vanity. Some of the important teachings of Buddhism include the Eightfold Path and the Five Moral Precepts.

The Eightfold Path includes: Right Understanding, Right Thought, Right Speech, Right Action, Right Work, Right Effort, Right Mindfulness, and Right Meditation. The Five Moral Precepts include: To try not to harm living things; to try not to steal; to try not to use sexuality to harm oneself or others; to try not to tell lies or call people names; and to try not to use drink or drugs that harm mind or body.

Quaker. Quakers came to America from England in the mid 1600s. They refer to themselves and the Society of Friends. Although the Bible is valued as a source of truth, Quakers also believe that each of us has the capacity to communicate directly with God through the divine spirit within ourselves. As we become conscious of the "Inward Light" or the "Christ Within", and submit ourselves to its leadings, we are able to live in conformity to the will of God. The name Quakers comes from the idea that humans would tremble, or quake, in the presence of God.

The Society of Friends has no formal creed, paid clergy, or special ceremonies such as baptism. Congregations are called "meetings" where vision is made clearer by the shared experience of those present. Quakers have a strong dedication to hard work and the social advancement of the less fortunate. They oppose war and were outspoken against slavery. Quakers are known for their simple, plain attire and simple lifestyle. This lifestyle translated into the unassuming style of architecture known as the federal style.

Extra Vitamin C Might Hurt

Doesn't extra vitamin C just get released in the urine? If so, what's the problem with taking megadoses?

First, let's review what the new Recommended Dietary Allowance is for vitamin C. It's 90 milligrams a day for men and 75 milligrams for women. That's up from 60 milligrams a day for men and women. For smokers, add 35 milligrams to help combat the increased loss of vitamin C smokers experience daily due to "oxidative stress."

Along with the new RDAs, the National Institute of Medicine also determined a "Tolerable Upper Intake Level" of 2,000 milligrams, or 2 grams, per day. That's 16 times greater than the highest of the new RDAs — that for a male smoker — and nearly 27 times what female non-smokers need.

You're right — if you consume more vitamin C than your body needs, it will be released in urine or in stools. However, too much can lead to diarrhea, stomach inflammation, and other gastrointestinal problems. How much is "too much" is under some debate — some studies have reported problems at doses of 3,000 to 4,000 milligrams a day; others have reported only minor problems at 10,000 milligrams a day. The 2,000 milligram limit takes into account a safety factor and is designed to protect the most sensitive individuals in a healthy population.

The panel also examined other potential problems, such as excess iron absorption, reduced levels of vitamin B12 and copper, and increased risk of kidney stones. However, research results on these issues have been mixed, at least for healthy adults. People with a history of kidney problems need to be more careful.

Despite the increased RDA for vitamin C, you probably won't see vitamin C percentages on Nutrition Facts labels change soon. Those are based on the "Daily Value" of various nutrients. Daily Values are set by the Food and Drug Administration and are based only in part on RDAs, partially because so many RDAs are different for men, women and different age groups. While the Daily Value for vitamin C might change in the future, right now it remains at 60 milligrams. So, food with 10 percent of the Daily Value of vitamin C contains 6 milligrams — less than 5 percent of the RDA for male smokers.

Who Determines Serving Sizes?

Why does the Food Guide Pyramid list a half-cup of pasta as "one serving" of bread? I don't know anyone who eats only a half-cup of pasta at a time.

Serving sizes used in the Food Guide Pyramid aren't just based on what might be typically eaten by consumers. Also taken into consideration are other foods within the same food group and the nutrients they contain.

For example, serving sizes of foods in the dairy group offer similar amounts of calcium as you'd get in 1 cup of milk. That's why the Food Guide lists both 1.5 ounces of natural cheese and 2 ounces of processed cheese as "one serving." You can usually count on natural cheese to have more calcium.

Also, the Food Guide Pyramid uses readily recognized household measures that people can easily multiply or divide. So, although most people usually eat more than a half-cup of pasta or more than 1 slice of bread during a meal, they also can multiply those measures by two or three to determine the overall number of servings they're consuming.

In fact, surveys reveal men typically eat at least 1 cup, or two servings, of pasta at a sitting, while women more typically eat three-quarters cup, or 1.5 servings. The same can be said for ready-to-eat cereals. Also, most people eat two slices of bread at a time or about 2 ounces of muffins, rather than the 1 slice or 1 ounce listed as Pyramid serving sizes. All this makes it very easy to reach the 6-11 servings of breads and grains recommended in the Food Guide Pyramid.

'Eggstra' Nutrition Packed Into These Cracking Good Recipes

Now that research has cleared up the many misconceptions about dietary cholesterol and heart disease, growing awareness of eggs' nutritional benefits are appealing to heath conscious consumers.

Eggs contain the highest quality protein available at the lowest cost. Eggs contain protein, B-vitamins, folic acid, and vitamins A, D, and E. Eggs are one of the few foods that naturally contain vitamin D.

Although eggs do contain cholesterol, recent research shows that dietary cholesterol has little effect on the cholesterol levels in blood, and very little to do with heart disease.

So enjoy these "crackin'" good recipes packed with "eggstra" nutrition.

EGGS ARNOLD

¼ cup butter
2 medium onions, peeled, thinly sliced
8 eggs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon tabasco pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
4 English muffins
1 tablespoon spicy brown mustard
3 ounces thinly sliced salami

In medium skillet, melt butter. Cook onions over low heat about 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly golden. Meanwhile, in large bowl, beat together eggs, milk, tabasco sauce, and salt. When onions are cooked, stir in egg mixture. When edges begin to set, draw cooked portions toward center so uncooked portion flows to bottom. Stir constantly, cook over low heat about 4 to 6 minutes or until eggs are cooked throughout, but still moist. Gently stir parsley. Split and toast English muffins, spread with mustard. Top with salami slices and egg mixture. Serve with additional tabasco sauce, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

SHAKE-EM-UP SCRAMBLED EGGS

1 medium tomato
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
Dash pepper
4 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening

Chop tomato into half-inch pieces. Put tomato in one-quart jar. Add eggs, cheese, salt, and pepper. Cover the jar tightly and shake well.

Heat shortening in 10-inch skillet over low heat until melted. Tilt and turn the skillet to coat evenly with the melted shortening.

Pour egg mixture into hot skillet. Cook over medium heat. Turn eggs gently as the mixture starts to set at bottom. Cook 5 to 8 minutes or until eggs are cooked through but are still moist and shiny. Makes 4 servings.

Huntingdon Co. Dairy Princess

CRUSTLESS CRAB QUICHE

6-ounces Alaskan snow crabs (frozen or canned)
4 slices bacon
½ cup biscuit mix
⅓ cup melted butter
1½ cups milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

Thaw crab if frozen, drain, reserving liquid. Fry bacon, drain, and crumble. Beat together eggs, biscuit mix, butter, milk, crab liquid, salt, and pepper until smooth.

Pour into 9-inch pie plate. Sprinkle crab, cheese, and bacon over top and press down gently.

EGG AND SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

2½ cups milk
6 eggs
6 slices bread
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard

Brown sausage, drain off fat. Whip eggs, milk, and other ingredients. Butter a large dish. Lay bread on bottom. Pour egg mixture and sprinkle cheese and sausage on top. Cover with wax paper. Put in refrigerator overnight.

Bake at 325 degrees for 45 minutes or until brown. Serves 10 people.

Laura Hess
Lancaster Dairy Ambassador

HAM AND CHEESE STRATA

16 slices white bread
¾ pound ham, diced
¾ pound cheese, cut fine
6 eggs
3 cups milk
Salt and pepper, to taste
Buttered crumbs

Line bottom of big glass pan with eight slices bread. Add a layer of ham and cheese; repeat bread, ham, and cheese. Beat 6 eggs with 3 cups milk. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour over mixture in dish. Let stand overnight or several hours. Put buttered crumbs on top and bake until firm. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

Laura Hess
Lancaster Dairy Ambassador

CHEESE FONDUE

6 slices bread, torn into pieces
1 cup grated American cheese or your favorite
3 eggs
2½ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt

Put bread into a greased, shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with cheese.

Beat eggs, milk, and salt. Pour over bread and cheese. Let stand 30 minutes.

Set in a pan of hot water. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Can be served with ham and gravy.

Under the Omelet King's watchful eye, consumer science teachers prepare their own omelets. The event was sponsored by the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

Omelet King Reveals His Secrets

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Omelet King Howard Helmut set a Guiness Book world record when he made 427 omelets in 30 minutes. He travels the world demonstrating his omelet-making skills and spreading the word about "the good egg."

On Tuesday evening Helmut came to Lancaster to show about 100 consumer science teachers how to make high-speed omelets, deviled eggs in a bag, frittatas, cornmeal cakes, and flaming desserts.

The Omelet King fills roles as comedian and teacher as he flips omelets and rapid-fires cooking tips.

"Anyone can make an omelet in 40 seconds," the King assures nervous novices, who must cook their own after watching him.

The universal recipe for an omelet is two eggs plus two tablespoons water. If making for a crowd, multiply the recipe to the amount desired, but cook only one omelet at a time. Use a soup ladle, which contains a half cup to scoop into a hot 10-inch skillet.

Stove temperature should be set on high. Put one tablespoon butter into hot skillet. Pour in a half a cup of the egg mixture.

The eggs will begin to bubble. Tilt and dig hole so that liquid egg fills in. In 20 seconds, omelet should be cooked on the bottom and moist on top.

Have the filling you want to use ready to sprinkle on top of the left side of the omelet: cheese, tomatoes, onion, bell peppers, ham, etc.

For ease in flipping omelet, Helmut instructs: Point handle of skillet at your navel, put filling on the left side of the omelet, and flip the right side over.

'If it tears, don't worry," Helmut tells the audience. "When you flip it into the plate, that side will be upside down and no one will notice."

for 5 seconds on each side. Place tortilla on plate. Then make an omelet as instructed, but instead of filling only the left side of the omelet, distribute the filling over the whole top of the omelet.

Spoon salsa over the cheese. Slide omelet onto tortilla. Roll sides in, then roll forward. Slice in half. Place one side down, stand up the other side. Puddle some salsa, sour cream, and parsley next to the frittata for an eye-pleasing presentation.

Teachers each made their own omelet or frittata. Additional food was available at the event conducted at the Farm and Home Center.

The presentation was sponsored by the Lancaster County Poultry Association for consumer science teachers from Lancaster, Lebanon, and York counties. The association conducts an annual event for the teachers to keep them updated on the latest information about eggs and poultry, and to encourage them to teach these findings in the classroom.

Cornmeal Cakes

For batter, combine:
1 small box corn muffin mix
1 small can corn, drained
Shredded cheese
Mushrooms, chopped
Onions, chopped
Cooked ham, chopped

On hot, greased griddle, evenly space 5 mounds of one heaping tablespoonful of batter. Fry like pancakes; turn when bubbly. Serve with salsa, sour cream, and parsley.

Deviled Eggs In A Bag

Hard cook eggs, slice in half and throw the yolks in a plastic bag and squeeze. Add desired amounts of mayonnaise, pickle relish, mustard, and other ingredients if preferred. Close bag and squeeze. In a few seconds, ingredients are thoroughly combined. Push contents to bottom corner of the bag. Cut off small corner of bag and pipe ingredients into the cooked egg whites.

Gourmet Flaming Dessert Omelet

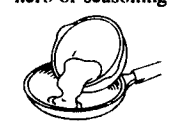
Make an omelet, but do not flip. Take to table and fill left side of omelet with the following:

1 pint strawberries
2 kiwi, peeled, sliced
1 banana
Maraschino cherries
Pecans, chopped

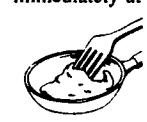
Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Fold over. Glaze with 1 heaping tablespoon 70-proof apricot-flavored brandy. Light with match to ignite for a few seconds. Be careful flames may shoot high.

Featured Recipe

Beat- For each omelet, beat together 2 eggs and 2 tablespoons water with a dash of salt and pepper and/or your favorite herb or seasoning until blended



Pour - In 7- to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium-high heat, heat 1 teaspoon butter or cooking oil (or use cooking spray) until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water Pour in egg mixture Mixture should set immediately at edges



Push - With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface

Tilt - Tilt pan and move cooked portions as necessary

Fill - When top is thickened and no visible liquid egg remains, top with prepared filling With pancake turner, fold omelet in half

Pork Producers See Better Prices

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Pork market prices are approaching $50 per 100 pounds, and for the first time in three years, producers are making decent profits, said Brian Roe, Ohio State University Extension livestock economics specialist.

November 1997 was the last time price levels were this high, and current profit levels are the best since the summer of 1997, Roe said.

'March was one of only about six months since the summer of 1997 where producers made more than just a few cents of profit per 100 pounds of pork," he said.

Pork prices this March averaged $43 to $44 per hundred pounds (cwt.), and prices in early April were in the middle to upper $40s. Prices are projected to peak at about $50 per cwt. from June through August and then return to the $40- to $45-per-cwt. range this fall and winter, Roe said.

With production costs near $35 per cwt., most producers earned about $9 above breakeven in March, compared to losses of $4 per cwt. in 1999 and $7 in 1998.

Hog prices had been in the mid $30 to low $40 range from November 1997 to September 1998, and that's when the bad times began, Roe said.

Prices dipped below $30 per cwt. in September 1998, and producers began experiencing major losses. That month, the average producer lost $25 for each hog sold. The bottom fell out in December 1998 when prices dropped to about $10 per cwt., and producers lost nearly $60 per pig.

Overexpansion — encouraged by strong profits in 1996 and 1997 and fears of future environmental restrictions — combined with processing shortages and a natural dip in the price cycle to cause the dramatic plunge in prices, Roe said.

The first few months of 1999 were better, with prices back in the mid $30-per-cwt. range by May. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Hogs and Pigs Report released in June showed the poor market had not caused production to drop as much as expected, and prices again dropped below $30 per cwt.

'The last two years have been really tough for pork producers," Roe said. "Once inflation is taken out, hog prices in 1998 were 30 percent lower than they were during the Depression."

The recent improvement primarily has occurred because the U.S. hog breeding herd has finally shrunk enough in response to the poor prices, lowering pork supplies, Roe said. Prior to the big collapse in September 1998, there were 6.9 million breeding hogs in the United States. Since then, the breeding herd has declined 10 percent, to 6.2 million hogs.

'The eastern Corn Belt has contributed a lot to the reduction in breeding hog numbers," he said. "There are 20 percent fewer breeding hogs in the eastern Corn Belt now than there were in 1998."

Ohio's breeding herd is estimated to be 18 percent lower than a year ago. Only Indiana with a 17 percent decline and Wisconsin with a 24 percent decline experienced similar drops, Roe said.

The number of hogs being taken to market also has shrunk, although not as much as the breeding herd.

'During the same time period (September 1998 to March 2000) the number of animals taken to market went from 56 million to 52 million, only about a 7 percent drop," he said. "Market hog numbers didn't decline as much as breeding hog numbers because the larger, more efficient operations that produce more pigs per sow have remained, while many of the smaller, less efficient operations have dropped out."

Operations with more than 5,000 breeding hogs produce 8.96 pigs per sow, while operations with less than 100 sows produce only 7.73 pigs per sow — a 14 percent difference.

Other factors contributing to the turnaround in pork prices are that processing shortages are no longer an issue and demand for pork — and meat in general — has increased because of a strong economy, changes in dietary habits and better quality meat products.

In response to the stronger prices, producers are starting to stabilize the decline of the breeding herd.

'Already in January and February of this year the number of sows taken to market is down compared to last year," Roe said. "But the market doesn't seem to be concerned about it yet, because it hasn't made a difference on the futures market."

More pork and other livestock economic information for Ohio and the United States is available on Roe's Ohio State University website (http://www-agecon.ag.ohio-state.edu/Faculty/broe).

ADA/DC Serves Up Flavored Milk Steamers To Walk Against Hunger Participants

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Participants in this year's "Walk Against Hunger and Nourish Your sole," held in Philadelphia, enjoyed flavored milk steamers courtesy of the American Dairy Association-/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic.

More than 3,000 walkers participated in the Walk Against Hunger, which is sponsored annually by the Greater Philadelphia Coalition Against Hunger. Money raised through the Walk helps support hunger relief programs, food cupboards and emergency meal programs throughout the Greater Philadelphia region.

"Participating in the Walk Against Hunger was a natural choice for us," said Bret Regby, ADA/DC Middle Atlantic CEO. "We were able to provide participants with a refreshing milk break while promoting the nutritional value of dairy products and helping to raise awareness of hunger issues in our communities."

Berks County Dairy Princess Michelle McMichael, Berks County Dairy Ambassador Trisha Geist and Schuylkill County Dairy Ambassador Christine Messner helped serve the steamers to participants as they paced the eight-mile Walk route.

Many walkers were surprised at the pleasant taste of the steamers, which are similar to hot chocolate but are made with a variety of flavored syrups, such as almond, hazelnut and raspberry. Comments ranged from "These are really good" to "How do I make these at home?"

Schuylkill County Dairy Ambassador Christine Messner, left, serves flavored milk steamers to participants in the Walk Against Hunger, which supports hunger relief organizations throughout the Greater Philadelphia region.

ADA/DC has sponsored the "Got Milk? Get Steamed!" campaign at various venues throughout the region to help promote milk.

"The streamers are a delicious and nutritious, new way for all ages to enjoy milk," said Deanna Rose, a registered dietitian with ADA/DC Middle Atlantic and coordinator of the campaign. "Many of these steamers can be found at your favorite coffeehouse."

Parmalat USA donated the milk for the steamers served at the Walk Against Hunger. Dawn Lewis of Caffe Craze in Malvern, Chester County provided the equipment and flavorings needed to prepare the steamers.

QUESTION — Herman Bean, Easton, writes that he is 78 years old. He remembers his grandmother made molasses cookies when he was a small boy. His mother still made them at 95 years of age but died 10 years ago and took the recipe with her. The dough was cut with flower or boy and girl-shaped cookie cutters. When baked the cookies were about an inch thick, 4-inches high and 2- or 3-inches wide. They were sort of a grayish color, soft, and had to be put into a can for a couple of days before eating. Bean said, he believes the cookies are a "Dutch favorite."

QUESTION — Phyllis Stauffer, Carlisle, wants a recipe that Little Caesar's used to have. It was a buttery dip with herbs that they served with breadsticks.

ANSWER — Ralph Nissly, Conestoga, wanted a recipe to make ketchup relish. Thanks to Alverna Martin for sending one from her brother-in-law's Aunt Fannie. Alverna writes that she uses this regularly in place of ketchup and it's everyone's favorite.

Fannie Relish

Bring to boil and simmer 45 minutes:
1 gallon tomato chunks
Add and simmer another 30 minutes:
4 large peppers, chopped
4 large onions, chopped
Add spices and simmer 15 minutes more:
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups vinegar, scant
3 cups sugar
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon red pepper

Thicken with corn starch mixed with water. Try ¾ cups corn starch mixed with ¾ cup water. Stir together, dissolving lumps before pouring into tomato mixture. Cook until thickened. If thicker relish is desired, add more thickening.

Put into pint jars. Adjust lids. Put into boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

To peel tomatoes: Boil water in a kettle (if you have a blancher it works great).

Dunk tomatoes into boiling water for about 30 seconds and remove. Skins should slip right off. Remove with slotted spoon if you don't have a blancher. The water can be reused even if it hasn't returned to boiling for the second batch of tomatoes, just so the water's scalding.

ANSWER — Ruth Lockwood from Pine Bush, NY, wanted a recipe for homemade liverwurst. Thanks to Marie Yoas, Sigel, for sending a recipe that her father used. Her grandparents came from Switzerland and brought this recipe with them.

Liverwurst

Cook heart in a pan by itself. Drain off juice and do not use.

Cook tongue in a pan by itself and scrape after cooking well. Throw away this broth also.

Liver is also cooked in a pan by itself and the juice discarded.

Head meat and odd meat pieces are cooked in another pan and this broth is set aside for use later.

After the meats are thoroughly cooked, grind all the meats together. Add enough of the reserved broth to make sure the mixture is moist and the texture desired.

Marie's father always ground a few onions with the meat to give liverwurst a wonderful flavor.

Mixture can be packed in cake pans and frozen. Cut out pieces as large as need and vaccum pack while frozen to prolong life of the liverwurst.

ANSWER — N.E.K. of Lebanon wanted a recipe for rice pudding that tastes like that made by Cozy Shacks and sold in food stores. Thanks to Annie Kauffman for sending a recipe.

Rice Pudding

In a 4-quart heavy saucepan, combine:
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter
1 cup River rice

Bring to a boil. Boil for a few minutes, add 1½-2-quarts milk. Bring to a boil again, turn burner to simmer for 45-60 minutes. Stir occasionally and add more milk if dry for required consistency.

Beat two eggs and ¾ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Stir into rice ready to serve. Also delicious cold.

ANSWER — Linda Gerberick, York, sent in this recipe in answer to Sandy Farmer's request for an alternative to granola bars. However, this is a granola mix recipe and not the bar recipe that Sandy wanted. Nonetheless, I'm sure many readers will enjoy making this recipe.

Honey Nut Granola

2½ cups oats, uncooked
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup chopped nuts
⅓ cup honey
⅓ cup butter, melted
¼ cup unprocessed bran or wheat germ
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup raisins

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Combine all ingredients except raisins. Mix well. Bake in lightly greased 9x13-inch baking pan for 20-25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in raisins. Spread mixture onto ungreased cookie sheet. Cool. Store in cool dry place or refrigerator. Makes about six cups.

ANSWER — Myrtle Sorge, Sicklerville, N.J., is searching for a recipe to make kidney pudding in casings. No one sent in the recipe, so if someone has it, please do. In the meantime, here is one for kidney stew that you might enjoy.

Father's Kidney Stew

3 veal kidneys
1 pound beef, cut into strips
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup sliced onions
1 cup cubed potato
1 cup sliced or button mushrooms
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

GERMAN FARMERS BREAKFAST

6 bacon strips, diced
3 large potatoes, peeled, cooked, cubed
1 small green pepper, diced
2 tablespoons chopped onion
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
6 eggs
¼ cup milk

In a skillet over low heat, cook bacon until crisp; remove to paper towel. Reserve 2 tablespoons drippings; add potatoes, green pepper, onion, salt, and pepper. Cook and stir 6-8 minutes or until potatoes are golden brown. Stir in cheese and bacon; remove mixture to a bowl and set aside. Beat eggs and milk; pour into the same skillet. Cook and stir gently until eggs are completely set, about 3 minutes. Add the potato mixture; cook until heated through. Yield: 4-6 servings.

EGGS AND MACARONI

1 can cream of chicken soup
1 cup milk
1 cup water
1 cup uncooked macaroni
10-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables
8 hard cooked eggs, chopped
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
½ cup grated parmesan cheese

Heat soup, milk, water, and macaroni to boiling in 3-quart pan. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Stir in vegetables, eggs, and parsley. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender, 8-10 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. 6 servings.

COUNTRY QUICHE

9-inch baked pie shell
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup diced cooked lean ham or turkey ham
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
6 eggs
1 cup skim milk
½ teaspoon salt, optional
½ teaspoon paprika
Onion slices, separated into rings, optional
Green onion curls, optional

In small skillet over medium heat, cook celery, pepper, and onion in butter until tender but not brown, about six minutes.

Sprinkle vegetables, ham, and cheese into pie shell. Beat together eggs, milk, and salt, if desired, and paprika until well blended. Pour over vegetable mixture.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 30 to 40 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

SAUSAGE AND EGG DELIGHT

1 pound sausage, ham, bacon or franks
6 slices bread, torn into pieces
1¼ cups grated cheese
6 eggs, beaten
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste
1 teaspoon dry mustard (optional)

Fry or chop meat. Butter 9x13-inch pan. Layer with meat, bread, and cheese. Beat eggs, milk, and spices. Pour over mixture in pan. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake uncovered at 325 degrees for 40-60 minutes.

State Grangers Win Regional Competitions

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Fresno is the next - and final - stop of a journey for three Pennsylvania State Grange members who won first-place honors at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Youth Conference here.

By winning the regional competitions, the three will travel to compete at the National Grange Convention this November in California.

Mary Ann (Keith) Buckley, Lincoln Grange #914, Huntingdon County, placed first in public speaking in the 30 and over age bracket. Jennifer Viscusi, Wesley Grange #1675, Venango County, and Broock Winger, Scrubgrass Junior Grange #348, also in Venango County, captured the group division of the Sign-A-Song contest.

Buckley, who resides in Huntingdon and is a State Grange officer, presented a motivational speech called "A Survival Kit for Living." In that kit were a variety of items designed to remind the owner about what is precious in life. For example, a tea bag symbolizes taking time for yourself to relax and rejuvenate. The other four are Hershey kisses, a pencil, gum, and toothpick.

"The tea bag is used last because it represents the highest level of importance to me," Buckley said, following the announcement of the winners. "This speech is designed to be given as a short presentation with five items or nine items with an expanded text that runs between 30 and 45 minutes. It can even be used as a sermon with the addition of Bible texts."

Buckley, who works in the marketing department at J.C. Blair Memorial Hospital, will seek her fourth win at the National Grange Convention. She has previously won twice in the 14-19 bracket and the 20-29. A win in Fresno would make a perfect sweep of the three age groups for Buckley, who would like to purse a career as a motivational speaker.

The Public Speaking and Sign-A-Song are two events that promote the activities of the Grange's Youth and Deaf Activities departments. Those individuals who win first in either competition in their homes states advance to the Mid-Atlantic Region Youth Conference. The Mid-Atlantic Region encompasses six Grange states in addition to Pennsylvania. They are Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and West Virginia.

Tenacity was the key to victory for Viscusi, a manager at a mall in Grove City, and Winger, an 8th grade student at Franklin Area Middle School. The song they signed was "Love Makes a Friend Be a Friend Like You" by Sandi Patti.

"We worked hard for this," an elated Viscusi of Harrisville RR1 said. "And now we're going to California!"

The duo picked that song because it worked well with two people doing sign language. In the song, not only do you hear Patti's voice, but a little girl signs as well. The words sung by the girl were signed by Winger of 512 Buffalo Street, Franklin.

The Deaf and Hard of Hearing Awareness Department is the community service project of the Pennsylvania State and National Granges. The Sign-A-Song contest is one the outreaches of the Grange Deaf Activities Department, which promotes sound hearing and works to assist individuals, schools and social agencies that serve the deaf community.

The Public Speaking and Sign Language judges said the competitions were exciting and enlightening.

"I wasn't sure about the quality of work I would see, but I was surprised and must say you all did an outstanding job," Sign-A-Song judge Beth Ann Monn, a doctoral candidate at Gallaudet University, said. "There was only an 11-point spread between first and fourth place. That is something that you need to know and be proud about."

Judge John Zinger said public speaking is so difficult that it is the number one fear for every human being.

"This is especially true for young people who are speaking in front of their peers," Zinger said to the group shortly before the winners were named. "The Grange is about sharing and trust, and that was demonstrated by these young people, who got up in front of their peers to speak without ridicule. My hat is off to you for what the Grange stands for and the exceptional performances that we saw here today."

The Youth Department of the State Grange is for members ages 14-35. Youth members attend annual retreats, a summer camp and leadership training seminars to prepare them to be the leaders of tomorrow. The youth program also promotes fellowship and socials that lead to friendships that last a lifetime.

Chris Straub, Stony Point Grange #1694, Mercer County, finished second in the 20-29 age group for public speaking.

King of the Hill and Follow the Leader are a few games the lambs appear to be playing in the meadow.

On Easter Sunday, Little Joe went to church with Stephanie to help illustrate the biblical story of Jesus being the good shepherd. Of the 39 sheep Stephanie raises on her grandfather's property, Little Joe is her favorite. But Stephanie can identify every one.

This Little Lamb Followed Stephanie To Church Last Sunday

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — You've heard about the lamb that followed Mary to school. Lambs are still showing up in unexpected places.

Last Sunday, which was Easter, Stephanie Kauffman's little lamb followed her to church.

Named Little Joe, the Southdown lamb is extremely tame. Because the minister wanted to talk about Jesus being the good shepherd, he asked Stephanie to bring one of her lambs to church.

It was an easy choice to select Little Joe from the 39 sheep Stephanie raises on her grandparents' property.

"He's my favorite," 11-year-old Stephanie said as she gave the woolly lamb a hug.

Smack in the middle of a Landisville housing development, her flock of 39 lambs romps in the meadow.

"It's my fault. I started it," Stephanie's mom Ellen said as she points to the frisky lambs.

Growing up, Ellen took little interest in her family's steers and pigs. She wanted a lamb for a pet.

To pacify her, Ellen's parents, George and Lorraine Lewis, bought her a lamb. Because lambs require different care than the other livestock, George accompanied his daughter to 4-H meetings so he could learn the basic sheep care.

"Compared to other livestock, lambs are not very intelligent," Ellen conceded. But what her first lamb Annabelle lacked in brain power, she made up in personality.

"Annabelle was so tame, she followed me everywhere," Ellen said. Annabelle didn't even need a halter in the show ring, but followed her owner docilely without a halter.

Ellen and her parents grew attached to the flock of Hampshires they soon accumulated. In her first competition, Ellen showed the champion Hampshire.

"At first I only had breeding sheep because I couldn't bear to part with a market lamb," Ellen said. She was thrust unwillingly into market sheep, when her dad picked a lamb from her breeding flock and encouraged her to show it at the local fair.

"I was so embarrassed to take it," Ellen said. Compared to the purchased market lambs others were showing, Ellen was convinced her homebred lamb didn't stand a chance.

Surprisingly, the lamb won "everything."

When Stephanie expressed interest in showing lambs, she had a request. She wanted a Southdown lamb, which is smaller and easier to handle than the taller Hampshire breed that her mother had shown.

"When I was into showing, few people had Southdowns. Now there are more Southdowns than any other breed at the shows," Ellen said.

It's unusual, but just like her mother, Stephanie won big in her first year of competition. She won a trophy that was bigger than her for showing the supreme champion sheep at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Although she's won several ribbons since then, she said, "Sometimes you win, sometimes you don't do so well, but that's OK, it gives you a chance to figure things out."

Stephanie loves the lambs born on the farm and names each one. She and her neighborhood friends spend hours walking the lambs and watching them run and push each other trying to get to the water trough.

Stephanie is following in her mother's footsteps. Not only did she win in her first show, she also joined the Lancaster County Livestock Judging Team. She hopes to win at the state level and travel to national competition just like her mother had done.

Although Stephanie participate in local judging, she needs to be 13 before she can compete at state judging, but that doesn't deter her enthusiasm for attending all practices and competitions.

On Saturday mornings, most kids her age sleep in. Not Stephanie. She's up at 5 a.m. in order to meet the team and travel to distant competitions.

According to Stephanie, those participating in livestock judging, learn to read, use performance data, and give reasons for placing animals in competition.

For several years, Stephanie accompanied her mom as part of the Ag in the Classroom program. Stephanie took her lamb while her mom told students what's involved in raising sheep. This year, Ellen was too busy teaching eighth graders at the Milton Hershey School to accompany Stephanie. So Stephanie primarily did the presentation herself.

Stephanie and her grandpa spend lots of time with the 39 head raised for show and to sell to other 4-H'ers.

Much of the knowledge Stephanie has about sheep, she learned from her mom Ellen and grandparents George and Lorraine Lewis. Her mom won many awards for the Hampshires she raised growing up. Now Stephanie is winning many awards for her Southdowns, a breed she prefers because they are smaller and easier to handle.

"I figured out what to say and wrote it on notecards to help me remember," Stephanie said of the presentation.

Stephanie toys with the idea of someday become a lamb queen. Her mother had reigned as Pennsylvania Hampshire Queen and acted as the national queen at the national breed show.

Stephanie plays community soccer and the viola. She also takes an after-school Spanish class. During the Easter season, Stephanie and her lamb participated in several church plays, where lambs are often associated with the life of Christ.

Stephanie's schedule became so busy that she had to make a choice. She elected to stay with sheep and livestock judging instead of gymnastic competition. She continues with gymnastic classes but no longer competes.

A straight "A" student, Stephanie said she prefers science classes if the teacher makes it interesting. She also likes music, art, and gym.

At home she likes to play with her many cousins. In addition to playing with the lambs, the cousins like to do flips on bars and watch the Hershey Bears' Ice Hockey Team.

While her mom is pleased to see her daughter enjoying lambs, 4-H, and judging competitions just as she had done, Ellen said, "She's not pushed to do this. It's rewarding to see her take it (judging and showing) seriously but have fun doing it. If you don't have fun doing it, it isn't the thing for you to do."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Last week we again had a family visit us with their children. This time the boys were preschool and needed a lot of attention. So, the family did not hunt tourist attractions. We have a large basement with a lot of toys and that kept them busy most of the time.

And, we had another family gathering while they were here. My sister, who lives in Michigan, had her children gather from three states to meet their cousins. Today's world really scatters us as we go where the jobs are. College educations help to disburse the young people all over the country.

Previously, I had an opportunity to revisit The National Watch and Clock Museum in Columbia, Pennsylvania. It has been expanded and renovated in the last year. The 12,000 timepieces are very attractively displayed. They range from early sundials to modern watches.

I was especially interested in the tall case clocks commonly known as Grandfather clocks. One among them was the fancifully signed Martin Shreiner clock, which was made by my three times great uncle. His children followed in his footsteps and also were clockmakers. The museum is fun and educational and has a library and research center where you can browse.

We had a lot of April showers recently and my sugar peas are really growing. They are almost a foot high and are climbing up the fence that my husband put up for them.

Mayfly Woes

Hundreds of thousands - maybe even millions - of mayflies will soon be emerging from the western shores of Lake Erie.

Their number one goal? To find a mate, lay eggs, then die.

That's the reason entomologists, or people who study insects, think they all emerge at once — there's a better chance for the mayflies to find that special insect mate.

Adult mayflies are about an inch long with big wings and two or three threadlike tails. Immature mayflies, called nymphs, look very different. They are narrow, long and oval-shaped, with shovel-like front legs and seven pairs of gills on their belly. All mayfly nymphs live at the bottom of quiet bodies of water or rapidly flowing streams for about two years. They'll molt - or shed their hard shell to grow bigger — about 20 times before they change into the adult form.

Adult mayflies only survive about a day. They don't eat, crawl or walk; they only fly and mate within the swarms of thousands of mayflies that emerge from the water, all at the same time. Males die right after they mate. Females fly back over water and release as many as 8,000 eggs.

The eggs sink to the bottom, and, once they hatch, the whole cycle starts all over again.

Mayflies are great food for fish and birds, they don't bite or sting, and they're a sign of clean water. But people think they're nuisances because so many die at once - if left in the sun, the mayflies begin to stink like dead fish! Scientifically yours, Twig -30-

Bus Ready To Roll To Highest Bidder

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Thirty-three years ago Warren Shenk started driving school bus. Today he's 68 years old and still driving.

In his sparetime, Shenk fashioned a wooden bus to duplicate the one he drives. Instead of keeping it, he's donating it to Kraybill Mennonite School's 23rd annual Benefit Auction, May 12-13.

Shenk and his wife Arlene married in 1953 and begin farming 103 acres in Mount Joy.

"We raised beef and potatoes because it was something good to eat," Shenk said.

The Shenks have four children. When their children were young, they attended Kraybill Mennonite School, which needed a part-time bus driver. Shenk figured he could fit driving into his farming schedule. It wasn't always easy, especially during the harvest season.

Some mornings he delivered a truckload of potatoes to Harrisburg before picking up a busload of children.

"When I first began driving, I didn't get paid. Two years later, I got $5 a day," Shenk recalls of the changes during his tenure.

Shenk estimates he transported more than 2,000 students to school on a regular basis. Now some of his students are the third generation of those he has driven to school.

"I don't see much difference in children's behavior. In fact, they keep the bus cleaner than they used to — maybe I do a better job of getting them to keep it clean," he said.

Shenk washes all the school buses for Kraybill's.

While most children cheer whenever school is canceled due to bad weather, Shenk doesn't share their joy.

He said, "I don't like when school is cancelled for a little bit of snow. I like the challenge of driving in it. They didn't used to cancel school for snow like now."

Driving is more of a challenge because the traffic is more congested. On the other hand, back roads are not as narrow as they used to be and that helps when maneuvering a cumbersome bus around curves.

Shenk has numerous trophies for winning first, second, and third placings at the Lancaster-/Lebanon School Bus Rodeo. After winning the grand champion one year, he stopped participating in competition in order to give others a chance.

Rodeo competition is tight. Shenk explained, "We need to drive through an obstacle course with only one-inch space on either side of the bus. We must park in a space by only pulling up one time. If we are over the line or against it, 50 points are deducted from our scores."

Maneuvering around the serpentine barrels with such a long bus is no easy feat. Contestants are also judged on their ability to find all defects in five "bugged" buses within five minutes.

"Bugs," Shenk said, "include such details as a truck license installed instead of a bus license, the amber and red lights switched, and windows open a crack.

Now retired from farming, the Shenks had a new home built on some of their farmland.

"For 10 years, I saved the stones I picked out of our fields," Shenk said of the stone house they built six years ago.

Shenk often volunteers to drive bus for several retirement communities and for the Mennonite Disaster Service. He is a church trustee and janitor for Erisman Mennonite Church.

"I enjoy volunteering," he said.

Making the bus to be sold at the benefit sale is a way to volunteer time to help others, Shenk believes. The funds raised at the benefit enable lower tuition.

"I wanted to make a bus that looked just like mine," Shenk said of the bus, which includes 33 details not included on the original bus blueprints. These include such details as a first aid kit, step light, fire extinquisher, reflective triangle, wrecking bar, hand brake, foot throttle, underseats heaters, five dome lights, step railing, rear view mirror, and other things.

The most difficult parts to find were amber and red lights. He finally located some at a 15'7" cut. Superior conditioning.

The NEW 1441 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner uses 12 discs to make a wide 15'7" cut through your heaviest, toughest crop conditions. You'll clear large fields fast and condition crops thoroughly for fast drydown.

- The advanced independent modular design uses individual disc modules with sealed gear cases connected by independent drive shafts for easy maintenance and repair.
- 102" chevron-design intermeshing rubber rolls provide high capacity and gentle, even conditioning.
- Standard swivel hitch tongue gives you exceptional maneuverability to make tight headland turns and over-square corners.

NEW HOLLAND

Two jobs, one tool: It's a tedder and a rake

The Model 255 rake tedder is a flexible machine — it's the tedder that also rakes.

- Rake a swath into a windrow
- Rake two windrows into one
- Turn windrows for faster drying
- Move crop away from fences or borders
- Ted a 10½-foot area to fluff up wet, matted-down crop for quick drying

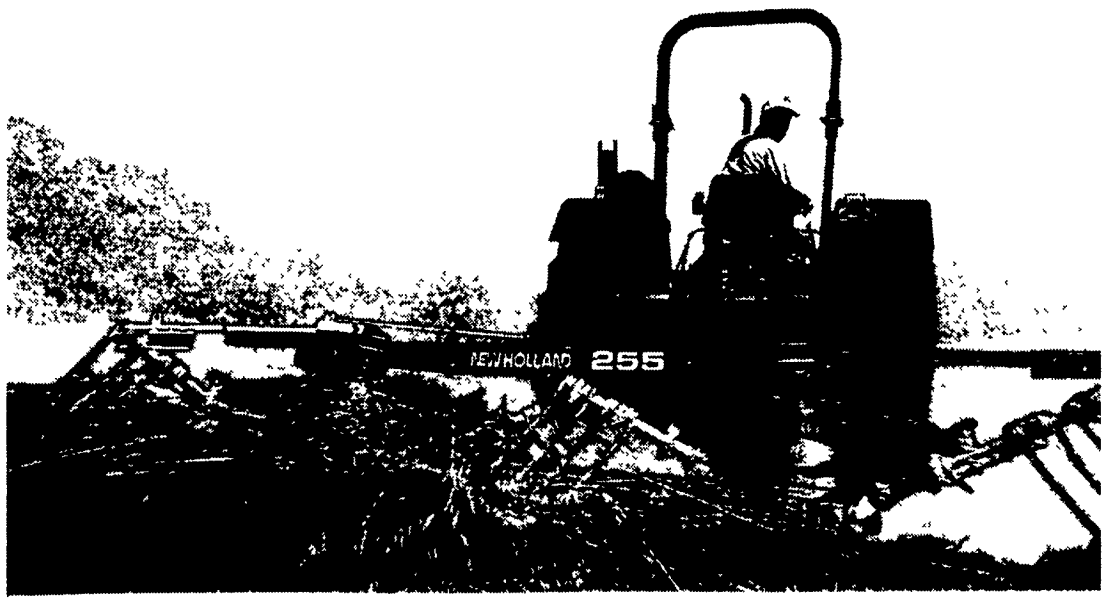
NEW HOLLAND



Big capacity. Uniform chop.

No other forage harvesters give you best-in-class capacity and chop quality. Only the new FP230 and FP240 forage harvesters from New Holland.

- Rugged 1,000-rpm driveline matches higher-horsepower tractors. Use the FP230 with tractors up to 225 PTO hp and the FP240 with tractors up to 300 PTO hp.
- Massive 12-knife cutterhead produces a uniform length of cut from 3/16" to 1-5/16" with four knives.
- Knife sharpening and shearbar adjustment are easy to keep cutting performance at its best.
- Optional on-board Crop-Pro™ crop processor makes feed more digestible and saves the expense and time of using a stationary roller mill.
- Optional Metalert® III electronic metal detector gives you peace of mind.

Choose one of the forage harvesters that deliver what matters—big capacity and uniform chop. See the FP230 or FP240 today.

Put quality silage under wraps

Choose from two models:

- Model B27P is an economic utility wrapper for medium-volume silage producers
- Model B37P is ideal for custom harvesters or operations wrapping large volumes of bales

Both offer a side-mounted lifting arm, three-belt turntable, two large side-support rollers, and cable controls. The B37P is available with computer controls.

Quick And Healthy Cooking For Dummies

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Dinner in 10 minutes?

How could a meal made in such short notice taste good or be healthful?

Amazingly it can fill both criteria if you follow Lynn Fischer's guidelines and recipes in her new cookbook, "Quick & Healthy Cooking for Dummies," published by Books Worldwide, Inc.

According to Fischer, some cookbooks are overloaded with technical details and advice you'll never use; others don't include any information other than recipes. Her cookbook appeals not only to the frustrated beginning cook, but also the seasoned cook who is always searching for new recipes and better ways to prepare food.

This is the 23rd cookbook Fischer has compiled, evidence of her ability to offer wonderful-tasting food and expertise in designing the easy-to-read and understand instructions. The 350-page soft-cover cookbook includes 150 recipes and some colored food photographs, but what makes it really unique and helpful is the information on so many different aspects related to cooking.

Fischer shows how to cook by combining fresh, canned, prepared, and frozen foods. She explains how the excess salt contained in many canned foods can be diluted without sacrificing taste by adding fresh herbs and spices.

"Taste is very important to me," Fischer said. For that reason, every recipe is taste tested. If there is any question as to the taste, the recipe is not included.

Also included in the cookbook are shopping tips, cooking tricks, and tons of nutritional advice and information.

One chapter explains how to match herbs, spices, condiments, and sauces with foods. For example, beef is best matched with salt, pepper, onions, onion powder or salt, garlic salt, sugar, fresh garlic cloves, horseradish, parsley, bay leaf, thyme, tarragon, cayenne, sundried tomatoes, herbs de Provence, bouquet garni, bay leaves, red wine, Worcestershire sauce, soy sauce, steak sauce, ketchup, and dry, prepared or Dijon mustard.

Fish and shellfish are best seasoned with salt, pepper, onions, onion salt, garlic salt, celery salt, basil, tarragon, oregano, dill, sundried tomatoes, m mayonnaise, and white wine.

Flavor secrets: Small amounts of citrus juice (such as orange or lemon), combined with triple the amount of water, vegetable broth, or defatted chicken stock, can enhance many vegetables. If you like, add herbs, spices, ginger, onions, or garlic.

For carrots, parsnips, turnips, rutabagas, sweet potatoes, yams, or all the winter squash...: Steam or microwave in small amounts of apricot juice or orange juice and water. Add a pinch of cinnamon, nutmeg, Cajun spice blend, curry powder, or Chinese five-spice powder.

For spinach, beet greens, collard greens, kale, mustard greens, Swiss chard, or other greens, steam or microwave in small amounts of cider vinegar, rice wine vinegar, or lemon juice combined with triple the amount of water, vegetable stock, or defatted chicken stock. Season with splashes of vinegar.

Discover how to understand healthy cooking basics, outfit your kitchen for speed and health, and plan fast and easy menus.

One-Pot Poor Man's Pasta

Easy and fast, this is a somewhat sweet dish (because of the carrots and barbecue sauce), yet it's very tasty and filling. It's also fresh-tasting with the crunch of the celery. You can vary the dish with some quick additions, such as a small can of drained mushrooms.

- ½ pound ground 93 percent lean ground or diced top sirloin
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- ½ pound angel hair pasta, broken in half
- 14.5-ounce can diced red tomatoes with Italian-style herbs (or 1 large tomato, diced, with 2 pinches each oregano and basil)
- 1 cup shredded carrots
- 1 stalk celery, thinly sliced
- 10-ounce package frozen French-style green beans
- ¼ cup barbecue sauce

Lightly spray a pot of high-sided skillet (such as an iron frying pan or Dutch oven) with cooking spray. Brown the meat, onions, and garlic for 6-8 minutes over medium-high heat, stirring often.

Add 3 cups water and bring meat and water to a boil.

Add the angel hair, tomatoes, carrots, and celery and, over high heat, return to a boil. Reduce heat to medium-low. Cover and cook for 6-8 minutes or until the pasta is al dente.

Add green beans and barbecue sauce and cook for 1 to 2 minutes or until green beans are heated.

Nutrition at a glance (per serving): Calories 252.4 g; Protein 14.6 g; Carbohydrates 39.8 g; Dietary fiber 4.0 g; Total fat 3.7 g; Saturated fat 1.2 g; Cholesterol 22.5 mg; Sodium 462.9 mg.

Lynn's tip: You can make this recipe with 10 minute brown rice or two 15-ounce cans of beans instead of the pasta.

Hot Oatmeal With Berries And Scalloped Apples

Plain hot oatmeal topped with berries (either raspberries, blackberries, or blueberries and scalloped apples cooked in skim milk make this a calcium and fiber-filled breakfast. Serve with rich fatfree liquid creamer or the new fatfree half-and-half, both found in cartons near the milk. You can change the fruits if you want. My tester loved the blueberries, I loved the raspberries, and we both liked old-fashioned oats better than quick oats, which were mushier.

Preparation/cooking time: 15 minutes.

Yield: 2 cups oatmeal and 2 cups fruit; 8 ½ cup servings.

Raspberries And Scalloped Apples

- 2 apples, thinly sliced, unpeeled, or peeled
- 2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- 1 cup raspberries

Oatmeal

- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup old-fashioned or quick oatmeal
- ¼ cup water
- 1 tablespoon oat bran

To make the raspberries and scalloped apples: In a medium microwaveable bowl, combine apples, lemon juice, sugar, cinnamon, and allspice. Leave out the raspberries. Cover loosely with microwavable plastic wrap and slit the wrap.

Microwave on high, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes, or until the apples are almost tender. Add the raspberries and microwave of 1 or 2 additional minutes. Don't stir or the berries will bleed.

Meanwhile, to make the oatmeal: In a medium saucepan, add the milk, oatmeal, water, oat bran, and maybe a dish of salt and stir to mix. Bring to a full boil, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat, cover with a lid, and let sit for 3 to 5 minutes until it thickens.

Serve topped with raspberries and apples, and any creamy topping such as fatfree half-and-half or plain or hazelnut liquid nondairy fatfree creamer.

Nutrition at a glance (per serving): Calories 462.51; Protein 16.26 g; Carbohydrates 96.13 g; Dietary fiber 13.08 g; Total fat 4.07 g; Saturated fat 0.88 g; Cholesterol 4.41 mg; Sodium 129.55 mg.

Lynn's health watch: Oat bran, made from the outer layers of oat kernels, is rich in soluble fiber, which helps lower cholesterol and boost your fiber intake. Add it by the tablespoon (substituting it of a little of the flour) to oatmeal, cookies, cereals, pancakes, breads, muffins, yogurt snacks, or meat loaf.

Lemon Cloud

Fluffy and soft on a graham crust, this feels and tastes like a nice rich Midwestern dessert full of familiar flavors. It tastes like a cloud and is delicious.

Preparation/Cooking Time: 10 minutes (plus 2 hours to chill)

Yield: 12 servings.

- 2 small boxes lemon gelatin, sugar or sugar-free
- 12-ounce container fatfree whipped topping
- 36 to 38 cinnamon graham cracker squares
- 4 large bananas, sliced
- ⅓ cup lowfat cinnamon graham cracker crumbs

In a large metal bowl, dissolve gelatin in 1 cup hot water. Add 1 cup ice water to pop into the freezer until cold or syrupy, about 5 minutes.

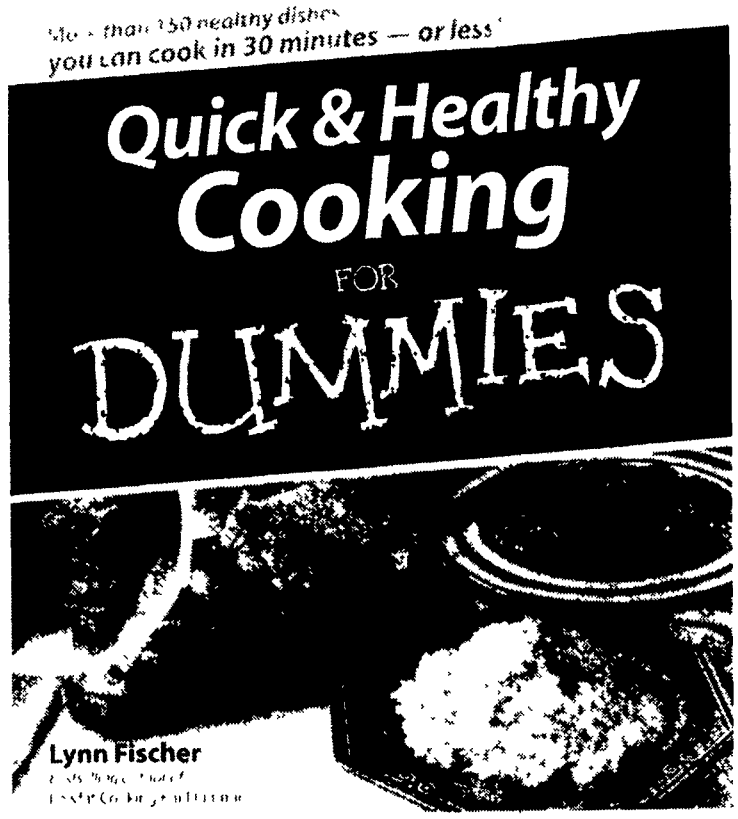
Spray a 13x9-inch baking pan with cooking spray, wiping out any excess. Cover the bottom with a layer of graham cracker squares.

Cover the crackers with a layer of banana slices and pour in the whipped filling. Spread to make an even layer. Sprinkle the top with the graham cracker crumbs. Chill for 2 hours.

Nutrition at a glance (per serving): Calories 202.1 g; Protein 2,8 g; Carbohydrates 45.1 g; Dietary fiber 1.6 g; total fat 1.0 g; Saturated fat 0.3 g; Cholesterol 0 mg; Sodium 165.2 mg.

Lynn's tip: You can change the flavor to any you like or add fresh fruit in between or on the side. The original recipe was to make this with two 6-ounce cans very cold evaporated skim milk and ⅔ cups sugar, beating it into soft peaks and adding the gelatin in a stream. Chill as directed. Both versions taste great, but the time is shortened and the taste is still great with the lowfat version.



Milk Protein Can Put Sizzle Into Lowfat Meats

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Remember Sunday mornings when the smell of sausage filled the house? Then the lowfat craze kicked in, making full-fat sausage off limits for many. Unfortunately, lowfat sausages, hot dogs and other processed meats left much to be desired.

Now, Ohio State University food scientists have developed lowfat meats that taste-test panelists found superior not only to lowfat meat products currently on the market, but in some cases, to their full-fat counterparts as well. Researchers found they could create lowfat meats with taste and texture remarkably similar to that of full-fat products by replacing most of the fat with a solution of whey protein, a byproduct of cheese manufacturing, and water.

Mike Mangino, professor of Food Science and Technology, discovered that heating whey protein changes its molecular structure in a way that enables it to form strong, irreversible gels when heated with water. This gel formation is the key to its success as a fat substitute. Through gelation, the whey proteins entrap water molecules; this water-binding action contributes to a tender and juicy meat product.

'The whey protein and water solution forms little gel bubbles throughout the meat. This breaks up the meat structure and adds lubricity, like fat does in regular meats," Mangino said. "It simulates what meat ought to feel like when you bite into it."

Using the whey protein and water solution to replace fat in processed meats also results in less shrinkage during cooking than full-fat products, Mangino said.

The unique properties of whey protein provide a flavor boost in addition to its functional advantages. Upon heating, the sugar and protein react to produce what Mangino refers to as "an enhanced meaty flavor."

— Contains 110 calories, compared with 310 in a similar full-fat product.

— Contains 14 grams of protein, compared with 9 grams in a full-fat product.

In Mangino's lowfat meats, whey protein makes up a small percentage of the final product. For every 10 percent of fat removed from a formula, up to 10 percent water and 1 percent whey protein can be substituted. The whey protein gels at the same temperature as meat proteins, which makes it easily substituted in meat formulations. Manufacturers may need to adjust their spice mixes, cooking and smoking times due to the whey protein's flavor binding and enhancing properties.

OSU food scientists tested lowfat whey breakfast sausage, hot dogs and hamburger with successful results — particularly with the breakfast sausage. Taste-test panelists judged the taste of the lowfat sausage, which has one-fifth the fat and one-third the calories of regular sausage, superior to that of full-fat varieties. OSU food scientists had similarly successful results with lowfat hot dogs and hamburger. Mangino said the whey and water solution could be used to replace fat in most any chopped meat product. Mangino said major food companies and restaurant chains have expressed interest in development and marketing of lowfat whey meat products, but added that it's too early to predict when consumers will see these products on supermarket shelves.

Shenk started the bus making project in the fall and worked on it evenings whenever it fit into his schedule.

Shenk has no plans to retire. He said, "I like my grandchildren (he has seven) and my bus children. I miss both the children and the driving during the summer months."

His wife said, "He really has patience. I marvel at how he handles problems."

"You must be a little of a lot of different people—mother, father, pastor, nurse, and psychiatrist," Shenk said of bus drivers.

He often finds conversing with his bus children a bit amusing. One 6-year old reported it was his dad's birthday. When Shenk inquired how old his father was, the child replied, "I think 11."

His questions aren't always answered as he expects. Once he asked a little girl what she was going to do when she grew up. She answered, "I don't know, but I do know I like you."

Bidding on the hand-carved wooden school bus begins at 11 a.m.

The auction begins Friday, May 12, with a craft show and quilt preview at 4 p.m. A southern-style all-you-can-eat pig roast will be served 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

An antiques and collectible auction will begin at 6:30 p.m. Some of the items to be sold include a hall rack, wheat cradle, rope bed, dining room suite, mantle clock, school desks, milk bottles, and wooden planes.

A country breakfast, from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., is first on the agenda for Sat. May 13. The craft show reopens at 8 a.m.; the auction at 8:30 a.m. with quality goods and services donated by local and national businesses. At 9:30 a.m., an outside auction will feature an expanded selection of plants, bark mulch, garden tools, and landscape items.

New this year is "Feature of the Hour," when bidding will be undertaken for such items as a weekend package at Greenbrier, a five-star resort in W.Va., a push lawn mower, a custom painted cabinet, and other items to be announced.

Quilt auction begins at 1 p.m. and includes designs such as a Tree of Life applique, pineapple, M.S. Hershey Parchment, bargello, and other well-known and not so well-known names.

Throughout the day, foods for all tastes will be available.

AUCTION HELD AT PREMISES: 1 mile East of Schaefferstown along Route 897, Lebanon County, Pennsylvania

In 1940 Clyde Youtz and his family moved to his present home in Schaefferstown Clyde followed many interests but pursued the world of antiques as a full time occupation. Clyde married his wife Betty and built a new house in 1943. In this dwelling, Clyde assembled a very important co'lection of folk art, antiques, and memorabilia. Clyde and his wife Betty became living legends in the world of antiques. The passing of both of them creates a significant void in the realm of those who knew them throughout the years. It is our privilege to offer the real property along with selected personal property of the late Clyde and Betty Youtz.

Perry Co. Estate Auction

130 Acre Farm

Saturday, May 27th

12:00 Noon

Location: Follow Rt. 849 West from Newport in Perry Co. You will cross Luke Toomy Bridge over Big Buffalo Creek, in the village of Wila where Rt. 849 makes a left turn. Proceed 6/10 mile to make right turn onto State Rt. 4007 at auction sign to the first farm on right. Approx. 30 miles West of Harrisburg.

This 130 Ac. farm, located in Juniata Township offers endless potential to the farmer as well as the land developer. This farm consists of approx. 74 acres of tillable land with a shaly, silt loam type soil, known as calvin. This good soil is suitable for most all crops. Several small wooded acres and a meadow with a nice sized stream, perfect for pasturing livestock, make up the remaining acreage. The setting of this meadow is perfect for a large farm pond. There is a 2 story, wood frame, 4 bedroom farm house with a kitchen, living room, family room and full bath on the first floor. This home is heated with electric heat and a small oil stove. It has a concrete basement and a closed-in side porch. There is a drilled well and an on lot septic system.

There is a large bank barn which was last used for dairy cows, 2 large machinery sheds and several smaller out buildings. With its location only minutes from the Newport Exit of Rt. 22/322, double township road frontage, and double road frontage on State Rt. 4007, this farm offers endless development potential.

This farm will be shown on Saturday, May 6th and Saturday, May 13th from 10:00 A.M. till 2:00 P.M. You may also call 717-243-9868, or 717-567-3687 for an appointment.

TERMS: 10% down and the balance in 45 days. Other terms at sale.

Attorney: Ronald E. Johnson

Pa. Producer Boosts Efficiency With Free One-Year Lease Of Tractor

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa – Farming is a tough business these days, said Ken Myers of Spring Grove, Pa. Myers, who farms nearly 1,700 acres with his family, employs innovations such as Roundup Ready® seeds and an automated feeding system to boost his operation's efficiency.

This year, he is also benefiting from the use of a new John Deere tractor – and the payments aren't costing him a dime.

Myers is among eight producers who won The JDC™ free one-year lease contest. His name was drawn during the Farm Science Review in London, Ohio. He has selected a John Deere 7510 Tractor from Finch Services — Hanover Inc. in Hanover, Pa.

"My sons, Mike and Billy, actually chose the model we are going to use. They selected the John Deere 7510 Tractor because it's flexible and just the right size for us," Myers said.

Besides his two sons, Myers and his wife, Cindy, have a partnership with his brother, Donald, and their parents, William and Charmaine. The family, which still farms the original acreage that William purchased in the 1950s, raises corn, soybeans, wheat, barley, and hay. The farm also includes an 80-cow dairy and a 100-head steer-finishing operation.

The Myers' older son, Mike, 18, was graduated from high school last spring and has decided to work full-time on the farm. Myers said he expects 15-year-old Billy to follow in his brother's footsteps.

"Mike has already planted 400 acres of wheat. He'll probably use the new tractor the most – with the planter, the drill, and the mower/conditioner. Billy will do all the feeding with the tractor after he gets home from school," Myers said.

The Myers family is not new to John Deere equipment. Family members have purchased and used John Deere tractors, balers, planters, combines, and loaders for years. The farm also has a John Deere crawler tractor that is used for a variety of jobs.

According to Myers, the hallmark of John Deere equipment is service and reliability. It doesn't matter if it's 10:30 at night. The people from Finch Services are here when we need them," Myers said.

He indicated that his family typically finances equipment purchases through John Deere Credit. Although he has seldom leased equipment in the past, Myers views leasing as a likelihood in the future. "Leasing makes sense because we don't keep our equipment very long – only two to three years," he said. "One of the benefits of leasing is that all of the payments are tax deductible." Myers also uses his Farm Plan® Preferred Card for routine expenses, such as parts purchases.

Facing the worst drought conditions ever, and with commodity prices at their lowest levels in years, Myers said his family takes advantage of every opportunity to boost farm income. Because the family has plenty of on-farm storage, Myers typically stores the family's grain until prices are more favorable, then sells it to a large local dealer who loads the grain directly from the bins. Family members also haul chickens for a nearby poultry producer.

"Farming is a seven-day-a-week job for us," Myers concluded. "But we love it – we would never give it up."

This was the fifth year John Deere Credit has offered the JDC free one year lease contest. In 2000, farmers will be able to register for the contest at the California Farm Show, National Farm Machinery Show in Kentucky, Big Iron Show in North Dakota, Farm Progress Show in Indiana, Farm Science Review in Ohio, Husker Harvest Days in Nebraska, Sunbelt Agricultural Exposition in Georgia, and Texas Farmer-Stockman Show.

BE Power Train
Clutch and Gear Reduction
Model F

Features
- New style clutch Fewer moving parts than ever before Parts hardened & finish ground No linkage to wear out
- Bolts directly onto most 8-22 hp engines Can be used on engines up to 30 Hp
- 8-1 ratio for PTO hookups, engine RPMs 3130, and 540 at PTO
- Run live hydraulic with belt
- No need to cut off crankshaft, just bolt it on.

Take a closer look. Designed for the farmer and/or whoever needs a clutch and gear reduction for P.T.O. and other drives. This BE Clutch and Reduction can easily be mounted directly on engines such as Honda, Kawasaki, Robin w/special pilot dia., Briggs-Vanguard and others. Some engines with larger pilot diameters need an adaptor (we make them), such as Kohler, Onan, small diesels and others.

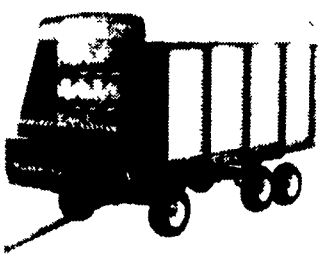
MILLER PRO

Rake in more feed value!

Less leaf loss with gentle sweeping action. Crop is handled only once. Cam action tine arms lift the crop and deposit it in the swath, forming faster-drying, higher, fluffier windrows. No roping rolling or twisting.



Forage Boxes:

- Front, Rear and Front/Rear Combo Unloading
- Field Flex™ Design
- Durable Unitized Construction
- Crop Clear™ Rafterless Roof

YIELD-TILL® SYSTEM

DMI Soil Management For Higher Yields

Get More Bushels Out of Every Field By Using Deep Till Tiger Points.

DMI Tiger Points have wings that are swept downward, rearward and outward. This revolutionary design creates a lifting and twisting action that shatters compaction.

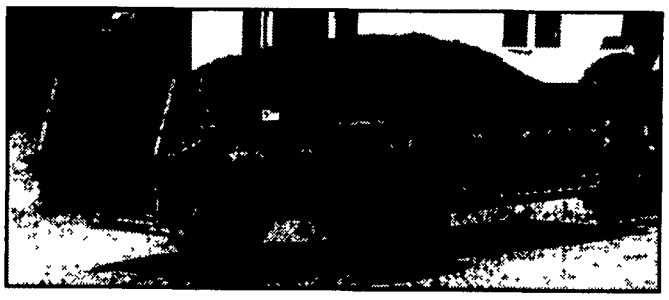
BLOW OUT PRICING PROGRAM ON NEW KNIGHT 300 BUSHEL SPREADERS IN STOCK!

SINGLE AXLE & TANDEM MODELS IN STOCK FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

An all-new spreader designed and built in the Knight tradition of heavy-duty, rugged, long-lasting products with features to carry you into the 21st century.

Single Axle and Tandem Axle Models - Low Clearance



BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. has a Heavy Duty KNIGHT

One day in 1949, a friend told Stan Knight, "I wish someone would make a spreader that would not break down with frozen manure." That challenge to the founder of Knight Manufacturing led to the Knight heavy duty manure spreaders that were soon on the market. The common focus of Knight spreaders to this day is that they are simple and rugged and designed to give many years of service.

New 75XT Lift and Carry Skid Steer

The 75XT, with its extremely stable and maneuverable wheel base and power reach lift design is the perfect machine for virtually any lift and carry application The 75XT features 2200 pounds of operating load for handling heavy loads in agricultural landscaping and general construction applications Large square bales and silage bales are easily handled by the 75XT With 10% greater wheel base than the 1845C, the 75XT is extremely stable and comfortable to operate Both hand control and foot control options are available to match operator preference The field proven, reliable Case 4-390 engine rated at 60 Horsepower, provides low cost of operation Coupler attachment pickup specifications are the same as the 1845C, so buckets, brooms, augers, bale spikes, auto rakes, snow blades, and scrap grapples can be used Other attachments, such as pallet forks, must be matched to the increased lift capacity of the 75XT

The 75XT is a perfect skid steer for a wide variety of applications in the rapidly expanding lift and carry market It sets new standards in power and lift capacity with added value and more performance for the investment

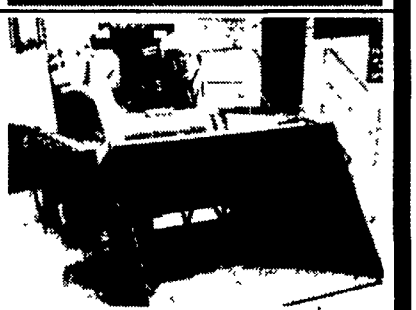
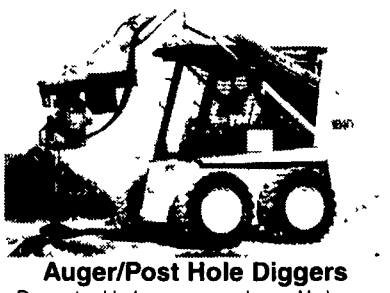
Backhoes
DX100XR for the 1840 Long Boom and Dipper for Extra Reach Transforms skid steer into a mini-excavator, several are available • D125 for the 1845C This beefy Case backhoe has the capacity for heavy-duty digging

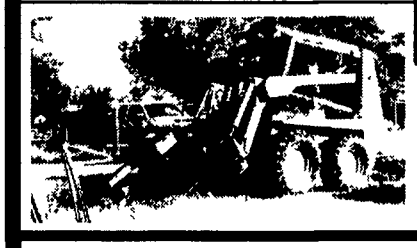


The All Purpose Spreader
Skid loader mounted (Universal hook-up), hydraulic driven, unloads right or left, can be used to spread bedding or feed silage, etc Simple cost efficient design



Auger/Post Hole Diggers
Dig vertical holes, even on slopes High performance post hole diggers with up to 4 year warranties Also economy models available

Utility/Snow Blade
Hydraulically adjusts for light utility dozing, backfilling and removing snow



Trencher
Trencher mounts to loader arms and permits easy operator entry and exit
Choice of booms and chains
Use with auxiliary of high-flow hydraulics
A side-shift version is available

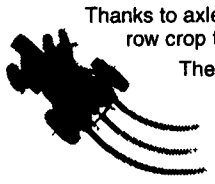
The Shortest Turning Large Tractor You Can Own Today! Simple, User-Friendly Operation.

Industry Leading Turning Radius

The revolutionary chassis of the MX Series Magnum improves your overall performance and productivity. In fact, the innovative Surround frame allows for the tightest turning radius in the industry, even with front duals!

Thanks to axle improvements, engine placement and a sleek hood design, the MX Series Magnum can easily turn into 12 30-inch rows with all row crop tire configurations on true 60-inch tread settings.



The new, single-piece, sculpted, cast iron Surround frame is the key to the enhanced capabilities and performance of these tractors It enables the MX Series Magnum to offer the first factory front duals, dramatically improving both traction and flotation By balancing the chassis, we've significantly reduced the amount of front ballast required. And the frame easily accomodates mounted chemical tanks or loaders, allowing you to perform multiple applications.

The "570" New Holland square baler brings together performance, reliability and capacity.

- Rotary feeding system adds consistency and bale quality.
- Fast plunger stroke – 93 SPM. A Cat. 6 drive-line and increased slip clutch setting add capacity.
- Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup. 65" wide to get those big scattered windrows.
- Strong materials in bale case and plunger.
- Gear-driven tying mechanisms – wire or twine.

Ask for a demonstration of the New Holland "570" baler... the best-in-class square baler.

Why wait for the sun

Speed up drying time with a New Holland tedder. It lifts down crop up so air flows through it. Choose from three tedders—8'6" Model 157, 16'5" Model 163, or 22'8" Model 169.

Stop in. We'd like to show you how our tedders can help you put up quality hay.

KramerAllrad

The Kramer 418 Telescopic has been specifically designed for use in agriculture.
Reach anywhere you like, with a lift height of 15', and safe and strong parallel linkage.
We've designed the 418 Telescopic with extremely compact dimensions. Now nothing will hold you any longer, not even in the most confined areas.

Kramer design is the key to the 418 Telescopic superior stability. you can count on the undivided frame to keep the centre of gravity of the machine right there where it belongs – at the centre of the machine So moving loads straight ahead or around corners doesn't make any difference at all. For maximum output and maximum safety. You'll enjoy driving this machine, with hydrostatic drive and precise joystick controls.

Extremely compact
100% wheel loader

EXCLUSIVE SHEARBAR PROTECTION COLLISION INSURANCE

Shearhubs, an exclusive John Deere feature, are standard equipment on all rotary MoCo's. Should the cutterbar receive a severe impact - from a rock, tree stump, or worse - the hub sears, protecting the inner gears. A shearhub costs about $40 to replace, and can be carried in the field. Compare that to the cost of repairing or replacing a complete cutterbar assembly on another machine. Then visit us for details. We can help make sure you're covered.

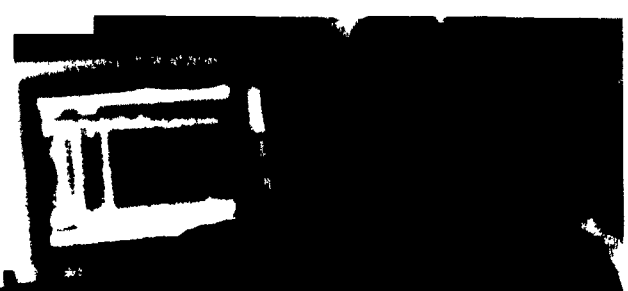
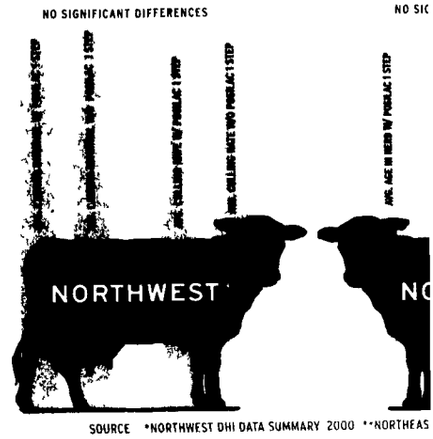
SUCCESS ISN'T A DESTINATION. IT'S A COMMITMENT. TO GETTING BETTER EVERY DAY. TO GETTING THE MOST OUT OF WHAT YOU CAN PRODUCE. TO MOVING FORWARD BY MAKING THE MOST OUT OF WHERE YOU ARE.



POSILAC 1 STEP CAN HELP YOU REACH YOUR GOALS.

START 9-10 WKS AFTER CALVING

Because cows have more responsive secretory cells available early in lactation versus later, cows should be supplemented earlier rather than later. For best results, start POSILAC 1 STEP 9-10 weeks after calving.



GET AN 8-12 POUND RESPONSE, YEAR AFTER YEAR

From clinical and field trials to the Northeast DHI Data Study and the Northwest DHI Data Summary, a wide range of studies over many years all prove that POSILAC 1 STEP increases response an average of 8-12 pounds/cow/day, lactation after lactation, year after year.

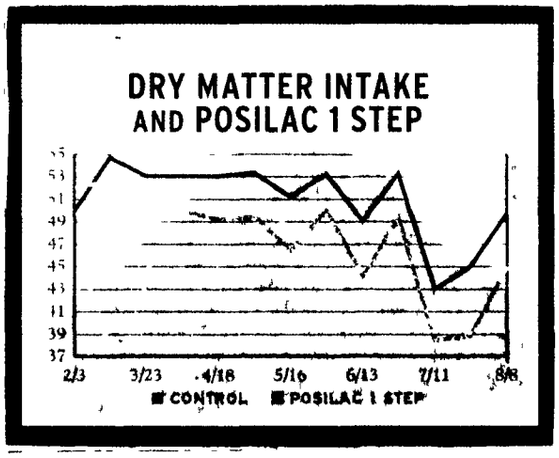
REDUCE YOUR COST OF PRODUCTION

While you can't control milk prices, you can control your cost of production. Using POSILAC 1 STEP reduces your cost of production per CWT, making the additional milk you produce extremely cost efficient.

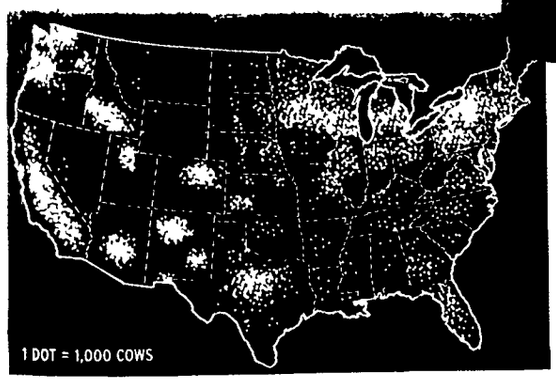


DRY MATTER INTAKE INCREASES

Healthy, comfortable cows maintain higher levels of DMI. Cows in herds supplemented with POSILAC 1 STEP increase dry matter intake in accordance with production and maintain higher levels of DMI throughout lactation, even during periods of hot weather.

COWS FEED THEMSELVES FIRST

Cows always feed themselves first to maintain health and fetal development. Then, and only then, are extra nutrients used to produce more milk.



POSILAC 1 STEP ACROSS THE COUNTRY

Producers with herd sizes from the teens to the thousands, in every management situation and from all regions of the country have successfully used POSILAC 1 STEP for years. With sound nutritional, herd health and cow comfort management, anyone can use POSILAC 1 STEP to become more productive and more profitable.

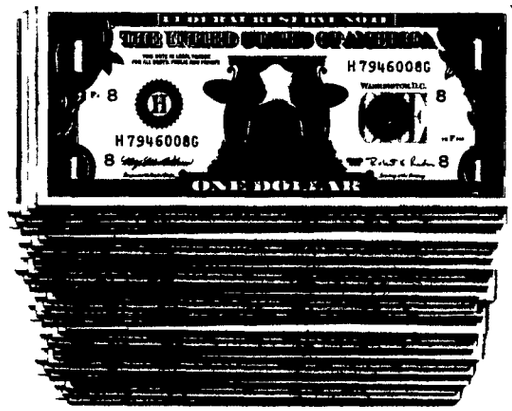
COWS STAY HEALTHY AND GET BRED BACK

DHI records in different parts of the country indicate that cows in herds using POSILAC 1 STEP stay healthy and get bred back at about the same rates as herds that do not. Past clinical trials indicate pregnancy rates may be reduced in cows and days open may increase in heifers. See POSILAC 1 STEP label for details.

IMPROVE YOUR CASH FLOW

Cash flow is especially important with narrow margins. POSILAC 1 STEP can help give you results you'll see for yourself as soon as your next milk check.



BREAK-EVEN RESPONSE

Farmers Can Earn Money From Natural Resources

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Stable or falling commodity prices are forcing many farmers to look for alternative sources of income. Farmers and other rural landowners could make some extra money by charging people to hunt, fish or pursue other forms of outdoor recreation on their land, said Ed Smith, natural resources specialist at the east district office of Ohio State University Extension.

How much money could be made depends on location, the extra services provided, the quality and type of natural resources on the land, and many other factors. But landowners could earn as little as $5 per acre up to several thousand dollars total for the whole property by allowing access to their land for a fee, Smith said.

As the demand for outdoor recreation increases, public parks and recreation sites, especially in the Eastern United States, are becoming crowded, he said.

The Eastern United States contains 78 percent of the nation's population, but only 9 percent of the publicly owned land. In Ohio, only 7 percent of the forestland is publicly owned, Smith said. As a result, private land can play an important role in providing recreational opportunities.

"As dual-income families with little available leisure time demand more recreational opportunities close to home, more possibilities open up for landowners to allow access to the natural resources on their property," he said.

Fee access for outdoor recreation has become more common in recent years, but is most prevalent in hunting. Each year, 14 million people hunt, and 83 percent of them hunt solely or partially on private land.

"Hunters are a group highly affected by the availability of private land and have shown a willingness to pay for access," Smith said.

More than 35 million Americans fish annually. Fisherman have better access to public waters but have also shown some willingness to pay for access, he said. Hunters and fishers spend $71.9 billion each year — 20.5 percent of that is spent on trip-related expenses and 7.7 percent on land leasing, licenses and other fees.

Wildlife watching — observing, photographing or feeding — is enjoyed by nearly 63 million people in the United States. Wildlife watchers spend $29 billion a year, with 32 percent going to trip related expenses. Other nonconsumptive forms of outdoor recreation that could be done on private lands include picnicking, walking, nature study, day hiking and cross-country skiing.

"Nonconsumptive users, both for wildlife and other types of recreation, are accustomed to free access or access at a nominal rate on public lands," Smith said. "But, as public recreation sites become more congested, nonconsumptive users may become more willing to pay for a closer and possibly higher-quality recreation experience."

Different types of participants require different natural resources, so the people willing to pay for access to private land will vary by location and the attributes of the land, Smith said. For example, nature photographers require access to scenic views or wildlife populations, while cross-country skiers need extensive land area and may be willing to travel longer distances to participate.

"Joggers, day hikers and picnickers prefer easy, close access and may not require unique natural environments," he said.

The age composition of nearby urban centers makes a difference. Being close to an area where the average age of residents is older indicates a more likely demand for more passive activities. These types of factors are as important in determining the potential for marketing recreational opportunities as the natural resource base of the land, Smith said.

Fee-access things to consider include: how much land will be made available; what types of activities will be permitted; how many people will be allowed access at one time, particularly during popular hunting seasons; what days and times will access be allowed; is landowner insurance necessary; what warnings can be offered to reduce liability; what services can be provided, such as hiking trails, hunting stands, stocked ponds and camping sites, to add value to the land; what arrival/departure, parking, alcohol use and other rules need to be set; and how will fees be charged.

Fees could be per hunter per year, per acre, per season or some combination of these. Participants should sign a written agreement before being allowed access to the land, Smith said.

Landowners also should consider how they will market their land and the potential start-up and annual costs before they begin allowing fee access on their property.

For more information about the possibilities of allowing fee access to private lands, contact Smith at the east district office of Ohio State University Extension at (740) 732-2381.

A New Heat Detection Aid For Dairy Cattle Available

PLAIN CITY, OHIO — Are you looking for an easy, economical way to help you catch your cows in heat?

Then MAC Tail Paint is just the heat detection aid for you.

Available from your local Select Sires representative, MAC Tail Paint is a specially formulated animal marking compound that can be easily sprayed or wiped on a cow or heifer. So when it's rubbed off, you know she's in heat.

With its unique oil-based formulation, MAC Tail Paint lasts 21-28 days, reducing waste and saving time, labor and money. You just put one swipe on against the grain of the hair and another one with the grain of the hair.

You know that open days cost you money. At $3 per day open, a missed heat will cost you an average of $63. For less than 20 cents per cow, MAC Tail Paint catches her in heat and saves you money. Plus, it increases heat detection accuracy up to 20 percent over conventional chalking.

MAC Tail Paint's weather resistant qualities also make it more resilient to indiscriminate, non-estrus-related mounts or rubbing. This accuracy has been demonstrated through use on millions of cows in Australia and New Zealand.

"MAC Tail Paint is the only heat detection aid I'm using in two large herds that milk 4,500 cows each," said Gil McDougal, technician for Cache Valley elect Sires. "The biggest advantage I'm seeing with the product is that it stays on in wet weather and helps eliminate questionable heats. MAC Tail Paint is more economical than regular tail head chalk because you don't have to use as much product. Plus, I don't see nearly as many smears, licks or chin rubs with the MAC Tail Paint that I see with regular tail head chalk. Plus, I'm catching more cows in heat by using MAC Tail Paint."

MAC Tail Paint is available in four bright waterproof colors allowing you to color-mark cows based on their breeding status. It can also be used as an individual animal marker, identifying ill, treated or "at risk" animals. Apply MAC Tail Paint to the leg or on the udder to make it clear that the animal in question needs special care or treatment.

ASA Supports Biotechnology Report From House Subcommittee On Basic Research

SAINT LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) announced support for a report prepared by the Subcommittee on Basic Research of the U.S. House of Representatives' Agriculture Committee, that found immense benefits and scientifically sound regulation of agricultural biotechnology.

The report is titled "Seeds of Opportunity: An Assessment of the Benefits, Safety, and Oversight of Plant Genomics and Agricultural Biotechnology."

"ASA welcomes this new report that reconfirms, and reassures consumers, that agricultural biotechnology is soundly tested and regulated," said ASA President Marc Curtis, a soybean producer from Leland, Miss. "This report adds to a wide range of reports and studies that have looked in-depth at biotechnology and found it to be safe for consumers and the environment, and of great potential benefit."

The House Subcommittee report says years of research and experience demonstrate that plant varieties produced using biotechnology, and the foods derived from them, are just as safe as similar varieties produced using classical plant breeding. The report says the promise of agricultural biotechnology is immense, and advances in this technology will result in crops with a wide range of desirable traits that will directly benefit farmers, consumers, and the environment and increase global food production and quality.

The report found that the current generation of pest-resistant and herbicide-tolerant agricultural plants produced using biotechnology has reduced chemical inputs and improved yields for American farmers. The report says future adoption of new varieties will continue this trend and will solve intractable pest problems, help protect the environment, and lower costs to consumers.

According to the report, widespread use of pest-resistant crop varieties developed using agricultural biotechnology is unlikely to accelerate the emergence of pesticide-resistant insect strains and may actually be more effective in preventing their emergence when compared to spray applications of similar pesticides.

The report found that the concept of "substantial equivalence" in the regulation of foods developed using agricultural biotechnology is scientifically sound and provides a useful historical baseline for judging safety. And the report says there is no scientific justification for labeling foods based on the method by which they are produced. Labeling of agricultural biotechnology products would confuse, not inform, consumers and send a misleading message on safety.

"ASA is pleased that in addition to its findings, the report makes recommendations that re-enforce sound science as the basis for oversight and policies affecting biotechnology products, labeling and marketing," said Curtis.

The House Subcommittee report recommends that Federal regulatory oversight of agriculture biotechnology should be risk-based and guided by the characteristics of the plant, its intended use, and the environment into which it is to be introduced, not by the method used to produce it.

The report says the FDA should maintain its current science-based policy on labeling of foods created using biotechnology as described in its 1992 Statement of Policy. There is no scientific justification for special labeling of food products developed using agricultural biotechnology, as a class.

The report recommends the Administration should work to ensure that markets for products of agricultural biotechnology are not restricted by scientifically unsound measures. The United States should not accept any international agreements that violate scientific principles and limit trade in, or mandate labeling of, a plant or food product based on the method used to develop it.

And, the House Subcommittee report says the Administration, industry, and scientific community have a responsibility to educate the public and improve the availability of information on the long record of safe use of agricultural biotechnology products and research activities.

The report points out that almost without exception, the crop plants in use today have been genetically modified. The development of new plant varieties through selective breeding has been improving agriculture and food production for thousands of years. The report says the development of the science of genetics in the 20th century was a tremendously important factor in the plant breeding programs that have produced the remarkable diversity of fruits, vegetables, and grains that we enjoy today and that provide food security for the poor nations of the world.

The report emphasizes that biotechnology has had an uninterrupted record of safe use, and it will be a key element in the fight against malnutrition worldwide. In addition, the merging of medical and agricultural biotechnology has opened up new ways to develop plant varieties with characteristics to enhance health.

"ASA commends the House Agriculture Committee and Subcommittee Chairman Nick Smith for their efforts to objectively examine issues surrounding agricultural biotechnology," said Curtis. "We all benefit from the continued responsible management of biotechnology, because our future is one where every consumer has the potential to benefit, many times over, from the variety of great accomplishments that will come from the biotech industry."

Center Announces Bull Sale Report

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) – The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the results of its 27th Annual Performance Tested Bull Sale March 31. The sale was part of the 11th annual Beef Expo.

State Agriculture Secretary Sam E. Hayes Jr. brought greetings from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and reaffirmed Pennsylvania's support of agriculture. Hayes also discussed the status of the new Meat Animal Evaluation Center and his commitment to this project.

Dr. Terry Etherton, head, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, brought greetings from Penn State to the huge crowd and pledged support for animal agriculture. Paul Slayton, the new executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, asked the crowd to sign a petition supporting the construction of a new Meat Animal Evaluation Center, to be presented to the governor.

The PCA award for the top-indexing bull of all breeds was presented to Marlin Paul of Mahantongo Angus Farm. They bred the Angus bull that received this award and the highest price of the day. This bull sold for $3,550 to Charles W. Homan of Spring Mill. This record setting performance bull was a son of a previous top-performing bull the Pauls bought through Pennsylvania's 1997 Performance Tested Bull sale.

The second-highest selling bull of the day was an Angus bred by Paul and Bette Slayton, which sold to Gregory Farr, Millville, for $3,000.

The 32 Angus bulls sold for an average of $1,777, with only three of the Angus returning less than $1,400.

The 24 Simmentals catalogued was the largest number of Simmental bulls ever offered through Pennsylvania's Performance Tested Bull sales. Twenty-one Simmental bulls sold for $25,626, to average $1,220. The top-selling Simmental was also the top-indexing, and was consigned by John Myers, Dallastown. This black ET bull was purchased by Charles Homan, Spring Mills, for $2,600. The second and third highest indexing Simmentals sold for $1,550 each, which was the next highest price paid for Simmental bulls. The second highest indexing Simmental was bred by Jack Herr of Fredericksburg and sold to Ken Hebel, Grantville, Pa. The next highest indexing Simmental was a maternal brother to the top-indexing Simmental, consigned by Phil Druck and purchased by Wilfred Markey of Dallastown.

The top-indexing Hereford bull was consigned by Sally Abrams, Livingston Manor, N.Y., and purchased by Robert Granter of Troy for $1,200. The top-selling Hereford consigned by Ralph Strouse, Wheel Estate Acres, was purchased for $1,600 by Thomas Mullinix for the USDA. The second highest selling Hereford was bred by Frank Phoenix, McVeytown, and sold to Ed Perkins, Beech Lake, for $1,500. The seven Hereford bulls averaged $1,182.

The top-indexing Charolais, consigned by Bratton Charolais Farms of McVeytown, bought $1,200 from Samuel McKeehan of Mount Union.

The top-indexing and top-selling Limousin bull consigned by Kevin Murphy, Saltsburg, sold to Gerald Culler, McConnellsburg, for $1,200.

The 62 bulls averaged $1,503, making it a very successful sale overall.

For more information about Pennsylvania's Performance Testing Programs, contact Glenn Eberly, director, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857 message and/or fax.

CRI Enters Agreement To Sample Brown Swiss Bulls

SHAWANO, Wis. — Cooperative Resources International (CRI), headquartered at Shawano, Wis., has entered into an agreement with Super Brown, an artificial insemination (AI) cooperative in northern Italy, to jointly sample Brown Swiss bulls.

The agreement states that CRI and Super Brown will jointly sample nine Brown Swiss bulls annually.

A second part of the agreement includes the exchange of semen from both countries on proven Brown Swiss bulls. CRI will market Super Brown proven bulls throughout the U.S. and in other countries not serviced by Super Brown, including Canada, Latin America and other European countries. Since Super Brown's marketing area is essentially northern Italy, they will work with CRI Europe to market proven Genex Brown Swiss bulls in other parts of Italy as well.

In their marketing area in northern Italy at the base of the Alps Mountains, Super Brown works with a population of 40,000 Brown Swiss cows on milk recording and has complete control of AI in the area. This is more Brown Swiss cows than there are in the U.S., which means U.S. producers will have access to some of the best Brown Swiss genetics in the world. Many of the Super Brown proven sires rank very high on the Interbull sire lists, including the top two proven bulls on the current list in the United States.

Super Brown currently progeny tests about 40 Brown Swiss young sires annually, compared to seven sampled annually by CRI. They also have a MOET program similar to the CRI GENESIS program. It involves breeding first lactation cows in all their herds to the top, new proven sires that come through their program with a goal of speeding up genetic progress.

High Speed Skid Shoe From Yetter

COLCHESTER, Ill. — Farmers using the Yetter Avenger® high speed sludge or manure injection system can hold soil in place with the new Skid Shoe from Yetter.

The Skid Shoe uses a poly plastic skid plate which resists soil buildup, particularly in heavy, wet soils. Soil and residue is held in place as the skid shoe glides over the soil next to the 25-inch opener blade.

"Manure or sludge application sometimes occurs in less than ideal soil conditions," said Gene Chenoweth of the Yetter Research and Development Department. "The plastic skid plate allows the Avenger® to keep working in very wet soil previously considered too wet for application."

The Skid Shoe is 18 inches long and mounts easily to the Avenger®. A steel plate backs the poly plastic skid plate for long life.

When installed on the 2986 series Avenger®, the Skid Shoe keeps soil from building up on the opener blade. Ideal for no-till applications, the Skid Shoe holds soil in place, permitting application in very demanding soil conditions.

Genetic ID's New GMO Tests Can Save U.S. Corn Exports

FAIRFIELD, Iowa — Genetic ID, Inc., the pioneer and world leader in testing foods for genetically modified organisms (GMOs), has developed cost-effective tests that could help save hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. corn and corn-based food exports to Japan and restore stalled U.S. corn exports to Europe.

Known as Varietal ID, the tests screen for specific unapproved varieties of GMOs and promise to protect U.S. exporters from risks of refused shipments and legal penalties.

A new Japanese Ministry of Health and Welfare regulation bans imports of unapproved genetically modified (GM) corn varieties for human consumption. The new regulation has zero tolerance; if any amount of GMO is detected, corn shipments can be rejected and products seized and destroyed. Importers may also face fines and criminal penalties.

The regulation has sparked protests from the U.S. agricultural sector, which witnessed corn exports to the EU plummet from $305 million in 1996 to only $1 million in 1999 due to GMO restrictions, according to a recent New York Times article. Japan is the largest export market for U.S. corn, buying an average 480 million bushels a year, or 31 percent of all U.S. corn exported.

"The high-risk situation demands precise, reliable, and consistent testing to detect the unapproved varieties," said Dr. Bernd Schoel, Genetic ID, director of analytical services. "Our new Varietal ID tests solve this problem, reducing the risks for exporters."

Genetic ID's DNA tests can reliably detect as little as two molecules of genetically modified DNA and identify all the commercialized GM varieties of grains, fruits, and vegetables on the market.

Genetic ID's two new Varietal ID tests identify the seven GM corn varieties unapproved in Japan, and the 11 varieties unapproved in the EU. In addition, Genetic ID can quickly develop Varietal ID tests for any GMOs unapproved by any trading partner. For example, tests can be developed for U.S.-grown GM tomatoes, squash, and other products not approved in Japan.

"With each nation creating their own list of unapproved varieties and labeling thresholds for GMOs, exporters face unprecedented challenges," said Bill Witherspoon, Genetic ID's chief executive officer. "Genetic ID's Varietal ID tests, which cost as little as a penny per bushel, and our threshold tests which cost even less, provide industry with the tools to navigate through the maze of regulation and risk."

Genetic ID, in cooperation with LawLabs of the United Kingdom, also developed Cert ID, the world's first non-GMO certification program, which provides further protection with third-party assurance of non-GMO production.

Monferino Appointed President, Chief Operating Officer For CNH Global, N.V.

RACINE, Wis. — CNH Global (NYSE:CNH) announced that Paolo Monferino has been appointed president and chief operating officer.

Monferino replaces Steven G. Lamb, who has resigned to pursue other business interests.

"Paolo has the industry, management and operational experience to enable us to maintain our momentum and to continue to achieve improved financial performance," said Jean-Pierre Rosso, chairman and chief executive officer. "This appointment enables us to continue to focus on enhancing shareholder value as we aggressively strive to improve the success and profitability of our customers."

Monferino, 53, had been executive vice president of the Fiat Group with responsibility for Fiat's Automotive Components and Industrial Diversified companies. He has more than 15 years of experience in the agricultural and construction business beginning at Fiatallis, a joint-venture between Fiat's construction equipment business and Allis Chalmers based in the U.S.

In 1983, he was named chief executive officer of Fiatallis Latin America operations based in Brazil. In 1985, he was appointed chief operating officer of Fiatallis.

Monferino became the chief operating officer of Fiatagri, the farm machinery division of the Fiat Group in 1987. Following the 1991 acquisition of Ford New Holland by Fiat Geotech and the creation of New Holland, Monferino was named executive vice president of the new company headquartered in London where his responsibilities covered strategy and business development, including product, marketing and industrial policies.

Monferino received his degree in mechanical engineering from the Polytechnic of Turin in 1971.

"We thank Steve Lamb for his leadership, dedication, commitment to our business. We wish him every success in the future," Rosso said.

New Soil Management Tools Added To Case IH Line

RACINE, Wis. — Two new tools are being added to the Case IH tillage line to help growers break up shallow compaction, manage residue, and level fields.

The two - the Case IH 6700 coulter chisel plow and 6750 parabolic chisel plow - are available in 7, 9, 11 and 13-shank models with working widths from 8-feet-9-inches to 16-feet-3-inches.

"Every farm operation faces unique challenges when it comes to tillage," said Keith Whitaker, Case IH tillage marketing manager. "Some growers only want to break up some light soil compaction. Others need to shatter numerous compacted layers. Still others are working in damp soil and thick residue.

"We can help farmers customize a Case IH chisel plow with various options and attachments to address their specific needs."

Both the 6700 and 6750 share a rugged frame constructed from 4-by-6 inch metal tubing. The front two ranks of chisel shanks are staggered to handle high volumes of residue flow. A positive stop depth-control feature sets a constant operating depth for the individual tillage shanks.

The 6700 chisel plow uses chisel shanks to fracture soils and mix residue, creating good soil tilth. It performs well in light to moderate soil compaction conditions.

"The 6700 offers customers an economical and proven tillage solution for moderate residue and compaction conditions," Whitaker said.

The Case IH 6750 parabolic chisel plow offers customers a versatile tillage tool to shatter soil compaction. When equipped with a coulter unit, as shown here, the plow also serves as a residue management tool, cutting the residue ahead of the tillage shanks.

Customers can choose 2-inch heavy-duty chisel points, 4-inch helical points, or tiger-C points for both the front and rear shanks. For those interested in managing residue, gang coulters or individual coulters can be attached on the front of the implement to aid in cutting and sizing residue.

The 6750 uses deep tillage parabolic shanks mounted on the rear bar to shatter deep compaction. These shanks operate four inches deeper than the chisel shanks on the front two ranks.

"The 6750 configuration maximizes soil fracturing, allowing water and air movement throughout the soil for better root growth in the next crop," Whitaker said.

Four types of points are available for the parabolic shanks to match power availability and field conditions:

- 2-inch straight points - Straight points open a slot in the compaction layer, providing the least amount of fracture and soil tilth. They also have the lowest horsepower requirements.
- 5-inch tiger points - The 5-inch size produces 30 to 50 per cent soil fracture, but requires less horsepower than its 7-inch counterpart.
- 7-inch tiger points - The 7-inch size provides maximum soil fracturing at 30 to 60 percent.
- 7-inch replaceable tip tiger points - These use a cast tip that can be replaced easily for conditions where points wear rapidly.

Model 6750 users can cut and size residue with gang coulters or individual coulters mounted on the front of the implement. Coulters aid in cutting and sizing residue. A disk attachment also is available for heavy residue mixing and tough conditions. The disks mount individually, and the front and rear are offset. This design offers superior cutting, mixing and residue flow.

In addition, a Hydraulic Disk Level'r attachment is available for both the 6700 and 6750. It allows farmers to customize field finish to match their cropping practices. After tillage, it berms soil over the shank furrow.

EPA Approves Insecticide

PHILADELPHIA – The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved the use of Capture® 2EC insecticide for planting time use against corn rootworm.

This new registration provides growers with an important new chemical tool to protect their corn against corn rootworm and other soil pests.

Growers can now replace older organophosphate (OP) products with a highly effective pyrethroid-based product. The registration is in effect for the 2000 growing season.

Bifenthrin, the active ingredient in Capture, has been tested in trials under heavy rootworm pressure and exhibited better or equal control than the current standard rootworm products, according to Mike Steffeck, Capture product manager for the FMC Agricultural Products Group. The product controls corn rootworm (northern, western, southern, Mexican), cutworms, seed corn maggot, wireworm, seed corn beetle and grubs.

"Capture provides long residual control during extended egg hatch and under heavy rootworm pressure, said Steffeck. "The product has also been tested and works in OP and carbamate aggressive soils."

As a liquid pyrethroid, Capture poses no dust inhalation problems and requires no posting under worker protection safety (WPS) rules. Capture must be applied as a T-banded spray over the open furrow before the closure wheels. The product should be applied at a 0.3 oz rate per 1,000 feet of row of 6.2 oz of product an acre for 30-inch row spacing. A one gallon jug will treat 25 acres.

"We believe this product will also become a popular replacement for current liquid-applied products due to its superior efficiency," says Steffeck. And, since the product has been sold for foliar pests in corn, Capture will be readily available this season for planting time use.

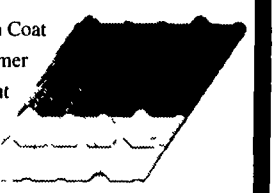
Everlast Roofing, Inc. Metal Roofing & Siding
The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"



1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6. Heat formed, less paint cracks
7.
Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!
1. One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention.
2. Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3. Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4. G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5. Full Hard. Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc.
6. Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks. (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7. Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L.F
8. Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square $1.69 Per L.F.

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY

Metal Roofs aren't Created Equal

Everlast II is better:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nails/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

Everlast II
is excellent for houses and barns.
Double dipped galvanized is proven best for animals.
Standing seam is ideal for houses.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Summer heat will soon be here. Plan now with a Mueller precooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS

Calving Ease Target of Simmental Breeders

A study at Colorado State University confirms the importance of calving ease to the amount of immuno-globulin concentrations in the blood of one day old calves. Significantly lower levels of the immuno-globulin were found in calves that experienced difficult births—even when the cows were milked immediately and the calf was fed the colostrum. Calving difficulty must be reduced to decrease the incidence of newborn diseases such as scours and pneumonia. Simmental breeders record and rate all Simmentals in 7 categories—the first category is calving ease. When you look for a herd sire—you may want to check out his calving ease numbers.

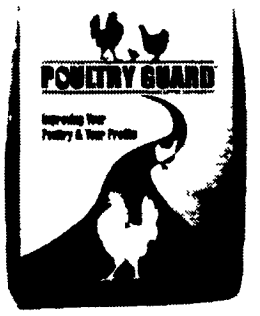
POULTRY GUARD™ LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation. Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower.



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.
